Tomorrow is the day of death!
I'll say thee, and I'll kill thee!
And still you say, "Macbeth, Macbeth!"
What heart doth pain within me.

Tomorrow is our wedding day;
Dost thou dream of him that used to be?
Captive, thou shalt have thy way;
A fiery death awaits thee.

I, the strong Assyrian king,
Shall shew no mercy, wretched dog.
My lady, think of just one thing:
And keenly see, pray do not nob.

(Posing him that would make almost anyone sob)

"I see the lawyer has a lawsuit against him."

"Breach of promise?".

"No, promise of brooches."

How this sad line Henry J. Mound,
He kissed his girl when her dad was around.

Speaking of optics-he, that reminds me of the old Portia preacher who had inscribed on his tombstone:

"Fellow me! Thy days are spent!"
And somebody scratched underneath:
"Not till I know which way you went."

One of our members told us a funny thing the other day. I don't know whether its true or not, but here it is. Mr. Markle had been talking to grade eleven about Alfred Negus, the poet, and at recess he went into Mr. Poole's room and said, "Mr. Poole, don't you adore Negus?"

Mr. Poole was looking dreamily out of the window, but he came back to earth with a jump, and answered, "Why, yes. Shall we pot together?"

Col. Harkness, Commissioner for Oil and Gas to the Dominion Government, in his speech in Edmonton recently, said the possibility in the Wainwright field was very great, and that the field has barely been scratched at yet.

The financial arrangements are a strong feature of BETHLEHEM OIL & REFINERIES, LTD. A thoughtful and well-planned scheme covering this the Company have at the head of their affairs men of vision with a far-seeing vision.

The refinery they plan is to be one other like model of the Lewistown's refinery, Montana, where 35 per cent. distillate is now supplied to the shareholders from its input.

The directors intend to commence drilling two wells at once in order to obtain a full supply of oil necessary for the maintenance of the Refinery. The rate for the wells is well defined on the structure the geologists report, and should prove a very productive.

Large Gold Shipment Arrives in Canada

Destination of Million Dollars in Sovereigns Not Known

Gold specie, in sovereigns, amounting to almost a million dollars, has arrived in Montreal aboard the steamship Metagama.

By a peculiar coincidence this shipment touched Montreal one year ago to a day, after the arrival of a similar type of cargo aboard the steamship Montrose.

On this voyage the Metagama brought out forty boxes of gold coin, the amount of which is not exactly known. Judging from the contents of these boxes brought here last year on the Montrose, each of which contained 2,000 sovereigns, it is assumed that the forty boxes on the Metagama contained 40,000.

Beyond the information that the specie was consigned to the Canadian Pacific Express Company, no further enlightenment could be thrown on its final destination.

"I know that Mr. John will have nothing to say about the size of your paying his rooms a visit whenever you wants."

"But that is what you must help me about," Joanna announced. "I don't want him to know that I have been here. You must make a little plot with me not to tell him. If you say that you won't, I know I may trust you."

As to this the landlady was not at all sure. Her watery, shrewd eyes narrowed a little and appraised the face of the girl who, plainly, wasn't "John's girl" any more.

"Well, now," she temporized, "as to that, Miss, I'll have to think a bit. A man's house is his castle like I have to say in the old days when I was lagente for Raymond Hitchcock who, I must say, had his pick of ingenues and knew how to do the picking. Of course that was only in comic opera and it was a scene even Hilsky could n't pot over if I wasn't there to feed him right, but still that's way it is, you know."

Joanna had listened patiently. "But it will be all right," she protested. "John and I haven't any secrets—you see, I've told him all I've done and will be, no matter what happens, although he has another notion just now. This must be a secret from him, your secret and mine, and it's just something I want that he mustn't know about for a little while." She gave the landlady the full benefit of a smile and a pleading from deep brown eyes that were irresistible. Grudgingly the woman gave in a little, shrugged her angular shoulders and agreed that if, "that's the way it is, I guess it'll be all right, for Mr. Egglestun. I want him to like ners from other girls. Mr. John's not that way with girls.

Joanna opened her handbag and added to the bills which already crumpled in the landlady's hand, left there by the chauffeur, a much larger one. Then she tripped up the stairs to the door through which John has delighted, in the past, occasionally to usher her.

When she crossed the threshold she faltered. For an instant Joanna Manners, girl of mystery and money, was "Miss Trevity seven" again, violating all the conventions of a more particular age, and stealing in with John to exhibit to him the new and wonderful structures that reached to the sky as surely as ever did a castle that grew up in Spain. On most of these nights she would have preferred to be out, dancing. They were a way, her mother's slave. She'd told him, once, that if he'd put his drawing board away and see her a little more frequently he'd get a contract he'd make a bigger hit with her.

Joanna brushed this reminiscence away with the back of her hand, pounding it pointedly across her forehead. She crossed the room to a huge chest of drawers in which John kept his papers, great sheets of blue print, plans and tracings.

As if she well knew the contents of every drawer, Joanna plunged her gray gloved fingers directly in among a sheaf of papers in a middle drawer. When she brought them out they brought with them a long envelope in which there were lines and diagrams in a confusion that many times had puzzled her. There were also several sheets that were similarly marred, as if they were duplicates on which inadvertent alterations had been made. Joanna had chosen one of them, seemingly at random, and appeared to be satisfied.

Suddenly, careless of her deadly affront to the smoothness of an architect's drawing the folded the blue sheets into a tobacco square and thrust it, crumpled, into her bag. Then she turned back to the door.

Just then a moment she stopped and dropped into a corner of the sofa. She pulled her legs under her and curled up. She gained a place in a pucker and rested her elbow in it and propped her head on her hand. And as if she were talking to someone who sat at stand in front of the drawing board over by the window she murmured softly:

"John dear, you're such a tiresome old thing! I can't get all that stuff straight in my head at all. Why don't you come over and tell me how mean you think you have been?"

When she had said this out into the empty room she got up from the seat and went swiftly out, closing the door behind her, softly.

The landlady stared about in the hall Joanna nodded to her and said.

I found what I wanted it'll be all right some day. Remember your promise—it is to be a secret between us that I was here. John will never know that I took."

When her car drew up at the sky scraper Brandon was waiting. He climbed in beside her, had his rough ments, and the cabriolet sped towards the Avenue. Brandon caught one of her hands and gave it a gentle pressure.

"Do you know," he said, "you were very nice to me, last night. I was beginning to be afraid that you would never decide to accept me as one of your necessary evils."

"And you think I have made up my mind that you are not to be hatted," she challenged him. "Perhaps I have. At any rate, I'm not going to be afraid of you, but that doesn't mean that I don't know that I ought to be. But just now I am not thinking of you, but of Mr. Egglestun. I want him to like you, and I wonder why he has asked me to see him." She was not watching him but she sensed a quick glance that took her in from head to foot. "I rather imagine," he said, "that most anyone you want to admire you, will. It may be that even your banker will lose his heart to you. Have you decided, too, upon that?"

"No," she said, very seriously as if she were considering the matter deeply; "I would never want an old man to lose his heart to me. The kind who do are always silly and wicked. And Mr. Egglestun isn't that sort. I'm dreadfully frightened of him. Of one thing he knows, who gave me the money and why, but when I sit before him I feel as if there was somethin between us, something that isn't money. I don't know how to describe it, but it's something that makes me want to be liked by him and trusted. He doesn't seem like a banker at all. I think all the things people have always said about him, like being hard and cruel and merciless, are unjust."

"Yet I have known him to send a man to penitentiary for stealing from a few paltry dollars to save him from bankruptcy. And I've seen him torture a woman who made him look a condescension from the bank that would have saved her from the contempt of her husband. I've known great institutions to fall wrought by some he wouldn't lift his hand to save them."

"Yes," Joanna agreed. "He would do that. Just as Mr. Good Morning, the buyer in the store, sent a pretty girl to prison for stealing a pair of baby's silk socks. We girls at the counter took up a collection to pay her fine, when we heard there was really a baby the socks were intended for, but when we told Mr. Good Morning about it he snapped our heads off and threatened to fire everyone of us if we dared such a thing. But just the same her fine was paid and she got off, and I almost gave him a date when I found out that he paid out of his own pocket what he wouldn't let us pay, and charged him self with three pairs of baby's socks and a baby's silk dress besides. Some men are that way you know."

Brandon laughed, a short, insolent laugh that made Joanna hate him and "I would advise," he said, "that you never let your banker catch you in a hole that you needed getting out of. You would do better to depend upon shall I say the obvious thing?—me."

She turned and looked at him, deliberately "If there was a hole for me to stumble into," she said, "you'd be the very one to push me in. And you would do the pushing with a hiss!"

Then she smiled brightly, at him "Bill, I'm going to be very nice to you, you know!"

Much of her reliance went out of her, however, when she stood in the centre of the massive library of Egglestun's mansion. She was a very little thing, and, she realized, a very ridiculous thing, silhouetted in the great quiet room that seemed to resent the intrusions and the youth of her. She wanted to talk in a whisper when Brandon came and stood near her. When her eyes in a furtive survey of the far corners of the room, fell upon the face of the girl in the gold frame over the huge fireplace, a strange sensation stole along her pulses. She blushed she could hide her awkward stick Somehow, she wished that she had left it in the cabriolet, outside

WOMAN COULD HARDLY WALK

Mrs. Horn Tells how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health

Hamilton, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and would not be without it now. I had a female trouble so badly I could hardly walk and I was all run down and could hardly get around to do my housework. I would be tired three or four days at a time. I was told by a friend to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did and by the time I took two bottles I was beginning to get around again. I took ten bottles in all, and now I am all right again and doing my own work. I have six grown-up to work for, so I have plenty to do. I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and I think it is good. But I owe my health to the Vegetable Compound, and I think if more of it was used women would be better off. I would not be without it if it cost much more."—Mrs. NELLIE HORN, 36 St. Matthews Avenue, Hamilton, Ontario.

Do you feel broken down, nervous and weak sometimes? Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is recommended to help at such a time. It always helps, and if taken regularly and persistently, will relieve this condition. ©

Little Helps For This Week

Every purpose of the Lord shall be performed.—Jer. li. 29.

At best our best endeavor
Must faint and fail forever,
Without God's guiding finger to point the how or where;
Then let us choose; His choosing,
Till setting's almost refusing,
Nor question when which is better to serve Him here or there.
—Margaret E. Preston.

To wish to serve Him in one place rather than in another, by such one such a way, and not by the opposite one, is to wish to serve Him in our own way and not in His. But to be equally ready for all things, to accept everything and reject nothing, to leave one's self like a toy in the hands of Providence,—this is serving Him by renouncing self, this is treating Him truly as God, and ourselves as creatures made only by Him.

—Fenelon.

REBEKAH LODGE DANCE

Probably due to the cherry drop in temperature last Friday night the dance given by the Princess Rebekah Lodge was only fairly well attended. Greater comfort and pleasure was afforded those present by the fact of having more elbow room, but the finances of the lodge would not be greatly increased by the moderate attendance. However, as monetary returns was of secondary importance only, the ladies of the lodge will be gratified with the social success they obtained and the pleasure they afforded their guests.

The hall was prettily decorated with evergreens and emblems of the Rebekah and Oddfellow lodges.

A bountiful supper was served in the ladies' room.

The local orchestra supplied the music.

Taxation In Canada

During the war Canada, like all countries, was forced to devise and impose new forms of taxation in order to raise the large sums of money required to enable her thereunto to worthily, efficiently and successfully discharge its national obligations. That drastic struggle lasted so long, and the expenditures incurred were so great, that a huge national debt resulted, and since the Armistice interest on that debt has had to be paid, while large pensions and the care of disabled soldiers continue to be necessary. Canada, therefore, must raise a large revenue for Federal purposes.

But this is not all. The war caused inflation of prices in all commodities, and, of course, revenues which formerly were adequate for provincial and municipal purposes were too small, and on top of higher Dominion taxation there had to be imposed greater taxation by Provincial and municipal governments.

The effect of this taxation is greater in Canada than in the United States because this country entered the war at the beginning, whereas the United States came into it near the close, and other years elapsed before that country amassed great wealth in the way of supplying goods to the Allied countries, which had turned their whole industrial fabric from works of peace production to the requirements of war.

Prior to the war Canada was a low taxed country, but war needs brought about the imposition of an Income Tax, a tax on bank cheques, drafts, notes, etc., a tax on receipts, taxes on matches and other commodities, an increased rate of postage, taxes on amuse profits, taxes on business turnover as represented by sales, and sundry other taxes. The accumulation of all these taxes has, naturally and inevitably, had an adverse effect on investment in industry and for development purposes, and in the willingness of both foreign and domestic money lenders to invest in Canada. Further, the necessity of to investing large sums in Government loans during the war resulted in the withdrawal of hundreds of millions of dollars from other forms of investment, to the detriment of all business, industrial growth, and development of the natural resources of the country.

With its tremendous accumulation of wealth during the war, and the wonderful expansion in production and industrial activity since then as a direct result of that accumulation of wealth, the United States has been enabled to rapidly decrease its Income Tax and lower, or entirely abrogate most of its war taxes. This has created a great disparity in the burden of Federal taxes imposed on the people of these two countries, to the manifest disadvantage of Canada. On the other hand, Canada compares very favorably with the United States when Provincial State and Municipal taxation is compared.

There is, however, a growing demand throughout the Dominion that, if this country is not to seriously suffer in the long run, some action must be taken to lower the burden of Federal taxation so as to place the Dominion on terms of greater equality in this respect with our neighbor to the south. Just how this is to be accomplished, and at the same time provide the Federal Government with the revenue it must have, to meet our war obligations and current Dominion needs, is the problem.

To the solution of this problem the Dominion Government is directing its attention, and, fortunately, the people as a whole, are taking a very keen and increasing interest in it. This interest is made manifest in the discussions which took place at the recent convention of the Canadian Board of Trade, in the publications of the Citizens' Research Institute of Canada, in the Dominion wide campaign recently inaugurated by the Retail Trade Bureau of Canada, and by the resolutions adopted by the Canadian Council of Agriculture representing the organized farmers.

While all these bodies are in agreement on some points, there are at various in important respects as to policies which should be adopted. All strongly favor more economical administration, the elimination of partisanship and politics from the business of government, reduced expenditures, and a more careful survey of national conditions before embarking on future capital undertakings, all of which will make for lower taxation. But they differ when it comes to the question of just what taxes should now be entirely eliminated. There are two sides to these questions, as there are to most issues of outstanding importance, and it will be of value to consider them in a subsequent article.

The present gratifying fact is that a step has been taken in the direction desired by all, namely, reduction of taxation. The present year has seen the excess war profits taxes wiped out, the tax on receipts repealed, the tax on bank cheques for small amounts removed, and a substantial reduction made in the Income Tax, especially on smaller incomes. Furthermore, the Finance Minister has announced that further reductions will be shortly forthcoming, and press despatches have reported that he has ordered a survey by departmental officials of the operation of the Income Tax and Sales Tax, and their effect on business and the country's development in general, with a view to guiding the Government in the preparation of the next budget.

Spiritualism in Britain

Growth of Movement Sponsored by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle

An impressive belief in spiritualism was registered at the spiritualist's annual conference in the Albert Hall, London, when eight thousand were present.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, leading the services, suddenly appealed to his hearers, shouting: "I ask all who are sure that they have been in touch with their dead to rise and testify."

Hundreds men and women of all types quietly rose and this brought from Sir Arthur this fervent ejaculation:

"Thank God there are so many. I suppose I have for years had to wait such an appeal every man and woman will rise.

We are not testifying to faith but to fact."

The growth of the belief in spirit communication, so persistently established by Sir Oliver Lodge and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, has apparently been extraordinary.

In the course of his address Sir Conan said: "We are here in middle-London and in cold blood, and people are honest that time in history. We feel we are addressing those we have lost, and hold out our hands to them, not as shadow beings to be unknown like, but just the same light hearted, merry fellows we lost. They are not lost, but are nearer to us than ever they were before."

Miss Estelle Stead, formerly editor of the Review of Reviews, the Rev. George Vale Owen and other well known spiritualists were among the speakers.

California Trying to Raise Funds to Purchase Scientist's Farm

Plant scientists at work of the late Luther Burbank will be carried on if a movement on foot in California to raise $1,000,000 is successful. The fund would purchase the famous scientist's Sebastopol farm, north of Santa Rosa, and make it a monument to his memory. Officials of Stanford University admit that the plan is to turn over the farm to the university. Shortly before his death Burbank expressed a wish that the farm be turned over to Stanford University so that his experiments could be carried on.

Not Such a Bad Thing

Many of Really Great People Have Been Bald.

The shine of the world is: "I am misunderstood." Pooh-pooh! Everybody is. It's a good thing that many of us are misunderstood. Then we can pass for knowing more than we do. Emerson had something to say about that. He said: "Misunderstood! It is a fool's word. Is it so bad, then, to be misunderstood? Pythagoras was misunderstood, and Socrates, and Jesus, and Luther, and Copernicus, and Galileo, and Newton, and every pure and wise spirit that ever took flesh. To be great is to be misunderstood."

Experiments In Hemp Growing In Western Canada Prove That Industry Is Practicable

Investigation and experiment in hemp growing in Western Canada, which are proceeding favorably before the war, was brought to a standstill with the outbreak of hostilities and was not resumed for some time afterwards. Recently, however, work has commenced correspondingly by the Development Branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway in co-operation with the Department of Agriculture of the Dominion Government and the Department of Natural Resources of the same railway, has further established the suitability of the lands of the irrigated sections of Southern Alberta to this crop and paved the way to industrial manufacture involving the use of hemp. There would now appear to be no reason why the Prairie Provinces should not have a hemp-growing industry and cottage in the manufacture of products now imported into the Dominion to the extent of some five million dollars annually. Carrie's analysis of the exhaustive work of experts fully justifies the conclusion that the hemp Industry in Western Canada can be made a commercial and industrial success.

After preliminary experiments in 1914, three acres of hemp were produced in 1915 on the irrigation block at the St. Julien Colony, east of Calgary, at Tilley, Alberta. The three acres were reduced to retting condition through the exceptional rainfall of the season largely equalled the effort of the ten months. The results of this part of the experiment carried out by the above-named organizations have now been available and are of a very encouraging and encouraging.

At harvest the stand of hemp was described by experts as a "bumper crop" of exceptional quality. One acre was cut and left in bundles on the ground to test the retting effect of exposure during the winter and spring. On examination in the following spring, it was found that though the hemp had not been spread, the outside bundles where exposed to the winter weather had been sufficiently retted. It was concluded that if properly spread on the ground under normal winter conditions, the hemp could be readily retted in this manner. One acre was cut, spread to dry for about ten days, and then shipped to a mill at Forest, Ontario, where it was duly spread for retting. It was intended to irrigate this after spreading, but the unusually wet season made this unnecessary. The [illegible] was [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Balmoral Castle Improved

Made More Comfortable Than in Days of Queen Victoria's Time

Balmoral Castle has changed a good deal since the Victorian era. It is now by no means the comfortless place it was when King Edward turned up his "nose could catch a different kind of cold in every room." Edwardian improvements were many, and in the old time Queen Mary's able mind has dealt with the Castle's problems, and both the Royal family and the staff are said to be as comfortable in Balmoral as in any of the Royal residences. The reason why the Prince of Wales seldom visits Balmoral is said to be due to the fact that neither fishing nor shooting makes a strong appeal to him.

British Hunter's Income

Estimated Average is Over One Pound Per Week for Each Person

The estimated income of Great Britain, say the Inland Revenue Commissioners, is now 2,000 million pounds, over £2 a week for every inhabitant.

Of this amount the Inland Revenue took 510 millions in income tax, super tax, and excess profits duty. Beer was paid on income over £2,000 by 87,000 people, and 124 of them had incomes of £100,000.

Death duties were paid on 106,000 estates; but 76,000 of these were £300 or less. One estate was over three millions, and there were 12 between one and two millions.

NEGLECTED ANAEMIA

Often Leads to a Decline—Enrich the Blood by Taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

In their early years a quite common for girls to outgrow their strength, and mothers should carefully watch the health of their daughters at this time, for it is when strength is sapped that anaemia develops. The first signs may be headaches, dizziness, languor and headaches. The face grows pale, breathlessness and palpitation follow, with low spirits.

At the first symptom of anaemia mothers should act promptly. Neglected anaemia often leads to decline, but if you can find your daughter's blood is enriched there need be no cause for anxiety. Miss Rose Barkley, saleswoman of Orrville is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are red blood builders and these pills will quickly banish all signs of anaemia. They will build up your girl's health and enable her to resist girlhood. Give your daughter a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now. Make her strong like thousands of girls who have regained health by the clutches of anaemia by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Here is a bit of proof. Miss Mary Vendittl, Cataqua, N.B., says:—"Three years ago while attending a convent, I studied very hard to graduate. The result was I became very nervous and got so thin and pale my teachers thought they would have to send me home. I took different kinds of medicine which my parents sent me but my condition remained unchanged. At last one of my teachers gave me a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before I had finished it when I could feel an improvement in my condition. I continued the use of the pills for some time longer, and I can hardly tell all the good they did me. I gained in strength and weight, and the color returned to my cheeks, and at the end of the term I graduated. I never fail to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to my friends and acquaintances as I have been helped."

You can get these pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GIDEON AND THE THREE HUNDRED

Golden Text: Be strong in the Lord, and in the strength of his might.—Ephesians 6:10.

Lesson Judges 7:1-22.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 27:1-6.

Explanations and Comments

I. The Philistine Control Depart, verses 1-3.—Gideon and his band were to fight against the Midianites under God's banner, and in God must be ascribed the victory. Lest they should boast of having themselves defeated their enemy, their numbers must be reduced. Gideon therefore directed all who were fearful to depart, and more than two-thirds of the warriors left the camp. Possibly the men who had brought most of what they would do to the Midianites were the very ones who were afraid when they stood on the height and looked at the encampment of the enemy spread along the opposite side of the valley. The Crusaders who were the boldest in the crusade-chase were the first to cry, "Save qui peut" (Let him who can save himself.)

When God needs men for His work he chooses the hearts consecrated. When the bugle sounds the martial note, some one has observed, there are many in the Church who suddenly remember an engagement that prevents their fighting in the battle. The proportion of cowards at Gilboa turned out to be two to three. Would it be low to accompany to Gideon's army?

CUSTOMS PROBE IS REOPENED IN THE EAST

Ottawa. Customs appraisers whose duty it is to place a value on goods imported into the Dominion sometimes make a mistake. Hence the common-law commission, which is summoned sitting here, R. L. Calder, K.C., one of the commission counsel, stated that an importation of very valuable antique furniture entering the port of Montreal had been appraised as "one and hand furniture and rated as such by the appraiser through whose hands it passed. Evidence taken before the parliamentary committee last session had shown that some of the appraisers were absolutely without qualifications for their work, Mr. Calder said.

Counsel mentioned three matters when J. A. Wilson, Dominion appraiser, was on the witness stand before the commission. Both Mr. Wilson and his brother, Edward Richards, informed the commission that they were not consulted in any way officially as to the choice of appointees for the posts of customs appraisers at points outside Ottawa. Customs appraisers generally become such by promotion, Mr. Richards thought, but he and Mr. Watson agreed that the civil service commission was the body which would probably tell the commission about the names.

Resumption of the hearing this morning was preceded with an exposition of regret from Chairman J. F. Brown that Mr. Fraser had declined to retired from the chairmanship of the commission. It was announced that after the Ottawa sitting, the commission would move forward direct to Vancouver.

A statement was submitted covering the number of train accidents at various points in Canada from 1923 to date. The largest number was made at Windsor, Ont., numbering 165 Next came St. John's, Que., 151; Montreal, 856; Vancouver, 237. Mr. Russell explained that these were made from the reports of train crews to the effect they "threw out spot" (Let him who can save himself.)

London Firm Insures Turkish Cruiser

Is Ship That Decided Turkey to Join in War Against Italy

London.—There is a flavor of humor in the fact, says The Daily Mail, that insurance of about £6,000,000 has been placed with, Lloyds, London, against risks of damage to the Turkish cruiser Sultan Yavuz Selim, formerly the German Goeben, which is being fitted into dock at Gedjik, near Constantinople, for repairs by German engineers. Early in the war, the Goeben, then belonging to Germany, arrived in Constantinople after a spectacular escape from British pursuers in the Mediterranean. The arrival of the Goeben through the Dardanelles was one of the factors leading Turkey to join Germany instead of the allies in the war.

Northern Branch Line May Be Extended

Would Form Junction in Manitoba with H. & S. Railway

Winnipeg.—Extension of the Canadian National branch line at Gypsumville, Manitoba, to Grand Rapids, on the Saskatchewan River, was promised by Sir Henry Thornton on condition that the railway could be shown to be profitable, according to a delegation that waited on the C.N.R. president here.

The proposed extension would form a junction with the Hudson's Bay Railway. The delegation was composed of Mayor R. H. Webb, of Winnipeg, representative of the On-to-the-Bay Association and officials of other Manitoba organizations.

France Planning To Cut Standing Army

Bills Call for Reduction From 650,000 to 400,000 Men

Paris.—Reduction of the total number of men under arms in France from 650,000 to 400,000 is called for in two bills which have been introduced in the Chamber of Deputies. The measures also call for a reduction in the period of compulsory military service from eighteen to twelve months.

The bills, which will be introduced by Andre Maginot, Minister of War, provide, among other things, that the annual contingents of conscripts will be called to the colors in successive order to insure the presence under the flag of half the entire army with not less than a year's training.

The contingents of conscripts will be divided into two successive groups in order to insure the presence under the flag of half the entire army with not less than a year's training.

M. Painleve estimates that the new law will increase the expenditures of the War Department at the beginning, but he proposes to make up the additional sums needed from the sale and rental of idle property of the Department of War.

Young People Protest

Youth of Ontario Say They Are Progressing Along the Right Lines

Toronto.—A resolution repudiating "the pessimistic attitude on by those interested in the return of the free sale of liquor which has represented $100 worth of sale and this provides is most unfortunate terms," and calling for wholehearted support of the Ontario Temperance Act, were the initial results of three meetings held here which 7,000 young people from Toronto and district attended.

The adoption of the resolution followed addresses by several young men and women prominent in university and other circles in Toronto. At each meeting the speakers stressed the contention that young people were not going to the "dogs" as some people thought but were progressing along the right lines.

Conference is Success

London.—"The Imperial Conference has not been doing much to attract publicity," said Lt.-Col. L. C. Amery, secretary of state for Dominion Affairs, in a speech here, "but from the point of view of mutual understanding it has been the most successful of all the imperial conferences." Colonel Amery said he never thought the amount of practical work accomplished by the various committees of the conference was greater than at any previous gathering of the premiers of the Empire.

THE BETHLEHEM OIL AND REFINERIES, LTD.

EDMONTON ALBERTA

Invest in a Sound Alberta Industry Managed by Local Men of Proved Integrity and Ability—

ALBERTA will be one of the greatest oil fields in the world—all authorities agree on this. The Royalite Well in Alberta is now producing 25,000, 000 per year to the shareholders.

Refinery in the U.S.A. have paid large dividends and the new process of extracting gasoline will double the profit-making in refining. This new process will be installed in BETHLEHEM OIL AND REFINERIES, LTD.

Petroleum is one of our most valuable natural resources in Alberta, and with the high prices in Canada, a refinery will be a sound, profitable business. The soundness of our proposition will appeal to the investor who realizes that these pioneer enterprises in industry, based directly upon natural resources, reap the rich rewards.

It is well known by most people that whatever business or work they follow, together with the high cost of living, it is almost impossible to lay aside any money for old age. The only remedy for this is to make a good investment.

No other stock in this industry, but the common stock of the Company. All the shareholders have equal rights, both oil leases and the refinery—a fair investment point to be considered.

The present offering of shares at $1.00 each will rank the same value as our next issue (the Refinery being built with the directors). The issue will be limited at a much larger price.

DIRECTORS

The first qualification necessary for the success of a company is the man on the directorate, their ability and their standard. The directorate of Bethlehem Oil and Refineries, Ltd. are men who have made a success of their public and private affairs, men of high reputation in; their personal reputation is at stake and they would not submit your money unless they felt you were receiving value.

President and Managing Director
W. K. BELL, Esq., Supt. of Continental Casualty Co., Alta. and Sask.

COL. GEO. B. McLEOD, Provincial Magistrate for the Peace.

THE REFINERY

The refinery, which will be fitted with the most modern up-to-date plant, will be built at, Wainwright, Alberta, right in the heart of the drilling. The policy for this is obvious. Transportation is one of the vital points to a refinery. Refining of oil is a profitable by-products is well known to be highly profitable. There is no element of speculative about this. It is a sound investment. Vast sums of money are made in the U.S.A. in refining; consider the price of gasoline here as compared to Canada. The company mean to have their own producing wells in order to have control of crude products for the benefit of the shareholders. Gasoline is a necessity and a luxury. The wheels of commerce would not turn without it. Canada pays today to the U.S.A. and other countries over $100,000,000 per annum for petroleum products, which will be kept in Canada in the future.

THE COMPANY

has no conditioning contracts, owns lease or drilling rights, every lease is paid for and in perfect shape, and every lease can be drilled on. (See Geologist's report). The lease holdings have been paid very much for their leases; they have each faith in their property and have placed their stock being put in escrow with the directors' until the success of the Company is secured. The Company has a very conservative outlook and that dividends can be paid after 1927.

The offering is limited; until it is completed no block has been defined in its size.

CHAPTER XX.

In Eggleton's Home

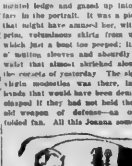
A butler, the ancient one whose years seemed to identify him with the old home, brought word that Mr. Eggleton would join them shortly. If they would be pleased to wait. Brandon, when the old man had disappeared ponderously, held out his cigarette case to Joanna. She shook her head.

"No, not in here," she said. "Some how, it doesn't seem as if ——, as if one smoked in this house, does it?"

"That is a curious feeling," he observed. "I don't imagine my esteemed uncle smokes them, but I fancy he is not annoyed to them. Surely you would not adopt a pose of innocence of them because of a vicious regard for your brother's tastes?"

"No," she replied, "I wouldn't do that. But, just the same, I don't want to smoke.

She moved away from the table and to a window. Brandon watched her closely, saw that as she crossed the room her glance fell again on the painting over the fireplace. She looked from the window out into the avenue, for a minute or two, then turned suddenly and went directly up to the fireplace. No action was as if in response to some occult summons from the girl who looked down so serenely from the canvas.



"As your banker," Eggleton returned, "you must give me my instructions."

would have laughed at, as at a schoolboy's pleasantry. To be very much wanted been anything quite so ridiculously funny as any sort of fashion that had become passe—clothes, girls or vocations.

But Brandon, who had dropped his cigarette into a solid gold ash tray and moved quietly to one side of the room where, under pretense of examining a book, he might furtively watch the girl at the fireplace, saw no indication of amusement in her face. Instead he fancied that some of the whitishness of the girl in the painting had reached down to her own cheeks.

"Do you know who she is—I mean, who she was?" The voice seemed to float gently on the stillness of the room.

Brandon didn't answer at once. Joanna did not notice his silence "She fascinates me," she said, still dreamily. "There is something about her face that reminds me of someone I have known, or, it makes me want to think."

There was a sound at the door, which opened by the old banker. Eggleston entered the room. Brandon made no sign. He glanced from the girl to the banker, and then watched them both.

Eggleston halted abruptly when he saw Joanna and that she was lost in contemplation of the girl in the painting. He looked at Brandon, a note inquiry in his eyes. Brandon shook his head. Eggleston stood quietly, his head lowered a bit so that his study of the girl at the fireplace, whose back was partly turned to him, had the effect of an inner as well as outward attitude.

Suddenly, as if she were startled, Joanna wheeled and met the banker's gaze. A hand fluttered nervously to her throat. For a brief moment she looked, as if frightened "I know that you were watching me!" she breathed.

Brandon dropped his book.

"The atmosphere is charged," he remarked drily. "I am confronted with mondo. Miss Masters refused to smoke despite the fact that on our way here she stopped to buy a charmingly expensive holder ornamented with emeralds. She found the room too forbidding. Now my uncle is obviously disturbed."

Eggleston remarked "I hope your luncheon is not to be a breathless affair."

Joanna was confused. She wanted to explain that nervousness that is the bane of her host the oppressed her.

Eggleston received her with a stiff, formal greeting that ignored Brandon's allusions.

Joanna made a valiant effort to throw off the shyness that constantly threatened her in the presence of the great banker who knew the secret of her mystery. She knew, instinctively, that she had not been asked in visit him, at his home, without some very definite reason. But whatever this reason might be, she was convinced that it, also, would be kept from her. Eggleston's phrases were formal; cold; yet, now and then, she was sure she detected something in his manner—that was quite all that she could determine about it, that it was, simply, "something." As yet the mind of Miss Twentywrong had not become expertly analytical.

"I understand," the banker said, when they had taken their places at the table in a massive dining room—a room as cavernous as the library which looked from the window out into the avenue, for a minute or two, then turned suddenly and went directly up to the fireplace. No action was as if in response to some occult summons from the girl who looked down so serenely from the canvas.

"As your banker," Eggleston returned, "you must give me my instructions."

Won Fortune From Kaiser

Widow Broke Will Which Left Wealth to German Ruler

During the war the ex-Kaiser of Germany just missed adding another million to his fortune by an adverse decision of the Dresden High Court. A wealthy Saxon died and left the greater part of his wealth to Wilhelm II., the will leaving his widow almost penniless.

The widow asked the ex-Kaiser to renounce the legacy in her favor, and on his refusal, she brought an action to have the will declared illegal. The court decided in her favor, and awarded her the big sum her husband had willed to the ex-Kaiser.

VICKS VAPORUB

"How far does a million dollars go, Mr. Eggleston?"

"Not very far," he replied. "When entrusted to the three companions, Vanity, Extravagance, and Desire, they, I believe are the chief advisers of the young women of this day."

"Are they?" Joanna asked earnest. "I have always found that my chief friends were Misunderstanding, Distrust and Envy."

A great modern banker, a despot whose whim echoed as thunder through the marts of finance, and a modern, younger man, whose pastime was the battling of formless artifice, looked across their table into the fresh, young, modern face of a girl who was just beginning out from Miss Twenty seven of the silks. The banker remembered, strangely, a visit he had paid to the dressing room of a famous comedienne after the run of glaring legs and flamboyant farce that came awkwardly through his office door with the air of one who was being trapped. Straining remembered the girl who had "no place to go," except to her silk counter or her rooming house. And Joanna understood why they looked at her.

Teaming With Life

The amount of life found to exist in a quarter of a square mile of tropical jungle in British Guiana is almost incredible. In a square yard of soil 1,000 different forms of insect life were found.

Miller's Worm Powders work so effectively that no traces of worms can be found. The pests pass away in the stools without being perceptible. They make an entire and clean sweep of the intestines, and nothing in the shape of a worm can find quarters there when these powders are in operation. Nothing could be more satisfactory or desirable than that notion.

Machine Guns Mounted on Trains in Mexico

OBITUARY

The town and community received a distinct shock in the sudden death of one of its oldest and most esteemed citizens in the person of Edward Graham, son of Mr. James R. (Jim) and the late Mrs. Graham on Saturday, November 27, at the age of forty-seven years.

Deceased was born in the village of Cryaler, Ontario, in the year 1879. At an early age he came west with his parents to Regina, Sask., and after a short sojourn there trekked overland west to Alberta by prairie schooner. He received his education at the local public school and then served for a number of years under the late Dr. Alpen, who was the local druggist at that time.

On severing his connection with Dr. Aylen he engaged in the mercantile business under W. G. Shorn, of the firm of Shorn & Co.

In the year 1900 war was declared between Great Britain and the republic of South Africa. He then severed his connection with Shorn & Co. and joined the overseas service in the second Canadian contingent, serving through the campaign as side-de-camp and despatch rider to Col. Evans, who was in command of the contingent.

On returning from overseas he engaged in the grain business with Shera & Co., remaining with that firm a number of years.

The year of the Quebec Centennial he was selected to represent C. Squadron, C.M.R.'s at the celebration held in the city of Quebec.

He again engaged in the mercantile business with the firm of Wilkin and Jones, remaining with this firm until he became one of the firm of Jones, Graham & O'Brien.

Besides his family he leaves to mourn his loss his father, three sisters and three brothers, namely, Mrs. W. F. Langworthy, Vancouver, Mrs. Jas. Ritchie, Edmonton, Mrs. E. S. Webb, Edmonton, W. A. and E. E. Graham, Fort Saskatchewan, and J. Earle Graham, Namao.

The funeral service was held from his late residence, Emma street, on Tuesday, November 30, under the direction of Victoria Lodge No. 13, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons. Canon Carruthers officiated at the service held at St. George's church.

The high esteem in which the deceased was held among the residents of the town and community was expressly marked by the large attendance at the funeral and the numerous

WEDDINGS

STUCKEY—WILLIAMS

The marriage was solemnized on Monday, November 29, of Mr. George Stuckey, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stuckey, Fort Saskatchewan, and Miss Martha Helen Williams, eldest daughter of Mr. John Williams of Brenner. The ceremony took place at the Presbyterian Manse, Edmonton, the Rev. Dr. McQueen officiating. The bride was given away by her father, and her sister, Miss Bertha Williams, was bridesmaid. Mr. Roy Stuckey supported the groom.

A wedding supper was provided at the home of the groom's parents, at which relatives and close friends were present.

The happy couple will reside in Fort Saskatchewan.

MOHR—MOHR

One of the season's pretty weddings occurred on Tuesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, when Mr. Edward Mohr and Miss Hilda Barbara Mohr were united in marriage in the presence of one hundred and ten invited guests.

At six o'clock, the strains of the wedding march heralded the approach of the bridal party to the expectant assembled guests. The officiating clergyman, accompanied by the groom and his attendant and brother, Mr. George A. Mohr, approached the arch in the prettily decorated living room, where the ceremony was to take place. The bride appeared shortly after, led by the little Misses Marjorie Canf and Doreen Thomas, as flower girls. The bridesmaid, Miss Ruth K. Mohr, sister of the bride, then joined the party, and the simple service of the single ring ceremony was read by the Rev. Mr. Hoffman, pastor of the contracting parties.

Immediately after the ceremony, the guests were seated at three large tables set in the dining and living rooms and partook of the bountiful wedding feast. A social good time was then the order of the evening.

The bride was dressed in a simple combination frock of pink georgette and taffeta with appointments to match. The only ornaments were were a necklace and bracelet of pearls The bridesmaid also wore pink georgette of a paler shade. Both carried sheafs of white and pink carnations.

The many beautiful presents were proof of the popularity of Mr. and Mrs. Mohr among Josephburg's younger set. They have, too, been active in church and Sunday school work. Mr. Mohr being superintendent of the Sunday school for the past several years, and Mrs. Mohr serving as organist at various times. They will be at home to their friends shortly on the farm of the groom, one half mile east of Josephburg church. The groom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mohr and the bride the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mohr.

The best wishes of their friends accompany the young couple on life's journey.

The Income Tax

In the discussions now proceeding throughout Canada regarding Federal taxation, and in particular the campaign being waged by the Retail Trade Board and the Canadian Board of Trade in favor of the abolition of the Income Tax, there is recognition of one outstanding fact. That is, that the Dominion Government must raise a large revenue in order to meet national obligations. Past Budget statements at Ottawa further indicate that the present volume of revenue is required to meet our war indebtedness and obligations and the current expenditures of the Dominion, except, of course, insofar as current expenditures can be reduced through greater economy and efficiency. Such reductions, cannot, however, be all effected immediately, while the public demand for decreased taxation is rather insistent.

It would appear axiomatic, therefore, that if the Income Tax is to be repealed, some other source of revenue to make good the fifty odd million dollars obtained annually through this tax must be tapped. Where that money is to come from, and whether it would not simply mean the introduction of new or additional taxes in some other form, advocates of the repeal of the Income Tax do not explain. They do say that great savings can be effected in Government administration, in Government purchases, in a smaller Civil Service, and in Government expenditures generally, but, as already stated, these cannot be brought about immediately to offset the complete stoppage of Income Tax Revenues.

Advocates of the repeal of the Income Tax do, however, present a strong and logical case, and the ultimate national effect of the abolition of Income Taxes, and their views are worthy of the most careful consideration and attention.

It is argued that the Income Tax is not only unsound but unjust in that it penalizes, assumes to the imposition of a penalty on the most conscientious, energetic, and productive citizens, who, by their labor and thrift earn larger incomes than do the less energetic and progressive citizens. Such a tax, they argue, discourages men in their best years and impels them to emigrate to the United States where their experience and ability is recognized and rewarded where only a fraction of their earnings are taken in taxation as compared with Canada.

It is further argued that, while an Income Tax may be a sound and wise policy in European countries whose development has reached a mature stage, and where there are vast accumulations of wealth, it is a fatal policy for a young and undeveloped country like Canada, inasmuch as it operates in discourage investment in development and productive enterprises; that instead of discouraging development and production, Canada's future demands that every encouragement should be given, and that through such development only can a larger and permanent population be secured, and, ultimately, necessary revenues to discharge our heavy war indebtedness and provide required headmoney for our railways and industrial establishments.

Again, say the advocates of repeal, the Income Tax acts as a barrier to the investment in Canada by men of wealth in the United States, Great Britain, Holland, Switzerland, and other countries who have money to invest, and who would thus assist in developing the resources of Canada. But who hesitate to do so in view of the fact that their incomes from such investment are so heavily taxed.

It must be admitted that these are weighty arguments, and they must be given consideration if Canada is to deal with this taxation problem from the viewpoint of the future as well as of the present. And it is to the future we must look to relieve our heavy war debt and relieve the Dominion of the burden which now hampers our best efforts.

On the other hand, it is urged by those who favor retention of the Income Tax that it is essentially the fairest tax that can be imposed, inasmuch as it calls upon people to pay in proportion to their ability to do so as represented by their annual income. Further, that it is the only way whereby men and women who are not age engaged in any work of production but who are living on invested capital can be made to contribute their proper share to the cost of Government. It was contended during the closing years of the war, and the argument still holds good in numerous instances, that wherever a thousand men gave their lives, others amassed fortunes, now safely invested, and that they should be required to pay through a tax on the income derived from these invested profits.

Then, coming back to the opening paragraphs of this article, if the Income Tax is repealed, how and where is the necessary revenue then lost to be obtained? The Canadian Council of Agriculture opposes repeal, not only because they regard the Income Tax as a very fair method, but because they see in its abrogation the passing of any possibility of further tariff reductions, and even fear increases in order to make good the loss of revenue.

Possibly the only source that will command itself generally to the country, and possibly the only feasible one, will be found in further pursuing the policy of last session of Parliament and gradually reducing the Income Tax, step by step, until it reaches the vanishing point. If the Government deliberately sponsored a graduated scale of reductions covering a period of years it would provide the necessary incentive to business, both at home and abroad, to larger productive and development activities, and encourage the enterprising youth of Canada to remain at home to develop the country before them, while at the same time it would enable the Government to investigate those necessary economies to effect loans in revenues without having recourse to other forms of taxation.

Minister's Knee Hit

Revue Comes Next After Striking Success in the East

Capt. H. W. Pinsent, producer of the famous Dumbells has entered one of the most outstanding successes of his career with a new song and dance hit, "Capt. Pinsent's Revue of 1926."

It marks a revolution in revue entertainment—a high-speed, elaborately-staged, clean-cut English-type attraction with more pretty girls than a beauty contest and a superb singing and comedy cast.

The usual chorus has been replaced by a Lonsdale dance-ballet entirely made up of specially girls. The comedy, imported direct from London music halls is in charge of a battery of comedians headed by Fred Leslie, Jr., the English star. In the cast, too, are the two Canadian winners of International fame, Estelle Mills—Miss Toronto and Miss Winnipeg.

Week of Nov. 22th, Walker Theatre, Winnipeg; Dec. 6, 7, 8, Regina Theatre, Regina; Dec. 9, 10, 11, Empress Theatre, Saskatoon; Week of Dec. 13th, Empire Theatre, Edmonton; Week of Dec. 20th, Grand Theatre, Calgary; Dec. 27, 28, Majestic Theatre, Lethbridge.

SCIATIC SUFFERING

Comes Because the Nerves Are Starved for Better Blood

There is no mystery about why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved wonderful in the most severe cases of sciatica, neuralgia and other complaints in which this group known as disorders of the nerves. Starved nerves complain either because the blood is thin and watery, and the nerves are thus literally starving for the nourishment rich blood supplies, or else, they become, therefore, in the richness of the blood supply and hence, acidity acts upon the nerves and the torturing pains of sciatica and neuralgia discharge. Hence the need of their specific action on the blood, this feeding the starved nerves that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been so successful in curing all forms of these troubles. As proof of this we give the case of Mrs. Peter Donaldson, South Alton, N.S., who says:—"Two years ago I was stricken with sciatica and neuralgia in my back and leg. The pain was so severe that I could not get about for some time. I became weary, and I had to go to bed. The doctor called in was not able to do more than deaden the pain, and I had to stay in bed for six weeks, when my grandmother came to see me and strongly urged me to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. I did and soon had a similar attack and it was these pills that had restored her to health. I al~ays get a supply and had they been in the house when I found great relief. Gladly I kept on taking the pills, and soon after found myself as well as ever I had been. Gratitude for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me leads me to try others similarly afflicted to try them."

You can get these pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

According to the New West Farmer a feature of the present year's harvest was the free of "roughers"—the combine machine and threshing now being made by several implement manufacturers in this country. He says they save the cost of twine and nine-tenths of the labor of harvesting.

The question of air mail in Canada was being considered. In conclusion Capt. Scott recommended that Western Canada by their planning provide for a central aerodrome. He stated United States fliers were visiting Canada in large and increasing numbers if assured of satisfactory landing and housing for their craft.

Food Value Of Fish

Is the Ideal Food For Mankind, Says Japanese Scientist

Fish is the ideal food for mankind, in the opinion of Chiyosaburo Ishikawa, famous Japanese scientist, who has brought with him to New York 64,000,000 years ago, when fish first appeared, and therefore contains the most perfect food for human nourishment.

"In return I hope to take back to Japan some of the eggs of the American trout," said the scientist.

With two other Japanese scientists, Ishikawa is the guest in this country of the Rockefeller Foundation. They will remain until early in January, visiting the big universities and scientific research centres of the country, studying American methods of teaching and advancing medical and zoological science.

Exchange Wheat For Coal

Idea for Developing Trade Between Canada and Wales

A scheme for the development of trade between South Wales and Canada, by the exchange of wheat for anthracite coal, is reported by the Westminster Gazette, that Sir Alfred Mond's visit to Canada was for the purpose of securing guarantees for this trade and adds that a consideration of the unexploited Anthracite Company and the United Anthracite Company, was contingent on the scheme going through. The plan is to export anthracite from Swansea to Canada, and import Canadian wheat direct on return voyage, with the idea of cutting into American trade.

Better Methods of Handling Imports

Southampton's most important imports for the British Isles include meat and fruit from Canadian farms. This port has made a strong bid for these commodities which have been arriving in steadily increasing volume during the past few years. To ensure prompt and regular delivery the shipments are usually carried in large passenger vessels. The rapid development of liner traffic at Southampton has naturally been reflected in a corresponding growth in the imports of fresh American food and meat. Goods can on trains in western Canada and reach Southampton docks in London within less than 10 days.

Facilities on the Southampton docks have been organized to handle the increased shipments, up-to-date appliances having been erected, while the cargoes employed are such as to guarantee to the consignees of the goods the most prompt and careful shipment. Above is the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of France" at Southampton with a huge cargo of bacon, fruit and flour. The cranes are handled easily, carefully and speedily. There is no confusing hurry, but no time is lost as the cranes are hauled across the "Empress of France" to waiting motor trucks.

Grades of Entries Proved To Be Of An Excellent Standard

The corn show, was voted remarkable by the various authorities in attendance. All kinds of corn were on exhibition, where 228 ears of corn were shipped at their source last year; portraying a Canadian military air force reserve in the huge trading posts at Camp Borden; instructing the Royal Canadian Air Force and its equipment by experience and research at Ottawa; and snapping the famous Maritime Canadian tourist country at the Dartmouth, N.S., station—these are the main phases of the work of the Royal Canadian Air Force, as sketched by Group-Captain J. Cheese Production Is Rapidly Increasing to Meet Strong Demand In Britain and Other Markets

Cheese Board Will Be Retained

Ministry is Powerless to Discriminate Between Nearby and Terior Supplies

It was a bright idea on the part of the United States Department of Agriculture to demand that clover and alfalfa seed be claimed to influence the country of origin. There has been a considerable international trade in these seeds, supplies coming from European countries and from South America to Canada and the United States. Most of them were too tender to withstand a northern climate and heavy losses were frequently the result. Under the new rule Canada is likely to benefit as our northern growth and will have the preference over that from the south. Particularly is alfalfa will this advantage be exercised and a premium of ten or twenty per cent may be realized. To further strengthen Canada's position the United States Department of Agriculture announces that red clover and alfalfa seed entering this country must be labelled in a manner similar to that required by the United States Seed from the United States will be stained in red to show one per cent colored orange. Seed from England, France, northern Europe and Chile will be stained green as not fully winter hardy in Canada, except possibly on the Pacific Coast. The red-stained seed from Italy, Africa and Asia is considered least desirable for Canadian conditions. The seed producing industry already well established on Canadian farms, will be given encouragement through this method of distinguishing between hardy and tender strains that should in the course of a few years build up an export trade instead of dep~nding as heretofore on foreign supplies.

Find Old Cannon

Two ancient cannon, said to have been brought overboard from a British man-of-war when she went aground in the year 1806, have been discovered in the harbor of Honolulu. The guns which were dis covered lying in 15 feet of water are being examined with keenness by other sea growth. The discovery was made by an army officer from Fort Kamehameha.

Eels have been shipped by parcel post in a jar of water charged with ice from Florida to Copenhagen, Denmark. The package was twenty five cents

There is indication of a growing consumer preference in Canada and an increased demand for this product in many countries. The industry, which became thoroughly established with the earliest settlements in the country and continued for long as one of the main supports of Eastern Canadian agriculture, tended to suffer as milk became diverted to build up the condensed milk industry as well as from the increasing demands for cream and ice cream in cities, but would seem to be once more in the process of being built up along sound lines. This is due to some measure to the remarkable progress which is being made in the dairy industry in Western Canada as well as to stimulating effected in various measures in the Eastern provinces.

The total production of factory cheese in Canada in 1926 was 176,259,346 pounds with a value of $24,712,345, an average of 14.02 cents per pound. This was an increase of nearly thirty million pounds over the previous year and of over twelve million dollars in value. The increase of the product was the largest for any year back to 1917 and only a little below the record established in 1904, while it exceeded its value by $35,000,000. The output of Ontario factories constituted 57 per cent and of Quebec factories 30 per cent of the total production of factory cheese in Canada.

Without much doubt the Canadian cheese industry could be made productive of yet greater revenue. The Canadian farmer, by his skill and conscientiousness, established its superiority at international shows and is in high favor. There is every evidence of steadily increasing demands from the United Kingdom and the purchases of this country already made of but very small shipments to the many other countries where it is similarly favorably known. There is being done in stimulating sales in England a month large export trade could be developed with a score of other countries

Game Birds Increasing

Hungarian Partridges Are Thriving in Western Provinces

Hungarian partridges imported and released in the various districts of Saskatchewan and Manitoba two years ago, are reported to have taken well to their new surroundings.

Unlike native grouse and chickens, the new birds are not subject to the cycle of scarcity, according to Dr. H. J. Merkley, secretary of the Manitoba Game Protective League. He states that there were at first many who believed that the Hungarian birds would drive out the native fowl, but such was not the case.

In Alberta the birds have quite paired until they have a three-months' open season with a bag limit of 75 birds. The game is from an importation made in 1909

The new birds are very prolific, having from 20 to 22 eggs and a nesting for a brood of 20. In March of this year, under supervision of the mast tobe Game Protective League, five pairs were released upon the isolated farm three miles from the nearest neighbor on the October 1, the League had reports of the sawys totalling around 100 birds. No others had been released within 100 miles of this farm.—Moose Jaw Times

A Talking Letter

Noted German Physicist Invents Method for Reproducing Human Voice on Note Paper

A talking letter has been invented by the noted German physicist, Carl Reinmoeberg, who announces he has discovered a method of photographing the human voice. The principal is similar to that of the dictaphone, except that the voice is reproduced upon "multi" leaves—a cellulose by-product.

A page of "multi" similar in size to ordinary note paper will hold 15 minutes dictation and the "talking letters" can be placed in envelopes and mailed. The recipient inserts the letter in an apparatus somewhat like a phonograph, which reproduces the original voice.

Prof. Rasmussberg also is working upon "talking book."

Progress Change In King George's Title

Deletion of Term "United Kingdom" Endorsed by Conference

A change in the title of His Majesty the King is recommended in the report of the Inter-Imperial relations committee adopted by the Imperial Conference. In this important alteration the term "United Kingdom" disappears. The change, it is explained, is necessitated by the Irish Free State coming as an autonomous, self-governing Dominion.

Here is the present title of His Majesty:

"His Most Excellent Majesty George the Fifth, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions Beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India."

The proposal was endorsed at the plenary session of the conference.

There is no major element of doubt in regard to business has been removed and the outlook is one of a sounder character.

"The improvement in industry and commerce, which has been a feature of the current year, continues, and is perhaps more strikingly manifested in railway traffic, while wholesale trade is appreciably better than last year, and retail trade has improved despite the difficulties of transportation in rural districts through a prolonged period of wet weather. Manufacturing operations on the whole are good.

RUTH AND NAOMI

Golden Text: Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God—Ruth 1:16.

Lesson: Book of Ruth.

Devotional Reading: 1. Corinthians 13:1-7.

Explanations and Comments

1. The Beginning of the Story, verses 1:14.—A severe famine in Bethlehem, Ephrath, his wife Naomi, and their two sons, to the land of Moab. There they settled and the sons married two daughters of Moab, Ruth and Orpha. Two years passed. Father and sons found their graves in the alien soil Naomi determined to return to her native home in eastern Greek farewells seldom take place in the Oriental, and Ruth and Orpah carried out the usual customs when they accompanied Naomi a short distance on her way. When Naomi thought they had gone far enough to show her filial respect, she stopped to dismiss them. They wept as Naomi bade them to return to her mother's home. Orpha kissed her mother in law, "and returned to her people." Ruth's characteristic reply. But Ruth clung to her.

"There is a great deal of affection in the world like the affection of the pair. It is sincere and honest, but it does not rise to the rare opportunity of the critical hour. It makes the world a sweeter and more friendly place, but it does not dazzle us with the sudden shining of some unbelievable devotion. It retains a great deal which is lost by the great literatures of the world. It loses a great deal which is won by those who know everything in the name of a supreme devotion. We have only kind thoughts for Orpah, but after all she missed the one opportunity to be incorporated into the life of a people and become second the highest ethical and spiritual life in the world."—(Dr. J. M. H. Hugh.)

The Prince, as a junior midshipman on the battleship Hindustan, was found by a lieutenant in the ward-room, sacred to the ranks of sub-lieutenants and upwards.

"What's your name?" demanded the lieutenant, "and what the deuce are you doing in the wardroom?"

The Prince said to his feet—"Wales, sir," said he. "The orders brought me in here. I hope you don't mind frightfully."

Notable Ceremony At Imperial Conference

Paul Kruger's Travelling Wagon Given Back to South Africa

One of the most notable ceremonies held during the visit of the Dominion Premiers to England for the Imperial Conference was the conferment of the freedom of London on Premiers J. B. M. Hertzog, J. G. Coates, and W. F. Massey at the Guildhall, and the subsequent luncheon at Mansion House, where the Lord Mayor offered Premier Hertzog the travelling wagon used by Paul Kruger, president of the Transvaal Republic at the time of the Boer War, which Lord Kitchener originally presented to Lord Bearsted, former Lord Mayor, who afterward presented it to the city.

The South African Prime Minister, in accepting the gift on behalf of the Union, said the act of friendship and good will will be deeply appreciated for the motives inspiring it. The wagon was brought to London as a proof of Britain's victory in the Boer War and it would, he said, be returned to the country of its origin, and that Britain had been defeated by friendship.

Referring to the Imperial Conference, Premier Hertzog said:

"Our conference has been to build and not to destroy. I leave London with full satisfaction that our achievement will prove a lasting success and a pleasure to us all personally and jointly."

Heavy Wheat Yields

High Yields Reported From Many Parts of Alberta

Further reports to the Alberta Department of Agriculture record many heavy fields of wheat. Alex. Geddis at Majorville, reports 38 bushels per acre on 100 acres; H. Sorenson, of Ledger, had 37 bushels on 104 acres; M. Martin, of Strome, had 33 bushels on 100 acres and H. Linde, of Gwynne, had 43 bushels on 30 acres. D. Morgan, at Heisler, averaged 38 bushels on 200 acres; Allan Gallinger, at Clairmont, in the Grande Prairie district, made a 46 bushel average on 220 acres and many other growers had similar yields. The 160-acre farm of Dr. Wm. Gedde, at Edmonton, yielded an average of 60 bushels to the acre.

PARLIAMENT IS PREPARING FOR EARLY SESSION

Ottawa.—With the opening of Parliament only a few days away the cabinet is nearing the second hearing daily. The speech from the throne which will be delivered on December 15, is in the course of preparation and it is understood that it has been the subject of cable communication between Premier King and his cabinet in Ottawa.

Announcement is expected very shortly of the awarding of the steamship contract which will complete Canada's obligations under the West Indies treaty. The tariff concessions necessary to implement the treaty have passed by Parliament at its last session but the special steamship service, which forms a part of Canada's bargain, comprised the only thing which kept the treaty from being fully in effect. Demands from Greek revision adds. But Ruth clung to her.

"There is a great deal of affection in the world like the affection of the pair. It is sincere and honest, but it does not rise to the rare opportunity of the critical hour. It makes the world a sweeter and more friendly place, but it does not dazzle us with the sudden shining of some unbelievable devotion. It retains a great deal which is lost by the great literatures of the world. It loses a great deal which is won by those who know everything in the name of a supreme devotion. We have only kind thoughts for Orpah, but after all she missed the one opportunity to be incorporated into the life of a people and become second the highest ethical and spiritual life in the world."—(Dr. J. M. H. Hugh.)

To Adopt New Methods

New Zealand Will be the First to Adopt New Plan of Empire Communication

Edinburgh.—The most distant of the Dominions, New Zealand, may be the first to adopt the new methods of communication which were indicated in the report of the Imperial conference premiers' committee on inter-Imperial relations—a system of personal contact, both in London and in the Dominion capitals, to supplement the present system of inter-communication by reciprocating in the supply of information on affairs requiring joint consideration

Speaking at G. Coates, speaking here today, announced the intention of the New Zealand Government to consider methods of putting into early effect the suggestions in the report for the establishment of personal contact between the Dominions and Great Britain and the Dominions between them selves.

The plan indicated in the report of the premiers' committee for the appointment of special representatives who will keep the governments in touch they are attached adequately informed of the policies of their home governments

W. J. Bowser Retires

Former Premier of British Columbia Withdraws as Candidate for Party Leadership

Kamloops, B.C. — W. J. Bowser, former premier of British Columbia and for a number of years a prominent figure in provincial politics, definitely announced his retirement as a candidate for the party leadership at a session of the Conservative convention.

Mr. Bowser's decision to retire, it was explained by his friends in his statement given out under his authority, was reached in order that "a split in the party might be avoided."

"He did what believes he could have carried the convention by a small majority," according to the statement, "but in so doing he would cause a serious split in the party. At his age he did no wish to undertake the difficult task resulting from such a break and he felt in any case that for the good of the party, he should retire."

Condemns American Films

India Protest Against Pictures of "Negro Good Enough"

London.—Approbation that the Imperial Conference does not ignore the gravity of the situation arising from America's dominance of the world film markets is expressed in reports from India.

"No language is too strong," says the Times of India in an editorial cabled here, "to condemn the films with which America is plaguing India.

Hindoo members of the Legislature have demanded that the Government prevent a continuance of "this evil stream of misrepresentation," and have been told that it was not possible. The newspaper concludes that the remedy is possible unless the authorities are prepared to take ruinous action.

Obtain Aviators' Certificates

Two Women Members of London Flying Club Pass Tests

London.—Once more women have obtained aviators' certificates, at the Stag Lane Aeroplane Club. They are Lady Bailey, wife of the South African millionaire, Sir Abe Bailey, and Miss Norah O'Brien. Both are members of the London Flying Club, and passed their qualifying tests in a two-seater Moth. The tests included landing and taking off, cutting a figure of eight in the air, gliding on a specified height and landing with the engine shut off.

Saskatchewan Sells Bonds

Regina.—Sale of 20-year 4½ per cent Saskatchewan bonds at 93 has been announced by Premier Gardiner. With the exception of one sale in July, 1925 it is the best price received in several years. The Dominion Securities Corporation, Toronto, was the purchaser.

Contrary to general opinion, American Indians are no longer a vanishing race. Their numbers in the United States are increasing.

Initial Payment of Forty Cents for Pool Oats

Regina Initial payment on all grades of pool oats will immediately be increased by six cents per bushel according to a decision arrived at by the central board of the Canadian Wheat Pool This will raise the initial price basis No 2 C W oats in store at Fort William to 40 cents per bushel

The change of price will take effect November 29 at all country elevators Pool members who have already delivered and received their initial payment on the 34 cents basis, will receive the additional payment immediately on the surrender of their grower's certificate All cent certificates should therefore be turned in at the earliest possible moment.

This decision has been brought about by the altered situation on the market for oats. At the time the initial payment was set, conditions did not appear to warrant any change from the initial payment set last year. Market conditions in regard to the domestic demand for seed and feed oats have since developed, that have led the board to the conclusion that an increase on the initial payment may now be made with safety and advantage to coarse grain pool members

Mennonites Leave Canada

Objecting to School Laws, a Party of Mennonites Leave for South America

Winnipeg.—Settlement ties of 50 years were broken recently when 250 Mennonites from Manitoba settle have begun a long journey to Paraguay, South America

Those leaving the settlements are members of a group which has repeatedly expressed dissatisfaction with the educational laws of the province, which, they allege, interfere with the Mennonite religious beliefs.

The Mennonites will proceed to New York and sail from there for their new home under auspices of a New York land company

The exodus may be the forerunner of the departure of considerable leaders state. Many others in the settlements in Manitoba will join the group in Paraguay if conditions there are found satisfactory.

Germany Ready To Help

New Up to France to Show Appreciation Says Chancellor Wirth

Berlin.—Former Chancellor Wirth declared in the Reichstag that Germany's entry into the League of Nations and German readiness to promote stabilization of the French currency were national sacrifices. His reason that the country was ready to appreciate this fact and that it was the duty of the German parliament to declare before the whole world this "these sacrifices demand French concessions" was greeted with thunder of applause.

Dr. Wirth resumed: "Now France has the floor, and must show if she intends to serve European solidarity or whether she intends instead again of a single nation."

U.S. Trade Isolation

Washington.—Trade isolation is a dubious prescription for the remedy of the ills from which France suffers in the opinion of the United States Chamber of Commerce foreign commerce department. Surveying the French economic problems of the 15-year period, 1918-1914, in a statement here, the department also assailed the theory that the wealth of the money of the foreign buyer and that prices are fixed at Liverpool.

May Withdraw Allied Control

Paris.—Early withdrawal of inter-allied control of Germany's military affairs from the Versailles Treaty supervision by the League of Nations, is now looked upon as certain in French official circles. The French and German governments it was said by a high authority, have virtually agreed as to the means whereby this change may be made.

Waterways Report

Ottawa.—Canada's attitude on the perplexing problems of deep water development of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Waterways, indicated by the published report of the joint board of Canadian and American engineers, probably will receive the consideration of the Dominion Government as soon as the report is fully complete.

Australia Likely To Establish Wheat Pool

Would Have Less Difficulty Than Canada Says G. W. Robertson

Australia's wheat industry is increasing its wheat production at a great rate and is definitely moving toward the establishment of a wheat pool system such as is operated in Canada, according to George W. Robertson, of Regina, secretary of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool. Mr. Robertson, along with other officials of the Canadian pools, recently returned from a visit to the Antipodes and has since been here reviewed the present system of marketing in Australia.

Australia at the present time has voluntary pools and plans now are under way to institute the contract system and possibly a central selling agency along similar lines to the Canadian pools.

In organizing contract pools, Mr. Robertson believes Australia would have less difficulty than that experienced in Canada, owing to the non-existence of a grain exchange.

Electrified Eggs Latest Idea

Liverpool.—Electrified eggs, guaranteed to keep for years and designed to add to keeping down the cost of living, have been placed on the British market. This invention, by which eggs are sterilized by means of an electrically heated oil bath, makes it possible, it is claimed, to keep eggs almost indefinitely.

Settle Pacific Cable Dispute

Premiers' Committee of Imperial Conference Has Revised Agreement

Ottawa Powers of the Dominion Government are increased and powers of the British Government are diminished as regards control of the Pacific Cable under the new agreement made by the Premiers' committee of the Imperial Conference in London Nov 7 instead of three members will represent the British Government on the board and the chairman will be appointed by agreement between the partner governments instead of by the British Government solely.

The revision of the agreement marks the end of a dispute which has been going on for years regarding the management of the Pacific Cable between Canada and Australasia. The various Dominion Governments interested were represented on the board and will share the profits on operation of the cable. Coincident with the revision of the agreement a new rate between the west coast of Vancouver Island and New Zealand and Australia has been opened, doubling the facilities.

Leonid Krassin Dead

Soviet Diplomat Was Victim of Pernicious Anaemia

London.—Leonid Krassin, Soviet charge d'Affaires in London, died here Nov. 24.

Friends of Krassin who saw him recently were shocked at his death. He appeared in good spirits and seemed to be shaking off the pernicious anaemia from which he had long suffered.

At the Foreign Office in Downing street, tribute was paid to M. Krassin as a sensible and responsible diplomat who, if he had not died, undoubtedly would have brought about improved relations between Russia and Great Britain. It was said that Krassin's great value to Moscow was that he commanded the respect and confidence of the British financial world.

Franco-German Commission

Suggestion of Premier King for Boundary Commission is Well Received

London.—The Evening News says an indirect but important outcome of the Imperial conference is the proposal that shall constitute a Franco-German boundary commission, modelled on American - Canadian commission which would settle all questions relating to the Franco-German frontier. It is understood the suggestion originated with Premier Mackenzie King who submitted it to Lord D'Abernon, British ambassador at Berlin, who was much impressed with it and readily undertook to give it his practical support.

Appointed Translator at Geneva

Ottawa.—J. E. A. Johnstone, Vancouver, has been appointed translator in the International Labor Office of the League of Nations at Geneva.

New Unit for C.P.R. Coastal Fleet

To cope with the increasing Pacific coast traffic between Vancouver and Alaska, the Canadian Pacific have purchased the S.S. Empress of Port Melfort, which will be renamed the S.S. Nootka and placed in the Company's coastal service. This cruise vessel, with deadweight carrying capacity of 3,000 tons, sailed recently from Montreal for Newfoundland where she was scheduled to load with steel and proceed to Vancouver via the Panama canal.

INITIAL PAYMENT OF FORTY CENTS FOR POOL OATS

WILL APPROACH COMPANIES IN WAGE DISPUTE

Montreal.—"No reason for confinement exists," declared W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, when questioned in regard to the railway situation in Canada, caused by a ballot of conductors, trainmen and yardmen which refused a recent award of a conciliation board which refused them a wage increase. Some 900 representatives of these employees met in session here.

Mr. Lee made his statement when he was questioned tonight as to the prospects of a strike developing.

"Matters with us are conducted in a business like way," he said, and explained that following the termination of the conference, a committee would then be one far approach to the railway companies.

Light was thrown by a dispatch from Moncton on the attitude which would be taken by the locomotive engineers should a strike of conductors and trainmen result. George A. Stone, general chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, in an interview in the New Brunswick city, said the brotherhood was bound by a contract with the Canadian railways, and the executive officers of that union had announced that the engineers at least would observe the contract. Nevertheless, Mr. Stone said, the engineers must have regard for the safety of passengers and of other employees and this would undoubtedly be considered should there be a strike of the other branches.

Although no official statement was issued from the conference it is understood the results of the recent referendum have been forwarded to the federal department of Labor.

Lord Byng's Farewell To Canadian Scouts

Read at Garrard Council Meeting by Viscount Willingdon

Ottawa. — "Goodbye; good luck; good scouting."

This was Byng of Vimy's farewell to the Boy Scouts of Canada, as he read at the first general council of the Boy Scouts Association under Lord Byng's successor, Viscount Willingdon, last night. It was revealed for the first time as chairman and briefly expressed his pleasure in acting as the active of chief scout for the Dominion Satisfactory progress was reported to the chief scout. Growth in the Boy Scouts in Canada now exceeds 10,000. A congratulatory report was read from Sir Alfred Pearce, of the Imperial Boy Scouts Association, who toured Canada last spring.

The message was sent by residents of Godhaven, Greenland, to Ireland and from there to Copenhagen it thanked Mr. Wendt and Messrs. Harvey Gibson, Owen and Mackenzie in the Government office for organizing the broadcast, which was of music and messages from natives. The broadcast was picked up on a short wave set.

Net Planning League

Moscow.—On the eve of his departure for Germany, George Tchitcherin, the Soviet Foreign Minister, told the newspapermen that his recent meeting with Tewfik Rushdi Bey at Odessa was not concerned with the creation of an Asiatic or any other league, and no agreement directed against other powers was concluded by them.

EDMONTON ALBERTA

Invest in a Sound Alberta Industry Managed by Local Men of Proved Integrity and Ability—

ALBERTA will be one of the greatest oil fields in the world. Geologists and experts alike agree on this. The Royalties paid to Alberta is now processing $3,000,000 per year to the Alberta Treasury.

Refinery in the U.S.A. have paid large dividends and the new process of extracting gasoline will double the profit realized in refining. This will be employed in BETHLEHEM OIL AND REFINERIES, LTD.

The necessity of our proposition will appeal to the investor who realizes that these pioneer enterprises in industry, based on proven natural resources, reap the harvest.

It is well known by most people that whatever business or used thing is cheap, together with the high cost of living, it is a sound, profitable thing to make any money for and sure. The only thing we think is to make a good investment.

No other stock is this industry, but the common stock of the Company. All shares are sold at the ordinary $1 each at present and the subscription will be limited to 75,000 shares.

The proceeds obtaining of shares at $1.00 per share (the present price) will be used more fully in the development of the property and to erect a large refinery.

A Blow At Tradition

Introducing Modernity in Turkey With a Bang

Imperial tradition again has received a rude blow from modern Turkey.

For one night the sublime porte, the famous edifice from which Grand Vizirs once ruled their destinies, was transformed into a dancing hall

The Governor of Constantinople, Ibrizmas Ikmal Bey, chose this historic relic of the old regime as the place in which to give a ball celebrating the third anniversary of the new Republican regime.

One of the most noteworthy features of this occasion was the fact that Madame Ikmal Bey, unveiled and in full evening dress, received in line with her husband, the Governor, and other officials.

This was the first time that a Turkish woman had been in the receiving line of an official affair.

She smiled at them both, "I couldn't say that so easily," she explained brightly, "It it wasn't that I'd read, maybe, I'd have said that such things were particularly wished. I recognized them immediately as the plants that were always hanging in me. John and Mrs. Adams misunderstood me if I went out and didn't go home, until late in the morning. They thought there couldn't be any place decent for a girl to be after half past ten. If I took a swallow out of their flasks the boys disliked me when I drew a line they mustn't cross, and said I was fooling or that I wouldn't take the swallow. And a lot of men and women who didn't have the good time when they were young that I tried to have were curious of me because I happened to be young in those days instead of them, so they said I must be bad like all other modern girls. That's the way you count them up. You know—Misunderstanding, Distrust and Envy. I've always had the three of them in my mind, but I haven't had people, before, to whom I could talk about the things I really feel. I've had them with, and their main line of talk has been, 'Give me a kiss.'

"And," Brandon urged, quickly, "your response to that 'kiss', as you say, has been?"

Joanna considered a moment. Then she said, as if she were speaking with judicial concern: "It doesn't sound right, I know, but my idea has always been that today a girl shouldn't be afraid of a kiss, because it's better to give and take them, and know what they amount to, than it is to think about them all the time and then take them too seriously, like girls used to do."

Eggleston was silent. Brandon after he had toyed for a moment, with a fork, deftly turned the conversation into a different channel. He invoked the character of the people Joanna had met the night before, at Tremor's.

"And you think," Eggleston asked, "that these people are most desirable? That they represent the better things of life, and follow the paths along which a young girl should tread?"

"Yes," Joanna agreed, "and when again the sleep comes from the depths of the bags, salt bed; "If you please, Martha."

Martha, very neat and prim in gray morning garb, rose from the edge of the chaise lounge where she had perched silently through two hours waiting for the youthful form in the bed to stir, and pulled the curtain ropes. Like a yellow flood the tropic-figuring Riveria sun burst through the rest of broad windows that covered rest from he room in a semi circle, and shot off together by the heavy plush drapes. Bewildering, outside odors of orange, mimosa and flowers filled the room with the sunshine, each separate fragrance seeming to bring up from the calm Mediterranean down below some ineffable perfume of March morning romance. When Martha turned from the window the voice from the bed, not sleepy now, but alert, rippling:

"I ought to be dreadfully cross with you, you know, for letting me sleep so late," it said in mock severity; "but I suppose you will say that I looked comfortable you hated to disturb me."

Martha, American from head to toe despite her "mademoiselle" and her French ribbons and ruffles, looked down on the girl in the big bed, gleaming, glittering bed of golds and pinks and blues mounted on a dais under a gorgeous canopy of gold lace against pink taffeta. Martha seemed to hover, for a moment, at the edge of a scolding, but dutifully remembered that, after all, the girl in the bed, whose eyes were twinkling up at her, was "Mademoiselle" and she was Martha. So all she said was:

"Mademoiselle did not return from Prince Michael's until three o'clock this morning."

"That's so!" agreed the voice, complacently, as if suddenly remembered. "There was an affair last night, wasn't there? And something happened. I know something happened, because something always does when Michael feels the urge. And Michael was urged, last night, Martha. Very urged. While you run my bath I will try to remember what about. Maybe it was me. If so, I will tell you about it while I splash."

While Martha busied herself with the taps over the pink marble pool in a glistening shower-room, the girl in the bed sat up, drew up her knees until her elbows could rest on them and her chin on her wrists. Her brow wrinkled a little as if trying to remember. The warm sunshine wrapped the caddied figure in yellow splendor. This shadow blew from the diamond patterned bars of the clematis trellis outside the window ramped through the filmy, diaphanous clothes of the girl's pajamas and twisted about her like mischievous fairy arms. Suddenly the puckered frown cleared and a light shone in her eyes that was reflected as rippled at red lips.

Martha turned off her taps, satisfied that that the water was just warm enough—her mistress ever refused to brave a cold shower—and went up to the bed. A fawing yellow robe of transparent silk over arm, the satin bondels' nudes in her hand. While she knelt at the dais to slip the mules on bare feet, and then stood to receive the silen form in the fold of the robe, the voice promised:

"If you haven't made the water too cold, Martha, I'll tell you what it was that happened last night as soon as I'm in it. If it's cold you shan't know a thing."

When the robe had fallen and the pajamas had been tossed rippled into a ball, at Martha's hand, and the splashing in the marble pool was begun, Martha was merrily informed:

LARGE PIMPLES ITCHED BADLY

On Face, Shoulders and Arms. Cuticura Heals.

"My trouble began with pimples breaking out on my face, shoulders and arms. They were large, hard and red, and festered, and scaled over, causing disfigurement. The pimples ached badly and when I scratched their eruptions formed. My clothing irritated the breaking out on my shoulders. The trouble lasted for some time.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they afforded relief in a short time. I continued the treatment and after using four cakes of Soap and four boxes of Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Grace M. Ward, Thetford Corner, Vt., Aug. 15, 1925.

Little Helps For This Week

It is more blessed to give than to receive.—Acts xx. 35.

The heart grows rich in giving.

All its wealth is living grain,
Seeds, which mildew in the garden,
Scattered, fill with gold the plain.
Is thy burden hard and heavy?
Do the steps drag wearily?
Help to bear thy brother's burden,—
God will bear both in mercy.

Every good act is charity. Putting a wanderer in the right way is charity. Removing stones and thorns from the road is charity. Smiling in your brother's face is charity.

—Mahomet.

To him who gives but a drop of water to the poor unselfishly, it will be a living fountain in paradise. Therefore seek to mingle with the stream of life, the broken-hearted, that then be not too great a stranger to some of the angels who will greet thee in heaven.

Community Welfare

Lord and Lady Willingdon Become Patrons of Canadian Social Hygiene Council

Community welfare and its attendant social problems are matters in which Canada's new Governor-General and his family have always been deeply interested. Last year, His Excellency, Lord Willingdon, was chief active head of the British Social Hygiene Council, resigning only when his appointment to Ottawa last made it necessary for him to sever his connections with the movement in the Old Land.

One of the first things he did, however, after his arrival in Ottawa was to enquire about the social hygiene work being carried on in the Dominion and it has now been announced that their interest will still be preserved by the Canadian Social Hygiene Council.

Treat Colds Externally

For any throat, bronchitis or deep chest colds, rub Vicks VapoRub briskly over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel.

Vicks acts in two ways—both direct: absorbed like a liniment and inhaled as a vapor. A spoonful of it for the cold is worth a lot of "stuff."

HOW TO RELIEVE CHILDREN'S COLDS

Avoid Serious Results by Using Baby's Own Tablets

When a child shows the first symptoms of a cold, such as sneezing, redness of the eyes, clogged or running nose, prompt measures for relief may avert serious results. Mothers should always have on hand some simple, safe and effective remedy for immediate use.

Baby's Own Tablets act quickly, contain no opiates or narcotics, are guaranteed harmless. Mrs. Joseph Cadieux, Hoiyoke, Mass., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my children and find them a very satisfactory medicine. When my little boy had a cold I gave him Baby's Own Tablets at night and he was well next day. I give them to the children for constipation and they always do good. I think Baby's Own Tablets are much easier to give a child than liquid medicine. I recommend the Tablets to all mothers who have small children and believe they should always be kept on hand."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

STRATFORD WOMAN

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Stratford, Ontario. —"After my first baby was born I started to work on the tooth day and did a big washing on the twelfth day. Being so young (I was married at 19) I did not know what was the matter, so let it go until I was all run-down, weak and nervous, and had a bad displacement. For nearly two years I could not sleep and I would always complain of having 'had a hard day' or a 'hard week.' My mother is taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during the Change of Life and she recommended it to me. After taking two bottles I began to get a little sleep and to feel better and I have never left off since, except for about three months. I can safely say I have taken thirty bottles since my second baby was born. I think it is a splendid medicine for any woman's trouble with any female complaint and very few girls my fourth as I was so much stronger. I am now able to do my work alone, but I am still taking the Vegetable Compound as I am nursing baby."—Mrs. Owen Fahy, 48 Cherry Street, Stratford, Ontario.

Weddings

PREY—MOSER

Josephberg church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday, November 24, when Miss Augustine, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Mohr became the bride of Mr. Julius Prey, popular young farmer of the Good Hope district.

With Mrs. Munson, aunt of the bride, presiding at the organ in the absence of the regular organist, the bridal party was ushered in at three o'clock to the strains of Lohengrin and were met at the altar by the pastor of the congregation, Rev. Mr. Hoffman, who read the service of the single ring ceremony.

The bride was very girlish in a simple frock of white satin with flowing veil held in place with a band of orange blossoms. The only ornament worn was a rope of pearls, and carrying a sheaf of white carnations.

The bride's attendant, Miss Angela Frey, sister of the groom, wore a frock of pink georgette, with appointments to match, and carried a sheaf of pink carnations. The groom and his attendant, Mr. Leopold Thomas, cousin of the bride, were conventional blue.

Immediately after the ceremony the assembled guests, seventy-five in number, repaired to the home of the bride's parents where a beautiful wedding supper awaited all. Many beautiful wedding presents gave evidence of the esteem of their many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Frey will reside on the farm of the groom in Good Hope and they will be at home to all their friends shortly.

Best wishes of a host of friends accompany them on the journey through life.

THE LEGION'S CALL TO SERVICE

To the Editor:

May I through your columns make an appeal to all former service men to join the Canadian Legion.

This appeal is addressed to all men who have previously been unattached to any soldier organization or who joining at one time have attached have drifted away, feeling that in the past there was much to censure and little to praise in any such organizations. Personally I believe that all the soldier organizations have done good work. At any rate the Canadian Legion, born of the desire of former service men for unity, has none of the taints of which such men rightly or wrongly complain.

The Legion has already enrolled under its banner over ninety per cent of the older soldier organizations and desires to enroll every man who has at any time served in any of the regular or auxiliary forces of the Crown.

There are today hundreds of men outside the military hospitals who are fighting a losing battle against ill-health or premature old age and fighting it because they cannot prove that their condition originated on service. In France as you know the greatest possible strain was put on every man's physical and mental capacity. The efforts are felt today in greater or lesser degree by every man who served. The loss of health or efficiency can never be made up but will increase as the years go by. On that account many of your comrades need your help today, still others will need it tomorrow.

The Canadian Legion is actively engaged in helping all such men through its central organization, the Dominion Command at Ottawa. By the achievement of unity through the Canadian Legion the just claims of all former service men can be presented with greater force to Parliament and proper grievances redressed. But to carry out this work effectively it is essential that all former service men should become members of the Legion. The greater portion of your dues will be forwarded to the Dominion Command to carry on the work. The remainder is divided between the Provincial Command to carry on the work provincially and the branch you may join to enable it to carry on the work locally.

Reflect for a moment. How long would you have carried on in France without the wonderful spirit of comradeship which you found everywhere and which is probably the only bright memory you now retain of your war experiences. You missed it when you returned to civilian life. Take the opportunity to renew it with your former comrades in the Legion.

Help your old comrades who are suffering now. Join the nearest branch of the Legion. The dues are nominal; in this branch only three dollars a year. Your presence in the ranks of the Legion will be of the utmost value. And you yourself will experience again that peace of mind and sense of satisfaction which comes to all who answer the call to service.

D. HARPER, President,
Fort Saskatchewan Branch
Canadian Legion.

Here's a high school boy in love.

An Ode to My Fair Lady

O, little girl, far above me,
Sitting on top of the moon,
I ever long to enfold thee,
And have thee my own very soon.
O Diana, beautiful fairy,
Brother of Apollo the Great,
Set at the desolate dairy
The man who hath seen thee too late
Do you say you're an earth-borne maiden?
O, such me not, lovely one!
For you with cares are not laden,
And thy beauty dost rival the sun.
What matter if thou dost wear glasses?
And thy hair is not golden, but red:
Many things in this old world passes,
But my love will never be dead.

****

Customer—It's tough to pay 35c a pound for meat.
Butcher—Yes, but its tougher when you pay 35c a pound.

****

Viola—(when the lights went out in the show) O, I'm afraid in the dark.
Armour—Don't be afraid, I'm here.
Viola—But that's why I'm afraid.

****

Did you hear about Aubrey? He's a boy scout, you know, and he did so many good turns he got dingy.

****

He—I met a very interesting man today; he was a Buddhist.
She—Oh, I'd love to meet him. All my gwenainms are writing.

Kitty—(who knows Latin) Whenever I sit down like this for a quiet think, I feel how "Tempus fugit" is creeping on.
Katty—(who doesn't) I couldn't tell you the foreign name for 'em, but they're creepin' on me too.

And here's the latest one on Mr. Poade. He stopped his Ford on the street and went to cover the engine with a robe. A little boy, passing, remarked: "O never mind coverin' it up, I saw what it was."

The Sales Tax

Spokesmen for the various organizations throughout the country which are advocating reductions in Federal taxation, including Minister of the Income Tax, are stressing, not so much the need of reducing the burden borne by the individual taxpayer, but the necessity of encouraging investment in productive enterprises and in national works of development. Their main argument is that the Income Tax penalizes enterprise, drives people out of business, because of the heavy imposts on them, and discourages investment in industrial and development work—leading people rather to invest in non-operative industries—securities.

If this is the chief end to be achieved through a further reduction in taxation, and if the all important consideration is the stimulation of business and consequent greater employment of labor throughout Canada, then the Income Tax is not the only one which should be carefully examined to ascertain its effect on business and economic conditions. The Sales Tax, which imposes a five per cent (sovernment levy on business should be inquired into as well. The Sales Tax is one which the wage-earner, the man on a salary, the farmer, the manufacturer, the financial man, and those who are living on the interest from investments—must pass on to anyone else. They must pay to the Government on their personal incomes, and pay on purchases they make. In small amounts dependent upon the size of their purchase. In this respect it must be admitted that a properly graded tax on incomes is a fair method of taxation.

The Sales Tax, on the other hand, is, in the final analysis, paid only by the ultimate consumer, and the manufacturer, the financial magnate, the investor in bonds, mortgages and other securities, only pays to the extent that he is a consumer, and despite great wealth and large investments it may be that the ordinary man to-day, so much, or more so many clothes, than as the average wage earner or man on a salary. True, his clothing and food and furniture may cost more, but the extent of his purchases are more or less regulated by his needs.

The manufacturer of a certain article fixes his selling price. To that he adds five per cent Sales Tax which he is obliged to remit to the Government. But he collects this tax money back again from the jobber, wholesaler, the merchant to whom he sells his product. The manufacturer does not pay the Sales Tax himself. In like manner the jobber, wholesaler and merchant passes it on to the ultimate consumer, all as part of the cost of the article. The consumer, therefore, pays the tax to the Government, the others being middlemen in the process of collection.

This Sales Tax, therefore, operates directly to enhance prices in Canada and, consequently, to decrease the purchasing power of the people. It likewise imposes additional expense upon all business concerns in the matter of bookkeeping, collection, remittance, and interest paid on outstanding moneys.

It is a self-evident proposition that the removal of the Sales Tax would result in saving to every person in the Dominion, because all are consumers, whereas the removal of the tax on income would only benefit a comparatively small proportion of the population, and that portion which is best able to pay.

The removal of the Sales Tax, and the consequent lowering of prices which would automatically follow, would increase the purchasing power of people, leading to larger sales, and consequently increased production and more employment.

In a word, the effect of the removal of the Sales Tax would be just what the advocates of Income Tax abolition desire, namely, an added impetus in business, to production, to employment which would keep people in Canada, and to the whole all-round development of the Dominion, including the bringing of its wealth of natural resources into too through development.

On the other hand, if the Income Tax is abolished, and the Sales Tax retained, it will result in lowering the taxation imposed on accumulated and invested wealth without in the slightest degree benefiting the wage earner and man on a small salary, or that large body of our population whose incomes are below taxable amounts, but, those people will all still contribute heavily through the Sales Tax, which would continue as a drag on business expansion and national development.

If the financial requirements of the Dominion Treasury can stand it, reduce the Income Tax by all means, and, as proposed in a previous article in this column, provide for continued gradual reductions over a period of years. But one tax is to be abolished outright and the other retained, the removal of the Sales Tax would appear to confer the greater benefit, not only on business enterprise and works of development, but on the people of Canada as a whole.

John M. Browning Dies While Working on New Device

John M. Browning, world famous inventor of firearms, is dead in Belgium.

Browning went to Liege, Belgium, to perfect the latest Browning type "over and under" double-barrelled shotgun and the message telling of his death came from Liege. The new shotgun had one barrel above the other instead of horizontal barrels. It was to be manufactured in the Liege plant. It was this plant which in 1913 manufactured the millionth Browning automatic pistol. In honor of this achievement King Albert conferred upon Browning the title of Chevalier of the Order of Leopold.

Claims New Method of Making Steel

Germany Has Produced Metal Without Impurities and Defects

Discovery is claimed of a new steel, making process which yields a harder and at the same time more elastic metal than any made by existing methods.

The discovery, made in the laboratories of the German Dye Trust, is said to have resulted in the production of steel of that finest quality with none of the impurities and defects now unavoidable in the smelting process.

It is said the steel thus produced is cheaper to manufacture, and it is hoped that the new invention will place the German industry in a dominant position in the international market.

Four Vacancies In Senate

Deaths Occur of Two Senators in Ontario and Two in Quebec

Two ministerial vacancies occurred recently through the deaths of Senator Lougo Melinda Landry, and Senator Richard Blain, Brampton. Both senators were representatives of Ontario in the Upper Chamber. The late Senator Melinda was a Liberal while Senator Blain was a Conservative.

Four vacancies now exist in the red chamber. The other two are for the province of Quebec, brought about by the death this year of Senators H. L. David and Alfred Thibeaudeau.

Canada's Great Experiment In Preserving Buffalo Has Proved A Success Beyond Expectations

Canadians in every province cannot help but feel a thrill of pride when they learn that the grand herd of buffalo, at Buffalo National park, has been increasing so rapidly that, although four thousand head have in the past two years been shipped to and now the wild herd in the Northwest Territories there is still such a surplus over the numbers of Buffalo park that arrangements are being made to dispose of two thousand more. This simple statement means that the great experiment undertaken by Canada in 1907 has proved a success beyond the highest expectation of its advocates. It means that the niche prepared by historians for the buffalo alongside the dodo and other extinct species will not be required; it means that one of the largest and most magnificent mammals on the earth has been given a new lease of life; and, on the practicable, it means that this animal, which played such a large part in the days of the opening up of the middle west, has been brought back to assist Canadians in solving problems connected with the development of the far North.

The "return" of the buffalo means very much to citizens in all parts of Canada, as those who remember recollection or reading goes back to the eighties of last century will at once realize. Forty years ago buffalo robes were to be had more as much an institution in well regulated Canadian households as the ordinary blanket robes were in the Far East. One constituted a thick, warm rug for the small children to play on of lying in the winter time, and served also as a laprobe when the family went driving in winter, while the best one made a fine addition to dark and regal robes when displayed as a drape over the back of the sleigh. And, then, even in the coldest weather and most chilling snow landscape no unexported guest could be cold if a robe were used as a coverlet. For these robes, to do such defiant "buffalo" overcoat was a necessity.

This was the normal course of affairs until the middle eighties when the Canadian Pacific railway came in the fact that there were no more buffalo robes. They did not grow scarce by slow degrees. They simply disappeared from the market and could not be had at any price. Buffalo robes remained out of Canadian life until two years ago when a company thirty few specimens were available, because of the killing of the wild animals in the Dufferin park in the autumn of 1924.

Success has, of course, brought responsibilities. If the last buffalo were now dead and its skin mounted and neatly labelled in the Victoria Memorial Museum in Ottawa, certain Government officials would have been spared many of their anxious hours of the past ten years. For the Canadian buffalo did not remain an ornamental, spiritless "representative of a vanish A fence that would hold the most fierce of bulls. He came back with a bang! by prairie steer was nothing to a guy young buffalo; and the herd grew so fast that the pioneers of the park, in early 200,000 acres (roughly about thirteen miles square) became none years ago too small. Since that time the question of the best methods of disposing of the annual surplus of about two thousand animals has been one of the immediate problems of the Department of the Interior. Two thousand buffalo were slaughtered in 1924, nearly four thousand more, as already stated, were sent north in 1925 and 1926 to the big Wood Buffalo park near Fort Smith, Northwest Territories, and now, at the proper season, two thousand more are to be slaughtered under the most modern and humane conditions, and buffalo meat, hoofs, and robes will, to a limited extent, be again available.

The problems are many and varied. There are experiments in domestication, in cross-breeding with domestic cattle and trial and in dressing the hides. Progress is being made in all these and very definite success has attended the last-mentioned investigation. The old methods of tanning turned out a good robe but one a little too heavy and unfit for making up into overcoats, except for driving. The newer processes produce a soft, soft and pliable, and so much lighter than the old that men's overcoats now weigh from eight pounds up, according to the trimming. Buffalo robes have always been noted for their wearing qualities but these qualities are superior to those of old times, because the animals are not killed in summer but in early autumn, when the hide is in the best possible condition and the new hair is short and glossy and firmly anchored. The animals also are raised in prime condition as regards meat. The disposal of a portion of the herd in 1924 was Canadians a new taste of buffalo meat, which they had supposed was used chiefly for making pemmican, and when cutlets discovered that it was as nutritious and well flavored as the finest beef, and had moreover an alluring wild tang the taste for it rapidly developed.

It is as yet impossible to prophesy the full development of the buffalo industry under conditions but enough has been accomplished to show that the one time "lord of the plains" has returned to become another asset in the portant factor in Canadian life.

An official of the American Farm Bureau Federation, returning from a tour of rural districts in the United States, expresses surprise that he found almost no farmers with whiskers. "Not even the old men had them," the official may have started out with the statement's type of farmer in mind. That specimen is rare. Only a few degrees. They slinged disappeared from the market and could not be had at any price. Buffalo robes remained out of Canadian life until two years ago when a company thirty few specimens were available, because of the killing of the wild animals in the Dufferin park in the autumn of 1924.

Preserve Historic Churches

Large Sum of Money Voted to Preserve Famous Churches of London

It is not surprising that the British House of Commons has just voted, and by a large majority, to preserve to posterity a number of famous churches of London, which, while not capable of any longer serving any important utilitarian purpose, are nevertheless of such architectural beauty and historic interest that it is felt it would be almost a crime and sacrilege to demolish them.

Great Britain runs true Britannia! has had due and high regard for its old buildings. It has also had and preserved the churches. No country teems in greater degree with spots and places of historic interest. The action of the Parliament in voting to preserve fifty churches is therefore in keeping with the traditions of the land. It has not been done without opposition, however, and many will be considerable doing away with hundreds of historic interest. Parliament, it is said, has done one of the wisest things it has ever done. If necessary, before declining to do away with buildings or other places that are linked in historic interest to any degree with events and his tory in the country concerned

His Royal Highness, Prince of Wales, is going to stay a while when he comes to the west this time. It is said that he is going to stay two months or so, according to announcement made by W. L. Carlyle, manager of the Royal ranch, near High River, Alta. The Prince, he says, hopes to be in Canada next August.

Prof. Carlyle declared the Prince had been disappointed on his last journey in that he could only stay three weeks. He will spend a great deal of it, he said, on a pony, according to present plans.

Prof. Carlyle is leaving for England in January and will confer with the Prince.

Assisted Immigration

Policy is Fundamentally Wrong Says Toronto Professor

The policy of assisted immigration is fundamentally wrong because the people "who have to be assisted are not the best stock, mentally or physically," Dr. Peter Sandiford, professor of psychology, college of education, University of Toronto, told the 31st annual convention of the Winnipeg Teachers' Association.

Immigration, he said, should be determined through intelligence tests, since morality is determined by intelligence and health has a considerable bearing on it.

Prof. Sandiford referred to tests given in British Columbia to 10,000 school children which, he said, showed that those of Scottish origin were more intelligent than those of English or Irish stock.

Similar tests given Japanese and Chinese showed both those races were superior to whites in mentality, Prof. Sandiford added.

How To Avoid Germs

Less Hand-shaking is Advised by Health Commissioner

Less hand shaking, more germ shaking is the best health note sounded by Dr. Louis I. Harris, Health Commissioner, New York, who said that the traditional Anglo-Saxon form of greeting was good enough in its way but with pneumonia and influenza on the increase it was time for a change.

Persons addicted to demonstrations of friendship, Dr. Harris said, should observe two rules:

Avoid touching lips, nose or eyes after shaking hands."

"Rid not touch food after shaking hands. No matter how often the hands are washed, it is likely they are a bit soiled."

Timber and Other Reservations Now Being Thrown Open For Settlement Throughout Canada

To the homeseeker of limited means, bidding, purchases farewell in childhood scenes, the "newness" of the country to which he turns his face is one of its most appealing features. It means free or cheap land, social equality and opportunities for financial success and personal advancement that are particularly beyond his reach in his native environs. Canada has long been a fruitful field for homeseekers. The successes achieved by the many thousands who have ventured into this great Dominion have bestowed the settlement of the vast areas of free land once available. Free lands are now largely restricted to the outlying and rapidly retreating "frontier" regions of the so-called "newer" provinces.

In the rush and confusion attending the settling of such extensive areas it was inevitable, remarks the Manufacturers Association Bulletin issued by the Department of the Interior at Ottawa, that thoroughness could not at all times be maintained in the selection of suitable land. Hasty, ill-considered choices were thus often made which time and experience have proved to be unsuitable for agriculture. Settlers who were induced to take up land in districts which, on account of their remoteness, lack of transportation facilities, or other reasons, were unsuitable for settlement, have found themselves in a position of great disadvantage. Many of these settlers have left their homesteads, and lands reserved for sundry purposes but now thrown open. Timber and wild hay lands are being offered for cultivating or speculation and now forced on the market, probably represent the greatest proportion of the new areas available for settlement throughout the various settled parts of the mineral provinces.

Such tracts of new lands are no more than moral interest and value. They give the pioneer his opportunity to make a home and start afresh from the primitive and without having to face the economic and social disadvantages inseparable from delay by reason of remoteness or backwardness. Though such districts necessarily are a pioneer area, the more advanced surroundings make at once the amenities of the civilization provide scope for energy and industry of the settler and an outlet for his products. Opportunities in districts are alike available to the company, to bands and to those in adjacent and more crowded area

A Wealth of Pearly Peaks

The charm of the Canadian Rockies has cast a spell over the thousands who have journeyed to the mountains in search of health and pleasure. The majesty of such scenes that abound around Banff and Lake Louise has inspired many to set down their feelings in words. Mary Belle Hitch of Spokane, Wash., is one of the latest contributors to this literature of the Canadian Rockies. In a letter to her friend from the Rocky Mountain Park she writes:

Though I tarry by this tennis southern lay
And my thoughts are bright and sheery, still they wander up your way
Till they reach your Royal Rockies, with their wealth of pearly peaks.
Lakes of jasper, jade and sapphire, silver lakes and crystal creeking
Forest lure, that, lurks defiant, on a slope that clips a cloud
Loon, upon a boulder towering, pilot pine, so straight, so proud!
And the snow in all no vivid that I call the ortyge fur
As it blows from glen and glacier till I fairly feel I'm there!
Then I scan your prairie splendor, rich with fields of golden grain.
And of course "Home, Sweet Home" for a thousand U. P. Trails!
Wrench a sky of blue that's blending, as the sun is sinking low.
To a pink or purple luster, shot by flame and crystal glow;
And it makes me oh, so happy! Since delightful thoughts of you,
And it makes me ghostly happy, for I know 'tis all so true!
You're a wonderful Alberta, you're a blessing to the west,
And to Canada a credit; you're a "staple" barrel of BEST!

THE TONIC THAT GIVES STRENGTH

After Acute Diseases the Blood Must be Built Up Before Recovery is Complete

Fevers and other acute diseases like pneumonia and influenza, leave the patient weak, with thin blood and no strong nerves. The period of convalescence is often long and tiring, and years of poor health have frequently followed as left in influenza or an attack of influenza or pneumonia.

Much of this sort of misery could be avoided by taking steps to build up the blood so that it can carry its nourishment and other duties of the body to the nerves, they tend to resume the normal functional activities. To build up the blood and restore it to health, health-giving vitamins other medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. From first to last is to be if mission to improve the blood and thus restore good health and vigor.

The value of these pills in combating other ailments is shown by the statement of Mrs. Hebert O'Brien, Portsmouth, Ont., who says: "In Nov., 1923, I was stricken with pneumonia, and at the time but little hope was held out for my recovery. However with the best of care I was able to walk about after some months, but I did not recover my strength. The doctor said I was anaemic. My appetite was poor, I grew nervous and restless, I was decidedly pale and gradually gave up hope of ever being strong again. However, remembering that in my girlhood I had taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with decided success, I decided to try them again. By the time I had used two boxes there was no doubt the pills were helping me. Continuing them for a time was able to attend to my household duties. I continued taking the treatment until I had used twelve boxes, by which time I was enjoying better health than at any time in the previous ten years. In gratitude for what the pills have done for me, I feel it important in the hope that it may point the way to health to some other weak, ill-nourished woman."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cts. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

It is not beyond the realms of possibility that London some day may lose its proud position as the heart of the British Empire to a mighty city in Canada or Australia.

Officials at the recent Imperial conference say the seeds of the future of the Empire will continue, but they admit they are somewhat bewildered at visualizing the distant future and contemplated possibilities and developments under the new scheme of things that has gradually been growing.

Floor Alive With Sensations After Repeated Washings When Small Quantity Was Spilled

Once in a laboratory a tiny tube containing less than two thousandth of an ounce of radium was accidentally dropped on a hardwood floor and broke. With a camel's hair brush they swept up the radium. An Interesting Exhibit

The naval section of the Imperial War Museum in London, was opening recently. One of the most interesting things to be seen is the 6in. gun of the Lance, which fired the first shot at the Battle of Heligoland Bight on August 28, 1914. One wall of the gallery is inscribed with the names of every ship which flew the white ensign throughout the war.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

DECEMBER 11.

THE BOY SAMUEL

Golden Text: Speak, Lord; for Thy servant heareth. 1 Samuel 3:9.

Lesson: 1 Samuel chapters 1-3

Devotional Reading: Psalm 119: 9-16

Explanations and Comments

I. Samuel's Birth, verses 1-8. The Hebrew word translated "child" in verse 1 is "naar" and in the Bible it can be an infant and also to a man of forty. Josephus says Samuel had just completed his twelfth year when the news of the Lord came to him. If so, then he Lord visited the city before he died when he dedicated himself to the Lord's service. Samuel helped all in the practice of the temple and seemed to have been the special attendant of the high priest, as he slept in the temple courts.

The continuous growth of character from a child serving God, and to old age walking in the same path, is the great lesson which the story of Samuel teaches us. The child is father of the man," and all his long days as "bound each to each" by true religion Parkin chapter, and every turn the memory of it into an aids of holiness; that leaves a rich characterized, at the best, years have been squandered which do not return. Samuel is the pattern of child religion and service. How beautifully his simple obedience is expressed in the simple words His service was "unto the Lord," and it was "before Eli"; that is to say, he learned his work from the old man, and in obeying him he served God. The child's religion is largely obedience to human guides, but he serves God best by doing what he is told—by those appointed to our days by both parents and children." (Dr. Alexander Maclaren.

Five Rules For Happiness

Simple Things That Will Make Life Safer

Five simple rules for happiness were given recently in an address in Montreal by Dr. Charles Barker, former physician to ex-President Taft. They were as follows:

(1) "Cultivate the habit of always looking on the bright side of things.

(2) "Accept cheerfully the pleasures also allotted to you, bearing in mind that while you are in that place it is the best place on earth for you.

(3) "Throw your whole soul into your work. Do it as well as you are capable.

(4) "Form the habit of always using courteous things. The more kindness you give the more you get.

(5) "Adopt and maintain from day to day a simple childlike confidence in God as your Father."

FERGUSON WINS IN ONTARIO ON LIQUOR POLICY

Toronto—The Ferguson Government has emerged from the provincial election with a clear majority of 24 over all opposition.

Every cabinet minister was elected with the exception only of Hon. David Jaeckson, Minister without Portfolio, taken into the cabinet at the instance of Premier Ferguson who was defeated in East South by a 22-vote majority. Premier Ferguson's nephew of Hon. John Gilver, premier of British Columbia in his home-town although the latter's popularity in the province was reduced by the handsome majority of 1,241, though this was a gain of 1,241 majorities over the Liberal majority of 1,241, in the same South Mr. Ross—the People's Premier—polled a last fight in Pilots Grove but finally won by 11 majority.

An out-standing feature of the election was the defeat in Kingston of West Lyon majority of Hon. W. J. Kidd, attorney-general in the late government, on the ground with Mr. Ferguson on liquor matters and for a non-Prohibition candidate.

The results of the larger urban centres were: Toronto, 12 seats for government control, rather unexpectedly; the entire Toronto representation lining up on that side, and all the three Ontario seats, the three Hamilton seats, the two London seats and two Windsor seats.

It is anticipated Premier Ferguson will shortly issue a statement dare stating the early calling together of the newly elected legislature for the purpose of giving effect to his personal pledge to the government control of liquor, a plank of which has not yet been determined, and on which he has announced he desires to take the real bench—judgment of the Province.

Most of the foreign minister's direction dealt with French relations with Germany. Discussing an eventual understanding with Germany, he said that only a real understanding of differences, an that they could stay settled, would make for permanent peace.

"Since differences do exist Germany still exist," he said, "but at least we are talking with Dr. Stresseman (the German foreign minister) and every thy mark, measure."

U. F. A. Convention

Larger Number of Resolutions to Come Before Annual Meet

Calgary. The fall will be an unusually notable birthday in the number of resolutions that will be presented at the annual convention of the United Farmers of Alberta, which opens in Edmonton on January 11. The increase in the farmers' non-political organization has been largely due to the fact that it has become practically the "only game in town" for those interested in agricultural affairs. Parliament. That phrase has been in general use in the Province for a number of years, but it has never been applied with such telling effect as during the past year.

The West Coast also has had the effect of stimulating the number of resolutions sent to the U. F. A., as all those bearing on the grain business have been referred to the board of the pool for attention. At the present time not half a dozen resolutions have been received for presentation to the U. F. A. convention.

Will Test Newest Wheat

Dominion Experimental Farms to Plant Record Seed Next Spring

Ottawa. — Plant stands at the Dominion experimental farm here have turned out a new variety of wheat named Reward which they say will supersede Marquis as Canada's premier wheat.

The new wheat it is understood, ripens two days earlier than Marquis has proved resistant to rust. In other greater yields are now because of the heavier weight of the kernels were grown at the experimental farm last summer averaged 45 pounds to the bushel. The new variety mills better than Marquis, an early ripening wheat performed recently at the farm producing a white flour, limits to Marquis.

Seed of Reward wheat will be planted at the farm seven experimental stations and at 16 co-operative farms in Ontario next spring in order to test its reactions to partial growing conditions in various soils and climates.

Millions of dollars in revenue have been put into the pockets of farmers of Canada and the United States, it is pointed out, because of the activities of the Dominion experimental farm, Marquis wheat, which is the single variety of both countries and which has won world's championships many times in international competitions, was evolved at the farm

NOT "MADE IN CANADA"

(The Hanna Herald)

Consistency, they say, is a jewel. But, O thou jewel, why dost thou not grace the crown of the Canadian manufacturer, who shouts from his factory tops to "Buy Goods Made in Canada," yet practices not what he doth preach?

Why, we ask, should the Canadian manufacturer not buy goods made in Canada, while he is expecting the Canadian consumer to follow such a course?

This morning, while we stirred up the breakfast porridge, our eye was attracted by the sentence on the Quaker Oats box: "Cartons Printed in U.S.A." Curious to know whether this was a general practice, we raided the pantry and plished up a carton of corn meal, another breakfast cereal produced by the same concern. And the same inclination was printed thereon! Evidently this big corporation, which specializes in preparing breakfasts for Canadian digestion, cannot see the necessity of helping along the wheels of the Canadian printers and lumbermen.

But, prompted by this discovery, we investigated further along the pantry shelves. And, finding that our breakfast coffee, the very beaven we nibbled, and the oat with which we seasoned our soup, was all wrapped in containers "Printed in U.S.A.," is it any wonder that the trend of Canadian labor is toward the United States? Our very manufacturers themselves discourage loyalty to Canadian production.

Is it a common sight to see a product of the United States wrapped in a container bearing the words "Made in Canada?"

WHY COUNTRY IS NOT DEVELOPING

The Winnipeg Mirror, in a recent issue, continued the following: "Winnipeg played hosts last week to a party of Minnesota editors, one of whom upon his return to his home town had the following remarks to make in his paper (The Greenbush Tribune):

"On Saturday morning the party was taken through the big Eaton department store and paid under bonus.

"This is a fine commercial institution but has been built up at the expense of the rural communities. While Minnesota has hundreds of thriving villages, with fine schools, good churches and plenty of amusement centres, you find mostly ghosts in the part of Canada we have seen. There's a reason. People who trade at home build a home town, instead of building up a great industrial centre here and there.

"When Harper Webb was importing the fact that Manitoba did not have the population it should have, the reason was very plain to be seen. Canada has been losing population—no doubt because community life is not developed. It is the thriving village that forms community centres and make the people more contented to stay on the farms. Villages are the country's outposts, but villages cannot do and exist where establishments like Eaton's are pulling all the money to the cities. Villages and towns of from 600 to 2,000 population use up considerable food in a year and create a home market for a large part of the farm product. Besides they make possible good schools, churches and cultured social life.

"If Canada is to develop she must develop her villages, have her local newspapers and good home stores and entertainment centres.

"Railroad sidings will not build up an agricultural community.

Whilst there may be wisdom in these remarks, it is unfortunate that on outsider has to point it out to us in Winnipeg.—Winnipeg Mirror.

SMALL TALK

All the criticising and blaming
Of and at, aside against souls,
Is of such little worth.
To those whom then dispose themselves
And nothing wrought.
Shameful—and maybe talents hiding,
Could attain for richer goals,
Than shut in possibly silent,
Perhaps it would expose itself,
If it were taught.

Between us are often passed remarks
"She or he is real nice—but"—
Cause for suspicion there?
One word may weigh in the balance,
Reputation.
A wealth cherished more than life
departs;
All for any reason?—no—
To be in a hurry,
And drag it in depths, nuisance,
Ruination.

When we are talking small of others
Just a word or two;
Or passing them up as no account,
As we sometimes do;
All to give our unbound tongues a flame,
That smolders when sparks light on a name.

We've little to do,
Setting on innocent arms, a curse,
Yes, when we ourselves are even worse.

—Lillie M. Miller.

ALBERTA'S GREAT VICTORY

Winning for his home province of Alberta, the unprecedented distinction of a world championship in both wheat and oats, Herman Trelle, young farmer of Lake Saskatoon district, near Edmonton, in the Peace River country, was awarded both these championships during the past week at the International Hay and Grain Show at Chicago. It was in 1894, just thirty years ago, that wheat grown in the Peace River country won the championship at the World's Fair at Chicago. Once since, in 1923, Alberta won the wheat honor, when Major Burnaby was made champion at Chicago. In the same year Mr. Trelle was placed third in wheat, but never previously have both the wheat and oats championships at Chicago gone to the same man and the same farm. That Mr. Trelle's victory is unique. His samples of Marquis wheat and Victory oats won out. Mr. Trelle's farm is near the new station of Wembley, just west of Grande Prairie. He was born in Idaho and moved with his parents to Alberta in 1909. He was educated in Edmonton and the war cut short his studies at university. He was rejected for overseas service, went to the Yukon, stood his father had died for him when he was but a lad. He began the Scouting of registered seed in 1920. He is 31 years of age. He now farms a section of land. His champion wheat yielded 62 lbs. to the bushel and his oats 54 lbs.

CHRISTMAS KEEPING

Are you willing to stoop down and consider the needs and the desires of little children; to remember the weakness and loneliness of people who are growing old; to stop asking how much your friends love you, and ask yourself whether you love them enough; to bear in mind the things that other people have to bear on their hearts; to try to understand what those who live in the same house with you really want, without waiting for them to tell you; to trim your lamp so that it will give more light and less smoke, and to carry it in front so that your shadow will fall behind you; to make a grave for your ugly thoughts, and a garden for your kindly feelings, with the gate open—are you willing to do these things even for a day? Then you can keep Christmas.

—Henry Van Dyke.

"Grab Box" sale now on at L. D. von Hagel's—50c and $1.00—values as high as five dollars.

The school Literary society held their fortnightly meeting in the assembly hall on Friday evening and invitations were given to parents of pupils to attend. Many adults availed themselves of the opportunity and thoroughly enjoyed the entertainment provided.

Rain fell steadily last Friday afternoon, the elements apparently making a mistake in the time of the year. The mistake has since been rectified! A steady downpour in the night and a blizzard raged all Saturday. The temperature has since fallen; fallen so low that another little drop wouldn't do us any harm.

ALBERTA WHEAT POOL ELEVATORS

The Alberta Wheat Pool owns forty-two local elevators located in the province. The Pool has under lease the big government elevator at Prince Rupert.

Of the 42 local elevators, 19 were built by the Pool and the rest were purchased. So far these elevators have handled over three and a half million bushels of wheat from the 1926 crop.

The Prince Rupert terminal elevator, with a capacity of a million and a half bushels, was completed the first of the year by the Dominion government. The Alberta Pool secured a two year lease of the elevator at a nominal rental.

Prince Rupert started its career as a grain shipping port with the opening of this elevator by the Pool. The only wheat shipped out of that port has been Pool shipments. Eight cargoes have now been loaded and the Pool expects to ship several millions through Prince Rupert from the 1926 crop. The result of operations to date with regard to this terminal elevator have been satisfactory.

WHAT SCHOOL FAIRS ARE ACCOMPLISHING

(Family Herald and Weekly Star)

One of the remarkable developments of the past twenty years has been the school fair and the organization of boys and girls into clubs for various farm projects. When the first school fair was held in Ontario in 1909 it was hardly foreseen that the work would extend to five hundred schools in the province and that other provinces should take up the scheme so enthusiastically. If a reason is sought for this success it is to be found partly in the earnest endeavors of the teachers and of the agricultural representatives to promote the best interests of the children. The great impulse however has been from the pupils themselves, who were eager to take up a task that gave them an opportunity for what educationists call self-expression. Tent boaks have not the same attraction as the animals and growing crops of the farm. Given possession of a calf or a plot of potatoes the spirit of achievement is stirred in the child. He begins to plan, to seek information and to apply himself on his own account, one of the best means of training for his later life. The school fair, the pig clubs, the acre profit competitions and other activities are all deserving of support from the parents. Many a young mind will be given a turn toward practical farming through these early efforts.

Canada's Trade With Britain Is Languishing, Notwithstanding The Preference To British Goods

In a recent editorial the Ottawa Journal presented an interesting and commendable analysis of Canada's trade. It reminded some notable features, not the least astonishing being that Canadians are increasing trading with foreigners.

Billions have been spent to foster British trade. We have built trans-continental railways, harbors, canals. We have given Empire goods a preference; have had Royal Commissions on Empire trade; Economic Conferences; Committees on Imperial Communication; and Imperial Shipping Committees.

Yet Canada's Empire trade is languishing, her foreign trade increasing. Each year, tariff barriers and distance-hate and rate barriers notwithstanding, we traffic more and more with foreign nations.

During the first part of this year (April-August), we sold abroad $6,000,000 more of goods than during the same period last year. Britain's gain was only $2,000,000; Uncle Sam's by $3,000,000. But the Germans and French and Czecho-Slovakians and Chinese bought $1,000,000 more than last year, accounting for the bulk of our gain.

And so with imports. During this same period (these are the latest figures) we bought $600,000 less of goods from Britain than during the same months in 1925. But while we were doing this,—the preference to British notwithstanding—we bought $1,500,000 more from the United States, and $2,000,000 more from Europe and Asia.

In past years Canada's main markets were Britain and the States. Thirty per cent of what we sell now go to these lands.

Today—what a cry from 1914-18! —Germany is on ruinid best customer, passing the 100 mark. Her trade with Canada with Germany was $455,000. In 1913 it had jumped to $4,550,000; in 1923 to $17,000,000; in 1926—well the present rate of increase is maintained—it will be $30,000,000.

Nor is it a mere matter of selling Germany wheat; we send her all sorts of things. Wheat, of course, is the chief one; but it isn't all. We send Germans farm implements, canned salmon, sedang machines, rubber tires, dried apples, flue, brass, lead and other things.

Germany sells Canada all sorts of things, too, from toys to typewriters, cotton yarn, barbed wire. Everything she sends us we can't purchase in Britain.

There are other strange trends to our trade. Chinamen drop rice for wheat trend; we trade in millions with China. Yugo is but a name in our school books; she is a buyer of importance. Czecho Slovakia is a creature of the Treaty of Versailles; she stands high on the list of our customers. And so all through the chapter.

Before the war 22 per cent of Canada's imports came from Britain. For the period under review—April to August, 1926—that period is 15 per cent. During the full fiscal year ending March 31, 1926, they were less than 17 per cent. We are losing ground. During the full fiscal year ending March 31, 1926, they were less than 17 per cent. We are losing ground. During the full fiscal year ending March 31, 1926, they were less than 17 per cent. We are losing ground. During the full fiscal year ending March 31, 1926, they were less than 17 per cent. We are losing ground.

The truth is that Canada's trade has become world wide, inter-racial, cosmopolitan. It reaches to both hemispheres, to all continents; goes over the Seven Seas. Whether the trade with continents, only time can tell. There are those who visualize a self-contained Empire, producing all her own raw materials, manufacturing all its own goods, peopling its empty spaces, trading within itself. Then was the dream of Joseph Chamberlain; it is the vision of Mr. Amery. But for the present the reality is that Canada is trading more and more outside the Empire selling more goods to foreigners, buying more foreign goods.

Happiness is always where we find it, but seldom where we seek it.

More than 200,000,000 matches were made in Holland in the past year.

Has Produced New Potato

"Mitchell's Excelsior" Has Been Registered As New Variety

Western potato-growers are greatly interested in a new variety of the "tuber," Mitchell's Excelsior, which after 16 years of patient experimental hog has been produced by James C. Mitchell, world-famed wheat grower of Dahinda, Sask. The new variety bears a strong resemblance to the Irish Cobbler, but is without the deep set eyes of the latter, which has meant extra deep paring by housewives. It is also said to be smaller than the Cobbler. The skin is white.

During his 16 years of experimentation Mr. Mitchell carefully selected, tested and standardized the products of each year's effort until he had the medium-sized potato he sought.

At a recent meeting of the Saskatchewan Seed Growers' Association Mitchell's Excelsior was registered as an entirely new variety.

Unusual Production Is Poultry Contest

Winning Pen in B.C. Lay Weighs Nine Times Over

That the 2,156 eggs laid by the Appleby pen winner of the present egg laying contest weighed the pounds and represented nine and one-half times the weight of the hens themselves, was one of many interesting facts to receive the closest notice by Superintendent W. H. Hicks of the Agassiz Experimental Farm at a community banquet tendered Frank W. Appleby by residents of Mr. Hicks town of Mission City, B.C.

A noteworthy feature, said Mr. Hicks, was that the pen at the close consisted of the original ten birds, they having gone through without loss or replacement, and in spite of their heavy production they had gained one pound in weight, their present weight being 41 pounds; as compared with 41 when they entered Except for four or five weeks at the start they had led throughout and every member of the pen had qualified for registration, an honor shared by only two other pens.

Rev. C. McCardall, President of the Mission Poultry Association, who presided, told how some nine or ten years ago he had organized a boys' and girls' poultry club in Mission City, one of the members of which was now honored guest of the evening in present ing Mr Appleby with a special diploma of the Mission Poultry Association. Mr. McCardall mentioned that the birds had been registered as "Mission Leghorns."

Jewish Farmers in Saskatchewan

More Jewish Farmers in Saskatchewan Than Any Other Place in the World

According to statements made by Louis Rosenberg, field representative of the Jewish Colonization Association, Saskatchewan has a bigger proportion of farmers among its Jewish population than any province or state in the world. Out of a total Jewish population of nearly 7,500 are permanently settled on farms. Of the fourteen Jewish Farm Colonies established in Canada eight are located in Saskatchewan. In 1925 they marketed approximately 500,000 bushels of wheat.

Future Of Canada

To Occupy a Secure Place in the British Commonwealth of Nations

There may be some who look forward to the ultimate independence of Canada, but I do not share this view," declared Hon. Newton Wesley Rowell, K.C., addressing the Canadian Club at Vancouver on the work of the Imperial Conference.

"The future of Canada lies within the commonwealth of nations," Mr. Rowell added, "We have no more liberty today than we had before, but the conference has raised our position in clearer terms than declared in the preceding declaration of our status.

"The great achievement of the conference," continued Mr. Rowell, "is that it restored unanimity."

In giving full and equal status to the self-governing Dominions, the belief was brought about of unity and strength of the whole. Mr. Rowell said: There might be a minority which would have the Dominions subordinate to the Mother Country, but the thoughtful element could believe that Canadians of British and French origin would be prepared to occupy a subordinate position.

Wild Ducks Shipped To Lord Byng

Ducks From Marshes of Manitoba Sent to Estate in England

Twenty-two wild ducks, from the marshes of Manitoba, are being transported to the estate of Lord Byng of Vimy, at Thorpe Hall, Essex, England. The birds are a gift from the provincial government to the former governor-general, who was so highly pleased with his duck shooting in Manitoba. They were caught early last spring and have spent the summer in Assiniboine Park, under the supervision of George Champion, of the parks board. The birds will leave on Saturday night for St. John.—Free Press.

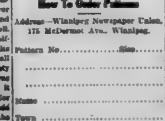
QUEBEC. 1759



Guns at Quebec that bore spoken in the defence of the citizen. (Canada Land Display.)

Lord Darling, England's great legal wit, who recently made an extended visit to America, is a lover of early Canadian history. The following poem recently written by him and published in England, has received much favorable comment.

I.

"The paths of glory lead but to the grave,"
Storm truth Wolfe spoke the while he neared the shore.
Turn there to behold him, and the French before;
Foalon's steep cliff above the breaking waves,
The over shortsward bare the impatient brave,
Till Aberni's fatal pluis was shed
With silent ranks that one dread valley tore,
Ere at his signal award they marched.

Now the all solemn lifts towards the skies
His fame who trod the way whose end he knew;
Stalked with his life-blood this all-believed end;
Whence he spanned those ne'er of brightest view;
Whose new ambition bays the place
Lay fresh, and gave his greatest end to find.

II.

Yet new alone took Wolfe that splendid road:
To the dark grave a fit companion came—
Montcalm—the vanquished, who divides his fame;
In whom, for France, an equal ardour glowed.
On whom the victors heal their boys bestowed.
Two generals with one valor their deeds acclaim;
The same proud stone preserves each dauntless name,
Where drank and fell the noblest blood that flowed.

"Still to their ashes live their vanced foes";
Held, mingled, on one Nation's silver bears;
And, from the field where French and English fell,
One soul, pure essence of these two, inspires!
As generous, as noble, yet as stern,
To guard the Empire that they made so well.

Lord Darling.

An Historic Conference

The Imperial Conference, which recently concluded its sessions in London, marked the passing of another milestone in the history of the British Empire. In the importance of the conclusions unanimously arrived at the conference is rightly regarded as a near-monument to the Empire's statesmanship and in the declaration of constitutional self-government for the five new Dominions, and second only to that other historic occasion when the Dominions were admitted to the Councils of Nations, on terms of equality with Great Britain and all self-governing states.

The Conference decisions, in some respects, even more decisive in character than many of the Dominions into the League of Nations. The declarations reached are necessary to give full effect to the position of the Dominions as members of the League.

In some quarters there is a tendency to unduly magnify the immediate and effect of the Conference decisions and to create the impression that it is a very pronounced step in the direction of complete independence of the Dominions and the breaking up of the Empire. In other quarters, the tendency is to belittle and minimize the work of the Conference as having, in effect, changed nothing. The true situation is to be found between these two extremes.

In character, instance, the Conference has merely given official recognition to policies and methods of procedure which have been followed in recent years as the self-governing powers of the Dominions have been developed from time to time, and as former methods have become obsolete in the new circumstances. Important changes in practice and procedure have been made, and difficulties removed so as to enable the Dominions to exercise rights and powers which they claimed, the resulting possibilities of misunderstanding and friction in the future.

The main achievement of the Conference has been in the direction of clarifying the relation ship which the Dominions bear to each other and to Great Britain. In other words, a clear understanding has been arrived at in all matters of vital domestic concern to the Empire. It has been definitely settled down in black and white that, so far as the Empire itself is concerned, each self-governing unit occupies a position of equality with any and all other units. Absolute equality of status is established and Canada and the other Dominions now occupy exactly the same position within the Empire as does Great Britain itself. All recognize and render allegiance to the King.

A change in, literature, made in the position occupied by the Governor General. Heretofore the Governor-General has been not only the representative of His Majesty but also the agent of the British Government. In future he will be a representative only, and will occupy the same position in relation to the administration of public affairs in the Dominion as is held by the King in Great Britain, but it is not a representative or agent of the Government of Great Britain. Formerly all communications between the Dominion Government and the British Government had to pass through the Governor General and the Colonial Minister in the British Government. In future communication will be direct between Government and Government as equals.

In future, matters relating to Dominion affairs will be decided solely by the Dominions and the Royal Assent will be given or withheld, not on the advice of the Government of Great Britain, but on the advice of the Dominion Government.

The treaty making powers of the Dominions, hitherto a moot and ill-paid point, have been clearly defined and one Dominion can now enter into a treaty with another Dominion or with a foreign nation in the name of the Crown without the Governments of Great Britain or of other Dominions being parties to it. Dominion plenipotentiaries for the negotiation and signing of treaties will do no longer proceed to the King on the advice of the Government concerned, rather than on the advice of the Government of Great Britain as has been the case in the past.

The right of the Dominions to appoint ambassadors, or ministers to for eign governments is clearly established, and it is hereunderstood that the Dominions will maintain such ministers in London while the Government of Great Britain will send representatives to the Dominions just as it does at foreign capitals.

The right of the Dominions to participate or refrain from participating in wars in which Great Britain may become engaged is recognized. It remains to be seen, however, whether other nations will accept this principle in the case of domestic disagreement. Full autonomy in all things and absolute equality of status is established as within the Empire, but whether the International status of the Dominions has been altered remains to be seen. Neutrality during war is the name of their ruler, whether King or President, and if the King of Great Britain is at war it is open to question whether he is at war on account of only a portion of his dominions or all of them. The enemy might refuse to recognize a piecemeal war. Therefore, when Great Britain is at war, Canada may also be at war even though she might be averse to it.

The consensus of the best thought throughout the world is that the decisions of the Imperial Conference have given greater solidarity and unity to the Empire than before; that the loyalty of the Dominions to the Empire, who be intensified; that the British Commonwealth of Nations will be strong er than ever and a still greater factor in determining the peace and progress of all mankind.

Royalty Attends Oxford

Arabia, Japan, and Siam Represented at Ancient University

Three royal families are represented at Oxford this year.

Heading the list is His Imperial Highness Takichito, the second son of the Emperor of Japan. The prince occupies rooms in the Cloisters, near those occupied by the Prince of Wales as an undergraduate. He is studying as his history and economics under college tutors.

Less talk was caused by the arrival of the other two royal students, as they are both returning to Oxford after the present study. One is H. R. H. Prince Chumbot, Crown Prince of Siam, who is a student at Christ Church, and the other is Zeid ibn Hus sein, the Emir of Irac, in Arabia, who is now studying in Balliol College Both are taking the regular courses.

Forty Miles Away Newspaper Can be Read by Its Light

A 50-million candle power searchlight, the largest in the world, with an intensity eighty times as great as all the lights on New York city, threw its blue ray, was shown to the public for the first time at the Electrical and Industrial Exposition in the Grand Central Palace, New York. So powerful is this searchlight that a man forty miles away could see to read his newspaper by it, and those operating the light could read fine print objects at a distance of five or six miles.

Salvaging Old Inscriptions

Would Take Years to Complete Work in Egypt

"Inscription Salvage" is the intellectual cry of the archaeologists working in Egyptian ruins.

Unless the inscriptions on the walls of the age-old buildings along the Nile are immediately reproduced and recorded they will be lost forever, as the ancient walls are inexorably crumbling away, says a report by James H. Breasted, Egyptologist and director of the Oriental Institute of Chicago, to the Archaeological Society at Washington.

A process of recording the inscriptions on the walls of the Medinet Habu Temple at Luxor is being employed by Dr. Breasted, which combines the use of camera, stereoscope and epigraphy; the latter to transcribe the inscriptions. For complete and publishable records of this temple alone, he says, two or three years, Dr. Breasted said, while to record all of the inscriptions of Egypt's great temples would probably require the work of another entire generations.

Relinquishes Honor To Illinois Professor

Scientist Discovered New Chemical But Failed to Announce It

The new chemical element 61, named illinium, discovered by three University of Illinois instructors last spring, was found two years ago by Dr. Luigi Rolla, of the Chemical Institute of Florence, Italy, but he failed to announce it then.

Dr. Rolla's discovery was accepted by the Congress of Scientists which met at Bologna, Italy, to record the discovery Thereupon in honor of his city, while Profs. oscar B. Smith Hopkins, of the University of Illinois, named his discovery illinium in honor of the University and the state.

Dr. Rolla now has agreed to relinquish all claims to his original discovery. Dr. Hopkins and Dr. Rolla met at a convention of the International Union of Pure and Applied Chemistry at Washington University recently and reached an agreement on the original claim. The two scientists worked independently, each unaware of the others investigations.

Balfour On The New Empire

Self-Governing Populations United by Something Much Greater Than Control

Lord Balfour, who is the leading committee which drafted the Imperial constitutional agreement, has given an interview to the London Daily Mail, in which he declared that the conference had not done anything new. It was in one sense only the constitutional tablets revised. The new thing was not that there was any control of the Australian by the Mother Country, or the Canadian by the Mother Country, or the South African by the Mother Country, but that there was no control at all. It might be democratic control or control under the whole people, or control under a limited number of people, but there was absolutely control. For the first time we had now announced that we have an empire of which self-governing populations are united by something much greater than control, and which is far more powerful. It could be done ultimately as effectively.

Lord Balfour then stated that when he was young it was generally thought that as populations grew they necessarily they would separate themselves from the Mother Countries, grow to be wholly independent, but that which was the case with the Imperial conference was of a totally different kind. The Empire did not end while maturity of the people assembled in such it given birth; it began there. It was only now that the full Empire was born. It was not that it was possible to do it, it was inherent that in the most explicit to do. It was borne in upon every one of the representatives idea of the Empire that it was their business to manage their affairs as they pleased, but they must never forget they were parts of a greater whole, with ideals to which all that whole was committed and to which in turn they owed, as he was sure they would be ready to pay, free service wherever a great world necessity should arise.

Canada's Trade With Britain Is Languishing, Notwithstanding The Preference To British Goods

In a recent editorial the Ottawa Journal presented an interesting and comprehensive analysis of Canada's trade. It reviewed some notable features, not the least astonishing being that Canadians are increasing trading with foreigners.

Millions have been spent to foster British trade. We have built trans-continental railways, harbors, canals. We have given Empire goods a preference; have had Royal Commissions on Empire trade; Imperial Conferences; Commissions on Imperial Communications; and Imperial Shipping Committees.

Yet Canada's Empire trade is languishing, her foreign trade increasing. Each year, tariff barriers and distance hamper and hurt. Each year notwithstanding, we make more and more with foreign nations.

During the months of the year (April-August), we sold abroad $6,000,000 more of goods than during the same months last year. British customs declined by $9,000,000; United States by $3,000,000. But the Germans and French and Czecho-Slovakians and Chinese bought $2,000,000 more than last year, accounting for the bulk of our gain.

And on imports during this same period (these are the latest figures) we bought $400,000 less of goods from Britain than during the same months in 1925. But while we were doing this,—the preference to Britain notwithstanding,—we bought $20,000,000 more from the United States, and $9,000,000 more from Europe and Asia.

In past years Canada's main markets were Britain and the States. Thirty per cent of what we sell now goes to other lands

Today—what a cry from 1914-18!—Germany is on third best customer, passing Italy and Japan. In 1920 our total trade with Germany was $445,000. In 1922 it had jumped to $6,550,000; in 1925 it reached $21,000,000 This year—if the present rate of increase is maintained—it will be $30,000,000

Nor is it a mere matter of selling Germany wheat; we send her all sorts of things. Wheat, of course, is the chief one; but it isn't all. We send Germans farm implements, canned salmon, adding machines, rubber tires, dried apples, zinc, brass, lead and other things.

Germany sells Canada all sorts of things, but chiefly on luxuries—toys, cotton yarn, barbed wire. Everything she sends us we can't purchase in Britain.

There are other foreign trends to our trade. Cinnamon drop rice for wheat bread; our trade in millinery with China. Norway is best a customer in car school books; she is a buyer of importance. Czecho Slovakia is a creature of the treaty of Versailles; she stands high on the list of our customers. And on all through the chapter.

Before the war $3 per cent of Canada's imports came from Britain. For the period under review—April to August, 1925—they dropped to 15 per cent. During the full fiscal year ending March 31, 1926, they were less than 12 per cent. Everything is out of British cost, loss of British textiles, loss of British steel. Many American products, with resulting prices, in Canada, the Bus later will be extended to Yokohama and also will touch some of the large Western European cities.

Britain's decline in the export trade is somewhat startling. Her exports to Canada in 1913 were valued at $189,000,000. In 1925 they were $124,000,000. Her exports to the United States in 1913 were $61,000,000. In 1925 they were $77,000,000. Her exports to Germany in 1913 were $49,000,000. In 1925 they were $29,000,000.

Britain's share of the world's trade in 1913 was 14.1 per cent. In 1925 it was 11.3 per cent. Germany's share in 1913 was 12.2 per cent. In 1925 it was 9.2 per cent. The United States' share in 1913 was 11.2 per cent. In 1925 it was 14.7 per cent.

Britain's share of the world's trade in 1913 was 14.1 per cent. In 1925 it was 11.3 per cent. Germany's share in 1913 was 12.2 per cent. In 1925 it was 9.2 per cent. The United States' share in 1913 was 11.2 per cent. In 1925 it was 14.7 per cent.

Has Produced New Potato

"Michelin's Kennebec" Has Been Registered As New Variety

Western potato-growers are generally interested in a new variety of the "rubber," Michelin's Kennebec, which after 16 years of patient experiment has been produced by James C. Mitchell, well-known grower of Dalhousie, Sask. The new variety bears a strong resemblance to the Irish Cobbler, but is without the downy eye spot of the latter, which has meant thin deep paring by housewives. It is also said to be sounder than the Cobbler. The skin is white.

During his 16 years of experimentation Mr. Mitchell carefully selected, planted and re-selected the perfect type of each year's effort until he had the medium-sized potato he sought.

At a recent meeting of the Saskatchewan Seed Growers' Association Mitchell's Kennebec was registered as an entirely new variety.

Unusual Production In Poultry Contest

Winning Pen in B.C. Lay Weight Ring Times Over

That the 2,564 eggs laid by the Appleby pen, winner of the recent egg laying contest, weighed 236 pounds and represented nine and one-half times the weight of the birds, them selves, was one of many interesting facts regarding the contest related by Superintendent W. H. Hinks, of the Agassiz Experimental Farm at a community banquet tendered Frank W. Appleby by residents of his native town of Milton Cty, B.C.

A noteworthy feature, said Mr. Hinks, was that the pen at the close consisted of the original hens that started the contest, without culling. Not a single bird was discarded or replaced, and despite their heavy production they had gained one pound in weight, their present weight being 12 pound; as compared with 41 when they entered Except for four or five weeks at the start they had let throughout and every member of the pen had qualified for registration, an unique record in any laying competition.

Rev C Medlarmid, President of the Milneton Poultry Association, who presided, told how some years ago an egg basket had organized a boys' and girls' poultry club in Milneton City, one of the members of which was a then-unborn grandson of the steaming in presenting Mr Appleby with a special diploma of the British Columbia Poultry Association. He also mentioned that the birds had been registered as "Milneton Leghorns"

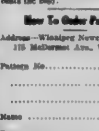
QUEBEC. 1759



Glory of Quebec that have spoken in the defence of the citadel. Church Lord Dorchester

Lord Darling, England's great legal wit, who recently made an extended visit to America, is a lover of early Canadian history. The following poem recently written by him and published in England, has received much favorable comment.

I.

"The paths of glory lead but to the grave"
Sneers Thomas Gray.
Death Wolfe spoke the while he scorned the slave,
Dark Death beckoned him, and the French before;
Fenelon's steep cliff above the breathing wave,
There quiet deserved here th' imperishant brave,
With silent ranks that one dread victory gave,
Bye at his lifted sword they swayed and swore.

II.

Yet me these took Wolfe that splendid day
To the dark grave a fit companion came—
Montcalm—the resquisitest, why dismiss his fame—
In whom, for France, an equal ardour glowed;
On the vibrant battle lines he bid them be bestowed.
Two peoples with one valour their debt discharged.
The same proud stone preserves each doubtless name,
Where death 'mid these ashes lies their wonted flame";
That, mingled, on one Nation's altar burn;
And, from the field where French and English fell,
One soul, pure essence of these two, ingloes;
As generous, as noble, yet as stern,
To guard the Empire that they made so well.

Lord Darling.

Future Of Canada

To Occupy a Secure Place in the British Commonwealth of Nations

There may be some who look forward to the ultimate independence of Canada, but I do not share this view," declared Hon. Newton Wesley Rowell, K.C., addressing the Canadian Club at Vancouver on the work of the Imperial Conference.

"The future of Canada lies within the commonwealth of nations," Mr. Rowell added, "we have no more liberty today than we had before, but the conference has stated our position in clearer terms than declared in the preceding declaration of our status.

"The great achievement of the conference," continued Mr. Rowell, "is that it secured unanimity."

In giving full and equal status in the self-governing Dominions, the belief was brought about of unity and strength of the whole. Mr. Rowell said. There might be a minority; which would have the Dominions subordinate to the Mother Country, but no thoughtful student could believe that Canadians of British and French origin would be prepared to occupy a subordinate position.

Skim Milk For Laying Hens

Demonstrated That Same Gives Best Egg Feeding Value

A four year test at the Nappan N.S., Experimental Farm show; that skim milk has a very high feeding value for laying hens. A report ment was conducted in order to determine the relative value of beef scrap and skim milk to a ration of animal protein for poultry. The hens used in the test were divided into two pens and fed a regular grain mixture and mash One pen was given beef scrap in addition and the other skim milk. Both pens received all the wet mash they could clean up. The average of four years the pens per bird over feed cost was $1.67 for the skim milk and $1.51 for the beef containing beef scrap. Why Barrie is Left-Handed

Right Hand Gave Out After Finishing Famous Play

Sir James Barrie's own account of how he came to write with his left hand is told in a letter which was read at the annual festival dinner of the New York Pen and Pencil Club and Pencil Institute, held in London recently, says a writer in The London Express.

Sir James presented the Edinburgh manuscript of his play, "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," to be sold for the benefit of the institution. He wrote the following letter, which was read by Major J. A. Astor, M. P., who presided at the dinner:

Should this manuscript find a purchaser, please break the informa lot in his first soon after "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals" was written, my right hand probably horrified at the sight of my calligraphy) gave out, and I have ever since had to write with my left, to the joy of my curtesyon dents.

"Indeed, you had better present this note to him to show him that in one way I myself benefit from the letter. The will wish that my right hand and given out sooner."

The manuscript was auctioned by Sir Herbert Morgan for 325 guineas. The bidding opened at 100 guineas.

Australian Wheat Pool

Australia has been re-filling a proportion of her wheat through state wheat pools. The difficulty with this system was that these separate pools often undersold each other. Furthermore, they had developed little power in the Inland Capital where the "crisis Trade" got a very high commission as its share, regularly. Following the visit of H. W. Wood, chairman of the Alberta Wheat Pool, and G. W. Robertson, secretary of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, to the Antipodes, the pools there have gotten together and will sell through a joint agency this year, according to a recent despatch from Liverpool.

Indications of Prosperity

The year 1926 has been the best year on record for the sale of the Province of Alberta savings certificates. The net deposits for the ten months ending in October were $2,976,064.62, which is greater by $620,000 more than in the entire year of 1925. The total net purchases of certificates for the ten years the system has been running have been $10,651,826.12.

Suggested New Name For Constantinople

Idea is to Honor President of the Republic

The people generally hail enthusiastically the suggestion that the present that the name of Constantinople should be changed so as to honor Kemal Pasha, president of the Republic. Which one of the President's three names—Ghazi, Mustapha or Kemal, should be chosen to replace that given to the capital by Constantine the Great has not yet been indicated.

The Turks have always called the city "Istanbul" or "Dersaadet," the latter meaning the House of Happiness.

Gossip

The dressing of Joanna Maines, each morning, when that young person condescended to get out of bed in the hands of her maid, was an important ceremony. It was said a matter for Matilda alone. Matilda had been trained to the very deepest duties, even pulling personal manicure of the lady fingers was required for the toilet ritual of one who did now a normal beauty.

Even taking the individual in hand Matilda didn't always work smoothly. Joanna had such extraordinary moments when she would not be bothered with anything. Matilda had the proper point at which to leave her mistress alone. That Matilda was an understanding was what best with what, and when the time should be left to her own devices. Between the periods of her duties on their indulgence, Joanna ample time each day to run her own affairs, and to indulge in the luxury of gossip.

Matilda was a natural born gossip. She had come to Joanna's employ from another home, and she was a veritable mine of information about the doings of the Madewell family. Matilda had been with Joanna's mother before her marriage to Mr. Maines, and had been with Joanna ever since. Matilda was a mine of information about the doings of the Madewell family. Always, of course, there were details from yesterday's gossip available, and there was ever the opportunity of adding to the store. Matilda had the proper point at which to leave her mistress alone. UNITED CHURCH CHOIR RAISES LAURELS IN FARCE

Played by members of the United Church choir at the Eden Palace theatre last Wednesday evening "When a feller needs a friend" was every bit as good as the advance notices predicted it would be. Advertised as a comedy these attending for the express purpose of allowing their face to slip had no trouble in doing so, the humorous situations being so plentiful one laugh succeeded another in quick order. The artists took their parts "as to the manner born," and are to be congratulated upon their excellent abilities.

Those taking part were Mrs. Colleson, Mrs. Markle, Mrs. O'Brien, Dorothy Collieson, Messrs. Collieson, Markle, Sutherland, T. B. McClellan, O'Brien, Poole.

A large audience witnessed the farce despite the handicap of severe weather and at some points, impassable roads. Many reserved seats were cancelled by parties unable to come to town and it is safe to say, had conditions been favorable, the theatre would have been packed to the doors.

CANADIAN LEGION HOLDS TURKEY WHIST DRIVE

A large number of alleged card players were on hand at the Memorial hall last Friday evening to try by skill and the help of Lady Luck to get their Christmas turkey by fair means instead of foul. Personally, after the dirty deal Lady Luck handed us, we see nothing for it but the arranging of a raid on the neighbors "flocks by night."

Mr. Truby handled the drive in his usual capable manner, his only fault being his inability to call the right trumps to suit everybody's hand. However, both losers and winners enjoyed themselves, we might say particularly the winners, some of whom don't seem to know when to cry "Enough!"

Those from whom we are hoping to receive an invitation to Christmas dinner are: Mrs. Henry, Dr. Henry, Constable Warrior, Tom Charlton (2), Barney Corcoran (2), Dr. von Hamel (2), J. Easterbrook, E. Lamoureux, Paul Tercier, Rene Tercier.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PRESENTS OPERETTA "SNOW WHITE"

Music lovers of Fort Saskatchewan had a very fine treat on Monday evening when the United Church Sunday School, assisted by five members of the choir, gave their Christmas concert in the local theatre. The theatre was beautifully decorated with evergreens and a large audience greeted the entertainers.

The main feature of the entertainment was the presentation of the operetta "Snow White," which still has its children charm for lovers of the good, the lovely and the beautiful on the operatic stage. Most of us have seen operas by professional players which have given us less pleasure than this presentation of "Snow White" did on Monday night.

The principal parts were taken by Mrs. Glover as Snow White, Mrs.

THE COMMUNITY SPIRIT, CO-OPERATION, DEVELOPMENT

by John Galloway, Fort Saskatchewan

In 1871 Sanford Fleming, chief civil engineer of the C.P.R. survey, accompanied by a staff, went through this district. A very interesting account of the expedition, "Ocean to Ocean," was written by Dr. Grant, who was one of the members. They each and all had confidence in the potentiality of the North Saskatchewan valley, and with reason, certain that it would become a rich, productive, agricultural district; but I do not suppose that any of them had enough prophetic vision to think that the time would come when there would be 2,000,000 bushels of wheat stored in Edmonton, at one time.

Fifteen years ago this was quite an old settled district, developed considerably; but there was room for further development. Two miles south of the town, there is a strip of land half a mile wide and two miles long, that was then fairly well covered with brush and sloughs, which has been transformed into four highly improved farms, with buildings worth three times as much as the land was worth fifteen years ago.

Several years ago the farmers built a co-operative elevator, and established a stockyard; but still continued to use the winding trails, from the south and south-west, for about a mile, across a piece of unbroken land, that had been a subdivision; the same trails that had been used forty years ago by the pioneers. About five years ago, the community spirit asserted itself, the farmers got together and graded a road in accord with the provincial survey, for more than three quarters of a mile, extending one of the leading roads straight north to the stockyards and elevators, on the edge of the town.

Now the land to each side of the road has been brought under cultivation as a prison farm, which improves the appearance of the town beneficial and necessary to those who made it and to other farmers, it is a credit to the community, to the town of Fort Saskatchewan, to the municipal district of Clover Bar and to the province of Alberta.

The new road forms part of the highway, between Edmonton and Fort Saskatchewan, via Clover Bar; so that we will no being very useful,

Problems In The Maritimes

One of the outstanding matters to engage the attention of Parliament at its present session will be the report of the Royal Commission appointed to inquire into the claims of the Province of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island for better terms, for, the Maritime Provinces claim, the retention of policies declared to overcome many of the difficulties from which that section of the Dominion is suffering.

The report of the Commission was presented to Parliament on the date of opening, while the speech from the Throne foreshadowed the introduction of the necessary legislation dealing with various recommendations contained in the report.

The people of Canada as a whole will be found sympathetic to the adoption of any reasonable steps to promote the development and prosperity of the Maritime Provinces and to assist the Provincial Governments in overcoming their native handicaps, peculiar problems and economic difficulties. The Western Provinces will be found particularly sympathetic because people have fully realized that the extremes of cold-weather are confronted with problems from which the central provinces are largely free, but the fact remains that the people there cannot understand and consequently do not appreciate

Freight rates, for example, have long been a live topic in the West, inclusive not only what have been regarded as many quarters as exorbitant charges, but complaints that unfair discrimination exists as between East and West in the matter of rates, and as between the ports of Canada on various commodities. The West has waged a long battle on the subject of freight rates, and the end is not yet. It can, therefore, appreciate the importance of the recommendation made in the report of the Maritime Commission that rates be reduced by 20 per cent on the Atlantic Division of the Canadian National Railway, and that the loss or re-pay to the railway be recouped in it out of the Dominion treasury, and that the C.P.R. be likewise treated. One of the arguments advanced in support of this recommendation is that the Intercolonial Railway was built for strategic rather than commercial reasons and as a result it suffers from excessive mileage.

If, however, special rates are to be established for one section of the Dominion, and the losses to the railways made good by the Dominion as a whole, the door will be opened to demands for like treatment by other sections of the country.

The Commission further recommends substantial increases in the Federal subsidies to the three Maritime Provinces in order to assist those Governments in carrying on their functions and services, and in this connection supports the contention that the Western Provinces have been differentially and more favorably treated. It is true the Western Provinces have been treated differently, because all their natural resources have been withheld from them and retained by the Federal Government, but whether this constitutes a more favorable position is open to debate. However, re-opening the subject of Federal subsidies to one group of Provinces must, inevitably, lead to a consideration of this question as it affects all Provinces. If the cost of government is to be reduced, or even to be kept within reasonable bounds, it seems passing strange that the Duncan Commission did not at least express an opinion on the advisability of a union of these three small provinces into one Provincial Government.

Recommendations, suggestions, and quoted opinions as to Customs tariff changes designed to benefit the Maritimes will undoubtedly come with special discussion. In brief, the Commission recommends that a preferential tariff be recommended; inferentially an increased duty on steel is suggested; a treaty with the United States is advocated providing for the free admission of Canadian fish and pulp and paper products; also there appears to be a hint that the report seems to favor a policy of higher duties by Canada against United States coal and steel and lower duties by the United States on Canadian fish and forest products, a combination of results desired by the Maritimes which it would appear to be rather difficult to get the United States to accept.

In certain other matters, as, for example, the development and raising of agricultural standards of the present generation, and experimental and research work in matters of immigration with the Federal authorities, the Commission makes it quite clear that the responsibility rests squarely on the Provincial Governments.

The impression may be the summing up of the Commission's labors, or the duties of the legislation to be passed at Ottawa, it is to be desired that renewed hope, confidence and vigor will animate the people of the Provinces by the sea, and that they will find encouragement in the steps taken by their leaders for themselves to grapple more vigorously than ever with the problems which, in the final analysis, must be solved by the people chiefly concerned. The people of the west have found this to be true, and they have through their great co-operative business and the application of their own energies and resources, an amazing extent in bettering their conditions and advancing the development and prosperity of these Western Provinces.

STOMACH TROUBLE DUE TO THIN BLOOD

It Usually Disappears When the Blood is Made Rich and Red

This blood is one of the most common causes of stomach trouble. It affects the digestion very quickly. The blood that circulates in the walls of the stomach are diminished in their activity, the stomach nerves are weakened and there is a loss of nerve force. In this state of health nothing will move the food, there is no appetite, digestion is slow and normal nutrition thus ceases, rich red blood.

Dr. William's Pink Pills act directly on the blood, making it rich and red, and this enriched blood strengthens weak nerves, stimulates tired nerves, and somehow in unusual manner the glands that supply the digestive juices. This is shown by an improved appetite, and soon the effect of these blood building pills is evident throughout the whole system. You find that what you eat does not distress you, but you are once agreeably surprised at fleshiness. If your appetite is poor, if you have any of the distressing pains and symptoms of indigestion, or if your blood is thin, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and profit by the better condition in which they will put your blood.

He continued in this position until the final consolidation of the Canadian National in 1923, at which time he was appointed traffic manager, Atlantic Region, with supervision over both freight and passenger business, with headquarters at Moncton. Mr. Weldon was appointed to the office of general traffic manager of the system in August last.

Boys Sheep From Royal Ranch

Sheep from the Prince of Wales' Alberta south-west of Calgary, are superfine, according to Walter Charles Priddy, of the Corriedale Sheep Co., Gridley, California. He has just purchased forty head of imported Shropshires from the Royal ranch, as well as fifteen from other flocks in the district.

Proving His Devotion

Bill wrote the following note to his dear one:

"Sweetness, apple of my eye, I would do anything for you; swim the Atlantic, go through fire and hell for you, and would face the most terrible storm or hurricane for your sake.

"And, by the way, I will come over to-night if it doesn't rain too hard."

Evans as the queen, Mr. Hardie as the prince and Mr. Chas. Galloway as Carl the huntsman. Mrs. Pocock played the accompaniment.

The Sunday School is to be congratulated on having the assistance of so much first class musical and histrionic talent as these five brought to the play.

The children who acted as the dwarfs, the fairies and other forest children did their parts with much grace and sweetness, and their fine singing was a surprise to many members of the audience.

The performance of the members of the primary class was also very much appreciated and was a great credit to their teacher and trainer, Miss Muriel Shackleton.

A pleasing solo by Miss Betty Buttenhead was much enjoyed and a vocal solo by Master Arthur Adams was a very special favorite.

The splendid singing of the whole concert reflects great credit on all members of the Sunday School and choir who were responsible for the production and the training of the participants. This applies especially to Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Wilmot-Smith and Mrs. Pocock, who gave very generously of their time in training the children, and to whom the Sunday School is very grateful.

WATERING CATTLE

For the first few years that winter-feeding of cattle was carried on at the Experimental Station at Beaverlodge, there was an inadequate water supply and that at some distance from the feeding corrals. Later the water supply was increased to the corrals but was available for the cattle for only a short time in the forenoon. For the past half dozen years the water has been stored in a large tank supplied with a heater which keeps it from freezing and the cattle can drink when they wish.

When the water was at a distance from the corrals they would have to be driven to water or they would wait till thirst compelled them. They would fill up with water, hump their backs and shiver, especially in cold weather, and not chew their cud for an hour or more after drinking. When water-ed once daily in the corral the effect was similar, but not so bad. When water was constantly available the cattle were going to the water at all times but taking only a few mouthfuls at once, and they did not bump their backs nor shiver, but began chewing their cud almost immediately.

A 14-inch self-shaking cast iron tank heater can be had for about ten dollars. Coal necessary to operate it will be from 5 to 10 pounds per day in cold weather.

Although there are no comparative records as to gains in cattle watered constantly, yet the more comfortable and thrifty appearance of those getting water at all times would seem to justify the extra expense many times.

JUST FOR TONIGHT

(Author Unknown)

Backward, turn backward, O time in your flight,
Give me long hair again, just for tonight.

Let me get busy, ere memory fades,
Washing my tresses and doing up braids.

Let some beau call for me driving a team,
Even a buckboard would not be so worse;

Let us come trotting back, me at his side,
Let me say, "Thanks for the old buggy ride."

Let me give parties where all behave well,
Proper in manners or stories they tell;

Let some good dancer with decorous grip
Waltz me around with no flash on his hip.

O, let me rest from this soul-killing pace,
Throw away compact and cigarette case;

Tune out the radio, let me expand,
Playing sweet airs on the upright or grand.

Let me wear shirts that are down to my chin,
Put on a bustle to see how it feels;
How I'd love low heels, regardless of style,
Give me my corsets back, just for tonight.

The Alberta Pool elevator reserve fund totals $1,371,965.52.

The Winter Sports Centre of America

Winter reigns supreme in Quebec once again. The romantic and historic city of Quebec gives itself up as in former years to the invigorating joy of winter sports. They take it seriously there and they have every reason for doing so. Perhaps at no other centre on the continent are the conditions so ideal. Plenty of snow, a keen steady climate, hills to slide down and great slides for tobogganing. The Chateau Frontenac, owned by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, is undoubtedly the great centre of winter sports in Quebec. The above photograph shows the scene slide that provides endless amusement for all. To the left on the heights stands the Chateau, and to this famous hostelry visitors come from far and near to take part in the winter festivities.

The first outstanding events are scheduled to take place during the last week in December. In January the inter-collegiate ski meet will be held, at which it is expected, as was the case last season, teams from many of the Canadian and American universities will take part. The open championship ski jumping contest of the Province Winter Sports Association will be held in the third week of February, the closing trophy of which is now in the possession of the Ottawa Ski Club. There will also be held in February the all championship meet of the city of Quebec.

Skating is being specially catered to. There are being built at present 4 dozen large open air rinks in the city, while the Canadian (open as the world knows during championships, not for February 7 and 8, will bring the crews of Canadian and American speed shakers to Quebec.

Hockey is already coming to from amateur Canadian and the United States for the fourth eastern International Cup duel derby to be held February 11-20. Among those already received are R. L. Britton, of Chicago; Ontario Paper Co., Quebec Power Bros., of Quebec (two teams); P. J. Molloy, Berlin, N.H.; and the Province Quebec Provincial Police. Officials of the Eastern International Dog Sled Derby Club expect at least 25 of the finest teams on the continent will be entered in this event.

Much earlier than this, however, the famous Dufferin Terrace Tobogganing Slide will be in operation as well in advance of the Christmas season. A new attraction in the form of a deep bobsled run will also be built by the Frontenac Winter Sports Association for the use of the city clubs and will further add to the attractions. Visitors will, therefore, be able to enjoy this exhilarating sport without even going outside the limits of the old city.

Hockey will provide the most rapid fun with all he can desire. The new Quebec "Bulldogs," will put a strong line-up in action against a United States climate, Boston, Mass., Providence and Boston, in the new Quebec Provincial Amphitheatre. The old Quebec Hockey League, National League and others.

Quebec, too, will undoubtedly still bring rinks from all over the continent to "curse" for the handsome Strathcona Trophy, for competition. Her Excellency, the Governor-General, for presentation, of which Quebec City and Province curlers have been striving for years. The old-time French-Canadian customs will greatly to the picturesqueness of the city and to its appeal to visitors.

The Quebec Winter Sports Association, under whose auspices the Quebec Winter Carnival is held annually, announces a total of $12,000 to make the coming celebration a great success. Prizes will go for hockey tournaments, speed contests, etc.

Starting News

Had young Lord Dorminster been looking into Joanna's face, when he finished, he would have been puzzled by what he saw. She had been for while white he told her that "they" were saying she had stolen all of Queen Constant's horses. Slowly the brown almon of her eyes had crept back until they were almost black. Two hectic red tips had set in a straight line. But Teddy didn't look at the girl beside him. The echo of his last words hardly had died when he went into a funk with himself. He looked straight ahead, between his mount's ears, and inwardly cursed.

Teddy Dorminster was not the kind to say that sort of thing about anybody, to anybody, much less repeat it to the enemy of others. He was sorry, and damned his lapse. When he did, stance, timidly, at Joanna, her face had cleared, the brown had once more settled down to its usual shade, and her lips had relaxed. She detected his chagrin at his self and was conscious of his sideway glance. In mute acknowledgment of both she reached across with her riding crop and patted his sleeve, lightly.

They came, just then, upon the appearances to the little wooden shrine of St. Cyr, where the romantic legends, and wantonly, they pulled up their mounts. Dorminster held his hand for Joanna's foot as she stepped to the ground. He tied the bridle straps together and followed her when she strolled to a stone bench under a cluster of pepper trees.

"I say!" he exclaimed shyly. "I'm out an, you know, about popping off like that! I shouldn't have bothered Kenilworth, and as to Yvonne—" She interrupted him. "And I shouldn't have asked you," she comforted him. "So tell me things people are saying then. Because, you see, I have known right along. I was only curious to hear if there was anything new. That about Prince Michael and me was."

"Just the same," he insisted, "it was rotten of me. I'll have to see you have taken a man for Prince Michael was the last of the lot. Once I get them all out, the crowd concluded and they are celebrating your climax in every fashionable and every club bar room from Cannes to Ventimiglia. They make an uglier pea-soup out of it because they know that when Yvonne gets ready to turn there'll be some kind of a crash. That's all."

"Not all, Teddy. There's Roddy. You mentioned him. What are they saying about him and me? Give it all to me while I'm still in the mood."

"I hate gossip, Teddy! It's either true or it isn't—what are the things they are saying—"

He waited a minute mood), biting his lips, but whatever his hesitation his stubbornness put them aside.

"Yvonne Constant," he said, "is Kenilworth's bandiwark. She was a decent sort until he shaped her to fit his fancies. Whenever she struggles to get free of him he bends a finger and she kneels. It's generally agreed he is planning to do that to you."

Workmen Find Queer Urns In Germany

Date From Early Stone Age Says Director of Museum

Clay urns believed to contain the ashes of people from Indo-European races have been discovered by workmen in Gohn, near Potsdam. Besides the urns, which were found two feet below the surface, lay two stone hammers and two stone knives.

All were contained in what is believed to be a clay casket, though the workmen, lacking knowledge of the importance of the discovery, did not call attention before the attention of archaeologists was called to the dig ging.

The grave was found on a small hill and it is believed that others exist in the immediate neighborhood. The director of the Potsdam Museum, established the urns, declared they dated from the early stone age and were the first type ever found in Germany. The clay figures were drawn in friezes around the urns and the covers were provided with rims to keep them in position like a modern jar.

Around one large urn were five smaller ones, presumably containing food or drink for the departed. Unfortunately, only two of these were saved from the workmens' picks. Their contents were turned over to archaeologists who will try to discover what the ancients considered desirable for their dead.

Little Helps For This Week

Every purpose of the Lord shall be performed.—Jer. li. 29

At best our best endeavor
Must faint and fail forever,
Without God's guiding Power to point
The how or where;
Then let us choose His choosing,
All selfish choice refusing,
Nor question which is better to serve
Him love or there
—Margaret J. Preston.

To wish to serve Him in one place rather than in another, by such and such a way, and not by the opposite one, is to wish to serve Him in our own way, and not in His. But to be equally ready for all things, to accept everything and reject nothing, to leave one's self like a toy in the hands of Providence,—this is serving Him by renouncing self, this is trusting Him truly as God, and ourselves as creatures made only for Him.

The word Aspirande is derived from the Italian lanch spezzata, originally meaning a non-commissioned officer in a foot regiment.

Not Used As Name

Only Two Islands and One Province Own Name in Christmas

At least three places now their names to Christmas. Two of them are islands.

One is in the East Indies, not a great way from Java. It is the top of a huge submerged mountain 15,000 feet in height, only 1,200 feet of which show above the sea. The island is valuable because of the deposits of phosphate of lime formed there by sea birds during thousands of years. Before its discovery in 1888 it was uninhabited, and even now the population numbers only about three hundred.

The other Christmas Island lies in the Pacific Ocean, nearly on the Equator. It was discovered in 1777, but was only annexed by Great Britain in 1888 with a view to luring the Pacific cable. Its riches lie in guano and mother of pearl.

The most important of Christmas's namesakes is Natal, a province of South Africa. The Portuguese discovered it on Christmas Day and named it. Natal since it was sighted on Christ's natal day.

Scoutmaster Lamoureux takes this opportunity to express to all Boy Scouts and Cubs his wish that they all enjoy the Christmas festivities to the utmost and that the New Year will hold for them a plentiful share of happiness.

Ralph Pocock was struck on the mouth with a puck at the rink last Thursday evening. X-ray examinations show his jaw to be cracked but it is now thought that two teeth, which it was expected he would lose, may be saved.

At the regular meeting of the Boy Scouts Tuesday evening the Scouts and Cubs were entertained by Scoutmaster Lamoureux. The principal event of the evening was a Christmas tree from which every boy received a bag of candy, nuts and an orange.

Josephburg

(Too late for last week)

We regret to record that Mr. X— while approaching his residence the other evening, was attacked by a strange dog which bit him on the back porch.

Sleighing looked pretty hopeless along our part of the correction line after the blizzard, but a few hardy spirits like W. Cranston have broken the trail, and attendance at school was pretty high by Tuesday morning. Good kids!

(Current week)

A fair-sized gathering enjoyed the display of lantern pictures at Beaver Hills church last Sunday evening. The natural beauties of Japan were splendidly set forth, and supplemented by a set of the world's famous paintings.

Date to remember—Church concert at Josephburg Reformed church on Christmas Eve.

Mrs. Jacob Bensig is confined to bed with an attack of grippe.

CORRESPONDENCE

To the Trustees of the Partridge Hill Public School.

Sirs:

I advised when you requested me to join the annual School concert with the Sunday School concert that I could not consider this for a moment, as, besides the fact that the School District is composed of members of various religious bodies and the Sunday School has pupils from other districts than Partridge Hill, the policy and advice of the Education department is strongly against any religious complications in educational affairs, and it is absolutely illegal to take school monies for any outside interests.

As this morning (Monday, the 20th) the pupils stated that it was announced in church that their concert announced for the 21st, after the school dans of 23rd was set, was now changed to the 22nd, the actual date set for school closing, I must remind you that even any formal closing of the school as ordered by the department, and that the Board is supporting this I demand that my resignation to take effect on the 21st be accepted without the usual thirty days notice.

HOCKEY

The Werner Hardware (Edmonton) hockey team met the local seniors in a friendly (?) game on the local ice New Year's Day. The first two periods were played without incident other than the local boys had the lead by 2 goals to nil, Pete Karran being responsible for both. Fur began to fly in the third period, the visitors scoring three goals and Gordon Walker making a third tally for the home team. Extra time of five minutes each way gave the visitors their opportunity to change the tie to a victory, scoring another to make the final score 4—3.

The local boys were palpably out of condition and a course of training would improve their efficiency considerably.

Free fights were far too frequent and apparently unnecessary, if one could judge correctly from the fence. E. Chabot was kept busy handing out penalties to culprits of one misdemeanor or another and was impartial in his judgments. Laurie Diamond refereed the game.

The Fort line-up—goal, RenoTercier; defense, P. Karran, McDonough; Forwards, R. Stuckey, G. Walker, D. Blythe; subs: Geo. Stuckey, T. Blythe, Bud Allard, D. van Ilfand.

Warrior's line-up included Bob Karran, Wally and Colin Clarke.

Differing from the New Year's day game in that it was a clean game, free from dog fights and catch-as-catch-can wrestling, the exhibition this evening between the Fort seniors and East Clover Bar was one which could be witnessed with pleasure. The condition of the ice also was more favorable and those who went with the idea of seeing a hockey game were not disappointed.

Clover Bar secured their three tallies in the first two periods, the Fort, though playing equally as good a brand of hockey seemed unable to find the net. The Fort got the range in the third period however, and shot in five. The sharpshooters were G. Walker (2), R. Stuckey, Don Blythe, Tom Blythe.

The same team lined up as in the previous game and L. Diamond was again referee.

LADY CURLERS ARRANGE NEW YEAR'S EVE DANCE

The brightest and most successful dance of the season was held in the Memorial hall New Year's eve. It was arranged by the lady curlers for the benefit of the curling club and the results justified the hard work the ladies made for themselves in preparation. The decorations were lavish and very pretty, completely hiding the dinginess of the walls. The buffet room, where the excellent supper was served, was more elaborately decorated than it ever has been before.

Several special dances appeared on the program, the music for which was excellently supplied by the local orchestra.

Weddings

SMITH—DARBYSON

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Lawrence, Partridge Hill, was the scene of a pretty wedding at 4:30 p.m. December 29, when Mabel Violet, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Darbyson, of Kingston, Ontario, and Ernest Malcolm, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Smith of Partridge Hill were united in marriage. Rev. P. D. Roxburgh, Edmonton, officiated.

The bridal party entered the room to the strains of the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin played by Miss Susie Smith, sister of the groom.

The bride was given in marriage by Mr. Geo. Lawrence and was charming in a pretty gown of Alice blue georgette with lace trimming, and wearing a bridal veil and wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a beautiful shower bouquet of bridal roses and valley lilies.

Miss Ellen Smith, sister of the groom, was a pretty bridesmaid and wore a gown [illegible] taffeta and georgette, with [illegible] ribbons and French flowers in pastel shades. She carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was an onyx and pearl ring; to the best man a pearl-set tie pin.

Obituary

Mrs. Elizabeth Ransley of Horse Hills, Alberta, passed away at the home of her son-in-law, George W. Henley, Sunday evening, after a short illness, aged 75 years.

The funeral service was held this (Wednesday) afternoon from the United church, Rev. C. E. A. Pocock officiating. Interment was made at the local cemetery.

Deceased was for twenty-one years a resident of the town and had a large number of friends here. She leaves to mourn her loss five daughters in Canada and one daughter and three sons in England.

GAUF—To Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gauf, Fort Saskatchewan, for a New Year's gift, a son.

Immediately after the ceremony a buffet lunch was served. Mrs. Geo. Lawrence and Mrs. Wesley Attewell, sisters of the groom, poured the tea and cut the ice.

Owing to illness in the family only immediate relatives were present.

Mr. Rexburgh proposed the toast to the bride, the groom responding [illegible].

Amid showers of confetti, rice and good wishes the happy couple left for Edmonton en route to the coast where the honeymoon will be spent.

The bride travelled in a dress of navy taffeta with gold trimmings, and a black velvet hat and wearing the groom's gift, a mink-marmot coat.

On their return they will take up their residence in Partridge Hill, where the groom is engaged in farming.

The good wishes of a wide circle of friends are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

CURLING

Eight rinks took part in the local bonspiel New Year's Day and the process of elimination brought the rinks of A. M. Carscadden and Hurf Graham together for the final game in the evening. Graham's greasy gurage guys got going good, giving great grief gobs to guileless goofs. The final score was 13—9, and the garage boys are to be presented with cold slaw cuspidors, or something of that sort. The Record suggests the presentation be delayed until the Prince of Wales can be induced to come.

ALTAR SOCIETY MAKES PROFIT

A whist drive under the auspices of the Altar Society was held in the buffet room of the Memorial hall last Wednesday evening. Twenty-two tables were used by the large crowd and prizes were won by the following: Ladies' 1st, Mrs. McKellar, consolation, Mrs. P. Hill. Gentlemen's 1st, Mr. O'Brien, consolation, Mr. Hancheitz.

Refreshments were served. Father Zepharin gave two vocal solos and Miss Mary Hosan obliged with pianoforte selections.

International Ignorance

Ignorance and misunderstanding among the nations root a more trouble than the machinations of political leaders, who are blamed for so many of the world's ills. Democratic government, says a Japanese former minister of education, has involved such a state that the free will judgment born of intelligent study is in many countries overshadowed by the weight of passion, prejudice and the knack-using focal appointees in the Empire. To settle this personal malaise of the world, in like cases out of ten, to international ignorance and suspicion and the one cause he assigns as the principal reason for the strained relations which have existed in recent years between the United States and Japan.

The Japanese statesman holds that the greatest need in the advancement of a better understanding between these two countries is more publicity in the printing by the papers of both countries of more news of more importance of the other country and a corresponding reduction in the amount of boosting and cable tolls which, he states, would be an considerable aid in bringing about the consummation of this campaign to education against the great and always present danger of national ignorance.

I wholeheartedly one of the reasons for the sympathetic and good relations existing between the United States and Canada is that we understand each other, an understanding brought about by a constant interchange of newspapers and periodicals of all kinds, free letter-course across the border by mail, telegraph, telephone, radio, automobile and train. While many similar separate nationalities and quite different national beliefs exist with an example of political unions, there nevertheless exists the utmost friendship and best understanding on that the most complete state of absolutism and impossible.

The secret is that we understand each other, and that understanding is to the outcome of knowledge of each other. Each country is able to see the other's viewpoints. If, instead of this knowledge, the two great groups of people dividing the North American continent between them were steeped in ignorance of each other, there would be constant friction.

One more progress on strength possessed by the British Empire is the knowledge which each component part has of the other parts. Statesmen have always recognized the importance of the rapid and continuous dissemination of information throughout the Empire and every encouragement has been given to the provision of more complete means of communication by radio, submarine lines, imperial penny postage, and in those ways which lead to the development of mental communication. Not the least of the advantages of the periodical Imperial Conference is the discussion and mind reasoning on Empire problems which result and from which understanding increases.

So, too, in the annual gatherings of the League of Nations Assembly, and the frequent meetings of the Council of the League and its many committees, is to be found one of the greatest of all preventatives of future wars. These meetings bring about mutual understanding and dissipate ignorance and prejudice. Only recently, one of the outstanding figures in the public life of Germany of today declared that had there existed the same machinery for consultation between the nations prior to 1914 as is now provided by the League of Nations, the Great War would never have been fought.

The need of the hour, world is greater knowledge. That is greater international knowledge. Fortunately, the trend of modern inventions is to facilitate the dissemination of such knowledge and to promote world trade and international intercourse.

Impressed by a moment from the international aspect of this fundamental question of knowledge versus ignorance, it will readily be appreciated that the same truth has equal force when applied to Canada itself. Any weakness in our national position today is to be found in a lack of complete understanding between the different parts of the Dominion, in the fact that Maritime Province conditions are not as fully understood and appreciated in Ontario and the West as they ought to be, and because in Ontario and down by the Atlantic seaboard it is difficult for them to visualize and grasp our Western problems.

In the development of that much to be desired knowledge of each other every possible opportunity should be employed, through the press, by means of national conventions, encouragement of tourist traffic within the Dominion, in which good roads, railways and even airplanes will play their part. The replacing of ignorance by knowledge will do more than anything else to attain a unison and mutual understanding, just as certainly as it will remove causes of international misunderstandings and friction which lead to war.

Always Double Liability

Home Bank shareholders did not have a ghost of a chance to escape double liability when the matter came into court. Purchasers of bank shares do so with their eyes open, if anything happens to the bank, they are liable for the amount of their shares. However, most people would take that chance on the stock of the Canadian chartered banks of today.

The city of Detroit was photographed recently from a distance of 210 miles, aviators using a new 6-speed lens, 9 inches thick.

Huge Amount Left By Auto Tourists

Canada Reaped $194,000,000 During First Ten Months of Last Year

Automobile tourists from the United States entering Canada during 1926 left a gross revenue to the people of the Dominion of over $194,000,000 according to a report estimate made by A. W. Campbell, Dominion Commissioner of Highways, to May 1st. Estimated gross revenue from this tourist traffic was $200,000,000 the latter figure, however, was for the calendar year, while the figure for last year's business was not complete, and only for ten months ending with December 31st. In the return for the entire calendar year in 1926 will show an even larger total value over 1925.

From Jan 1 to the end of 1926, the number of United States automobiles entering Canada at Customs ports of entry for tourist purposes was 3,000,000. Under the twenty-four hour period, 1,262,185, estimated gross revenue from the 2,527,000 cars, $10,000,000; permit, 330,747 cars for one month, $150,223,500. 60 days 1,405 cars, $2,250.

An indication of the extent of the incoming United States automobile tourist's visits at the principal entry points into British Columbia over the Los Angeles-Vancouver Highway, Tobacco Gate, Lower Fraser Highway at Emerson, Tuta Cabin to Winnipeg 6,000 cars; Sumas, 6,000 cars; Paterson, 3,000 cars; Rosseau Lake, Detroit, 30,000 cars; Niagara Falls and Bridgeburg, 120,000 cars; Kingston, Prescott and Brockville, over 12,000; St. Lawrence River at Quebec Province, about 100,000 cars; in which would cover the Canadian coast as only a narrow river intervenes.

The explanation offered as to the large number of cars entering at the Niagara Falls point as compared with the small number at Quebec points is, that there are many businesses at Niagara Falls being commercial transactions between United States and Canadian towns and cities there.

It has never been excelled by sensational methods, but has simply gone on offering relief and making new converts.

Uses American Slang

American slang has become a part of everyday speech of Anton Lang, the "Christus" of the Passion Play at Oberammergau, said Prof. C. H. Conrad by of Wesleyan University. The professor visited Lang while in Germany by invitation and found that while he spoke excellent English he frequently used with evident delight many colloquialisms that he had garnered while in the country.

Extracting Chemical Compounds From Coal More Valuable Than Heat From Combustion

Scientists are predicting that within a generation a new coal age will replace that prevailing for the last six centuries when men have known both long better than to burn coal as it came out of the mine. Experts of various countries, who attended the recent international conference on bituminous coal held at Pittsburgh agreed on this, and their conclusions open another chapter in the thrilling romance of science. Chemists, mining engineers and fuel experts all over the world on the threshold of a new era in fuel realization when it will be deemed a criminal waste to burn raw coal as fuel instead of extracting the chemical compounds that are far more valuable than the heat produced by combustion.

The conclusion of the world's coal expert, upon a new wonderland of science which, from a commercial point of view, will surpass the marvels of radio communication. They predict to decade for centuries from the problem of motor fuel, with a process superior to gasoline and far cheaper. That scientific dreams, which must be translated into commercial fact, will eliminate the tremendous waste in burning the raw coal, the huge cost of transportation, the evil of the inconbustible by products and the menacing cans of coal scattered in the hills. That modern wonder will be accomplished, it is predicted, by a process of pulverizing coal to the consistency of talcum powder so that it becomes a fluid when heated and runs like water. Then will come the use of the new coal oil instead of gasoline in internal combustion engines That this is not limited to a prophetic future is clear from the announcement that before long automobile engines will be testing the new fuel. France already has experimented extensively with alcohol derived from coal.

With coal treated as a liquid instead of a solid, the coal industry and technic must undergo a complete change, according to the scientists, who declare that the mining of coal, transportation, burning, carbonization and gasification will be affected. It should follow that the nation no longer will be compelled to pay an excess tax cover the cost of production at the power mines under existing conditions. The new outlook was summed up in the following terms:

"Because coal can be purified, because it can be pulverized to a minute slave, because it can be distilled at high thermal efficiencies to produce oil, gas and combined power, because it can be made to flow and to pump, because it represents the most efficient methods for the conversion of mechanical energy, the world may look forward with confidence to a new era of coal, greater and more purposeful use."

The iron age has been supplanted by that of oil, which will continue indefinitely. The source of that oil is the magnificent of science are preparing to wave their wands over the tremendous coal deposits and assure to man a fuel supply for the coming generation.

Color Photography

May Be Useful In Throwing Some Light On Conditions On Mars

Color photography may throw some light on conditions on Mars.

Whether Mars has an atmosphere with its important bearing on the possibility of life on the planet long ago will be settled, it is hoped, by experiments with color photography. In an article written for the Astrophysical Journal, Prof. F. E. Ross, of the University of Chicago a member of the staff at Yerkes Observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., says that "pictures taken by the use of red and violet lights, notably the long infra-red, penetrate the atmosphere and reveal the planet and produce a much better picture than when ordinary light is used."

Time to Get Busy

There is a lot of truth in the statement that the psychological time for a country to launch an aggressive colonization campaign is when her agriculture has definitely entered the upward swing. It looks as though Canada had better get busy.

Menaces To Navigation

Maritime Patrol Keeps Ocean Lanes Free From Obstructions

While seas exhibit no boundaries on the world, a vigilant maritime patrol, unknown to most landlubbers, busily stalks the 16,000 trackless miles to commerce-menacing shipping.

Icebergs, floating debris, land obstacles, drifting derelicts and opaque fog are some of the menaces to navigation against which our naval patrol is constantly on guard. Of these, the world over, the floating derelict offers the most important problem to the international ice patrol, according to Admiral Frederick Rogers, chief of the hydrographic office of the U. S. department of the navy. Derelicts are vessels abandoned at sea because they are unseaworthy or because they have been stripped of their crews by disease, fire, collision or other accidents. Many of these derelicts, including steamships, sailing vessels and barges, are known to be drifting about the world's shipping lanes, a menace to navigation, particularly in the fog-bound North Atlantic, where the greatest number of derelicts are reported.

Derelicts are especially dangerous because they are usually unlighted and are frequently submerged, making them difficult to see. Many of them are known to have been struck by ships and sunk without warning.

Admiral Rogers, who has been in charge of the hydrographic office since 1919, has made a special study of derelicts and has compiled a list of those known to be drifting about the world's shipping lanes. Many of these derelicts, he says, have been reported by ships which have struck them and reported their positions. Others have been reported by ships which have sighted them and reported their positions. Still others have been reported by ships which have sighted them and reported their positions. Still others have been reported by ships which have sighted them and reported their positions.

Admiral Rogers has also made a special study of the movements of derelicts and has found that they drift in accordance with the prevailing winds and currents. Many of them, he says, have been reported by ships which have sighted them and reported their positions. Still others have been reported by ships which have sighted them and reported their positions.

THE STANDARD OF CHRISTIAN LIVING

Golden Text: Be therefore ye shall be perfect, as your heavenly Father is perfect Matthew 5:48

Explanations and Comments

I. The Law of Love, verses 27-31 (See Matthew 5:39-45, 7:12; 5:42; 6:19-21).

I say unto you, love your enemies." So ruled by love in your treatment of them. At the same time when Jesus uttered these words, revenge brooded upon his enemy was considered noble. Recall how Cicero gloated over the misfortunes of his enemy; the thought that fortune had on his embittered that he could say no one had done more good to his friends nor more mischief to his enemies. "The Greek word for love in our text is essentially chosen. It is not demand and that we should love our enemies with a natural and spontaneous affection (philia), but with a supernatural Christian love that issues in grace (agapao)." Stapenter's Greek Testament).

We all agree with Francis de Sales that "love" It is much easier to love those who are agreeable and obliging to us that fly is not attacked by stings and bones." But to love one who is cross, captious, tiresome is an unpleasant process as observing it is need. The scientists, however, do not disclose the secret as to method, by which, in the course of two years' effort, they have overcome the difficulty of obtaining sufficiently large illumination without injuring the skin of the subject.

The discovery is declared to be of the greatest importance from a medical viewpoint both for teaching and research. Physiologists will be able to obtain exact information about many processes which they have before been judges only by inference.

Good Reasons For Advertising

Southern Newspaper Gives Eight That Should be Convincing

An enumeration of the reasons for advertising has recently been given out, says the Kingston Whig-Standard There are eight reasons advanced, but there are many others, of course. However, here are eight that are very splendid and highly sun sible, as given in a southern newspaper:

Newspaper reading is a universal daily habit; magazine, theatre, movie reaches each day virtually all who buy

Newspaper advertising is the lifeblood of local trade because it touches all consumer sources in every community. It gives the national advertiser the same opportunity to reach his place consumer appeal in any locality.

Newspaper advertising cuts selling costs because it reaches the bulk of the locality of circulation. Manufacturers use it to cover markets to where it is profitable to do business.

Newspaper advertising insures quick, thorough and economical dealer distribution and dealer goodwill, for dealers realize are willing to sell products advertised direct to their own consumers.

Newspaper advertising enables manufacturers to check advertising when they enter.

Newspaper advertising costs less than any other kind.

The merchant or other business man who takes advantage of the opportunities offered by newspaper advertising to boost his business at this Christmas season will be able to face the quiet months of January and February without undue worry.

When we got Zam-Buk on to the sore wound ceased and I stayed it in very short time. To Encourage Fur Farming

Marsh Lands in Saskatchewan Now Available for This Purpose

Negotiations between the Saskatchewan and Dominion governments regarding the leasing of marsh lands for fur farming purposes have been completed and arrangements are being made by which the provincial authorities will lease certain crown lands for fur farming purposes, Hon. C. M Hamilton, minister of agriculture, has announced.

Large areas of marsh lands owned by the crown are available for fur farming in the northern part of the province, but the area of such land left in the south is relatively small, the water courses being more or less limited and home-seeking having long been carried on extensively.

Completion of the negotiations between the Federal and provincial governments means that applications may now be received by the Saskatchewan authorities from individuals desiring to lease land suitable for fur farming.

A MEDICINE THAT ALL MOTHERS PRAISE

Baby's Own Tablets Banish Babyhood and Childhood Ailments

Mrs. H. Oxley, Natalia, Que., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets in my family for the past fifteen years and I believe the good health my children enjoy is due entirely to this medicine. The Tablets are helpful at teething time, relieve colds and are the best to be found in the treatment of little ones. I have recommended Baby's Own Tablets to other mothers whose experiences with them has been as satisfactory as my own."

We are sorry to announce that our competent editor, Miss Helen Mears, is in quarantine with "chicken pox." We hope this infection will not spread to the other children especially in view of the approaching Christmas festivities.

On account of this sudden defection from our ranks, it has been necessary for the other members of the staff to get down and nourish for material for this column.

We understand that her illness is keeping poor Helen 'up to the scratch' also. All jokes aside, we hope she will make a quick recovery and that we will soon have the pleasure of seeing her back in her old place at school.

Cooeing and Consequences

To say that cooeing is good sport is putting it mildly. Even us, some of our young ladies do not quite enjoy themselves unless certain boys are present. Their absence, worthy hearer, you will admit is enough to spoil any young person's pleasure. In spite of all, however, the boys and girls do enjoy skating and will neglect their dearest Latin for it. Mr. Mackin, unfortunately does not think it a very good pastime for the younger generation, so they (the scholars) have decided to have Herbert Oxley for their teacher. He promises to assign no homework, then "Hurrah for cooeing!"

FORT LADY CURLERS STRUT THEIR STUFF

The following lady curlers of the Fort were guests of the ladies of the Edmonton curling club at the sixth street rink last Wednesday and emerged victorious from a game remarkable for the excellence of play: Mrs. Harper, Mrs. Lane, Mrs Taylor, Mrs. Henry; Mrs. Mort Wright, Miss Atkinson, Mrs. Grubb, Mrs. Beeker.

At the commencement of the last end Mrs. Harper was leading 7—6, but the last three rocks reversed the score. The opposing skip laid her rock about two inches closer to the button than Mrs. Harper's, tieing the score, and with her last rock made a perfect draw down on the button, winning out 8—7.

Mrs. Wright was on the small end of an 8—6 score at the beginning of the last end but made four rocks count, making the score read 10—8 in her favor, deciding the match in favor of the Fort ladies over the Edmonton veterans of the game by one point.

The local ladies were afterwards entertained with tea and meats by their Edmonton hostesses.

HOCKEY

(By Onlooker)

The Fort Saskatchewan Seniors entertained the Seniors in a snappy game last Saturday night. The Seniors won by the score of 3—1, but they only secured one goal, the other being accidentally scored by a member of the Junior team.

The Juniors deserved to win as they outclassed the Seniors in every department of the game except shooting on goal. The regular forward line composed of Red and Abe Allard and Irwin Hatton dished up some combined rushes that had the Seniors baffled to a turn only to lose the puck at the blue line or to shoot wide of the goal.

Roy Stanley, Kelly Walker and Tommy Hyrhe showed up the best on the Senior's forward line though they failed to play combination and seldom got inside of the blue line. If the Juniors brush up in their shooting on goal the first thing we know they will change places with the Seniors.

The Juniors are arranging with the "Hustlers" of Edmonton for a game here Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. Some figure this to be too big a "joke" for the local Juniors as the Hustlers have not lost a game this year, but if they can hold the seniors down to a 3—1 score you can bet the Hustlers won't get a runaway win

HOCKEY FOR FORT SASKATCHEWAN

ATTENTION!

It would seem that some thoughtless boy has been brushing, with his hockey stick, the ornamental trees planted last Spring along Government street, and which, if allowed to grow, would eventually add to the beauty of our town.

We appeal to the boys to help us in improving our town by sparing these trees and others that we hope to plant in the future.

Our object is to make this a more attractive place is which to live, especially for you young people, when you and the trees shall have grown to maturity.

Canada and Japan

Dr. H. M. Tory, president of the University of Alberta and chairman of the National Research Council of Canada, represented Canada at the scientific conference of all countries having an outlet on the Pacific, which was held a few months ago in Japan, and in a recent address before the Canadian Club of Saskatoon he gave some of his impressions of Japan and its people. Dr. Tory's highly entertaining and interesting address contained much food for thought on the part of Canadians.

In matters of area, Dr. Tory pointed out, Japan is about two-fifths the size of Alberta and Saskatchewan, and of that area only about twenty per cent is capable of cultivation. Nor-withstanding the islands of Japan are inhabited by almost sixty millions of people. Therefore, Japan, like the British Isles, must provide for the maintenance of its people by the importation of enormous quantities of foodstuffs, and for their employment in other ways than agriculture. Japan has as a consequence become a highly industrialized nation.

Japan is frequently referred to as the Great Britain of the Pacific and the description is an apt one. Not only is there an analogy as noted in the preceding paragraph, but Japan like Britain, has to depend a large and steady merchant marine and is offering effective competition in the markets of Pacific countries. In another respect Japan is adopting British methods. It is importing raw materials from other lands, converting them into articles of manufacture, and then re-selling the finished product even in the very countries from which the raw materials were imported.

For example, Japan is importing raw cotton from the United States, manufacture it, and re-sell the manufactured articles in the United States in competition with American and British manufacturers, after paying heavy United States customs duties.

In the first six months of last year Japan imported forty million more bushels of wheat than in the corresponding period of the previous year. Then mills are being erected to grind this wheat into flour, not only to supply the home demand, but for export.

Japan, said Dr. Tory, is just as keenly interested in promoting its export trade, and pays as much consideration to an adverse balance of trade, as Can ada does in respect to that of Dominion. The Japanese realize that they must import large quantities of land, and they are determined to pay for these im port, through the sale of the products of their industries. This is a situation of which Canada and the world must take cognizance.

No person can spend a shorter in the conditions of the people of Japan than do those of the British Empire. The English language is taught in all the schools, and realizing that English is, and in an ever increasing extent will be, the language of commerce, Japan is in every way encouraging the people to learn it so that within a generation or two every educated person in Japan will have a command of the language. Every year, too, the brightest students from Japanese universities are sent all over the world to learn every thing in the arts and sciences that the best thought and the latest inven tions have to offer.

Canada has a golden opportunity before it for the development of trade and commerce with Japan on a truly gigantic scale. The Dominion has far more an abundance of many of the things which Japan lacks and must buy. As a British people there is a friendly feeling for us. The two countries have one another across the Pacific with lines of communication already established. One thing remains for the people of Canada to learn and to do if full advan tage is to be taken of the opportunities awaiting it in Japan and the Orient as a whole.

Canada is a young, large, and undeveloped country. Japan is an old land with a history under one ruling dynasty dating back to hundreds of years before Christ. The family of the present Emperor has ruled over Japan in an unbroken line for 2,000 years. Japan is a small country, densely population. It is fully developed and highly industrialized. Its people are intensely patriotic, of a high order of intelligence, and very proud. To the extent that Canadians are observed with the Western idea that the Japanese are an inferior people, they will fail in making headway in Japan. Canadians will have to do business with them on with equals. It will not do to offer to Japan our third rate or even second rate products, and to regard that country as a dumping ground for what cannot be sold elsewhere. Japan will not be so treated. It must be given the best we have to offer.

If Canadians generally come to appreciate this, and act accordingly, there is hardly any limit that can be placed on the future trade between the two countries.—a trade in which Western Canada will reap a rich return.

Winter Travel In North Hard

For Tenders Encounter Difficulties on Trail to Edmonton

The trials and tribulations of winter travel in the north-land while were encountered by a party of fur traders who fought their way through hilly lands, snowdrifts and bitter cold, to Edmonton.

It was pretty tough on the trail covered with a thin sheet of ice which broke as soon as the horses put food on it and then plunged the animals' mouth through but were pressed to report also the most dangerous stretches of the journey. Here the animals' mouth the horses and party of sleighs to order for. Constantly two members of the party plunged into the deep, breaking test holes to spot the safest way.

The men fared extreme hard-ships on the long trek, the country at times skidded to 30 and 40 below zero. During one night's halt, the caravan was forced to camp in the biting blizzard and in the morning two sleighs were buried in the deep drifts and had to be dug out. The men were pretty well worn out when they reached Edmonton.

Labor Fights Communism

American Labor Leader Would Rid Ranks of Destructive Elements

Ridding the ranks of all alien radical elements and revolutionary elements is the first task to which American organized labor has set itself for the new year.

In a statement, in which he views with satisfaction the achievements of labor in the past year and expresses confidence in 1927, Matthew Woll, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, declares that the fight against communistic elements in the labor ranks will continue.

"We have fought the fight of Democratic Communism," he said, when referring to activities of the year just closed, "we have turned upon it all the energy in our bodies, fighting it as the world's enemy of peace, of freedom and our homes. We count the results as satisfying and gratifying beyond words to express."

Woll declared that at no time before had the consuming power of the work been as high as it was in America in the past year.

"We are, in the main, comparatively well off," he said, "and because we make many things, but because our wage levels enable us to buy so many of the things we make, from clothes to pianos, automobile and homes."

THE CHRISTIAN'S USE OF THE BIBLE

Golden Text: Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and light unto my path. Psalm 119:105.

Lesson: Deuteronomy 6:6-9; 2 Timothy 3:14-17.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 119:105-112.

Explanations and Comments.

I. God's Unity and Uniqueness. Deut. 6:4— This passage, verses 4-9, forms one of the shortest, from the Hebrew point of view, but in Hebrew, translated literally, "The Shema is still counted together with Deut. 11:13-21, and Num. 15:37-41, as the first act of worship in the Jewish synagogue, and twice a day by every adult male Jew . . . Hear, O Israel, Jehovah our God is one Jehovah. This signifies not only the unity but the uniqueness of God. In the Hebrew manuscripts the last letters of the word "hear" and "one" are written large and spell "ed," the Hebrew word for witness, because it was believed that this was the commonest creed in which witness was borne to God and to be prepared to bear witness to the loyal believer." Between the passage occurs in the Sabbath readings in the Jewish synagogue, and the congregation responds the last word, Achad (Jehovah), for several minutes together with the loudest voice possible. (John Clarke).

The sense of God's reality is a different experience from belief that God exists. All men believe that natural beauty exists, but some men feel it vividly, rejoice in it heartily, while others are never moved by it at all. A shadowy sense of God's reality is one great danger. We do not disbelieve that God exists, but we often lack a penetrating and convincing consciousness that we are dealing with him and He with us. This is the basic problem of prayer."—(H. Farmer.)

Says Men Make Best Cooks

More Interested in Things to Eat According to British Novelist

Men are more interested in food and therefore make the best cooks, declared Norman Venner, novelist, in the London Sunpictorial, official organ of the Soroptimist Club. "No woman should ever be a cook, as men manage much better, being more interested in things to eat," says Mr. Venner, who contends that no woman should ever be expected of a wife as the sole use execution of a chemist.

No woman, he goes on, should ever be in charge of an automatic road drill, or a dentist, or a butchery of bowlers; no woman should ever be a soldier sailor, timber, tramp, professional wrestler, diver or boilermaker. But apart from these the world of action collect is open to the woman worker. "And I for one," says the author, "only hope they will get on with the manager."

The writer takes a fling at the men in his article in the leading magazine, especially the politicians and labor leaders here, who, he claims, in connection with the coal controversy "have made a mess of things.

"I'm afraid I can't tell you much more than people guessed. It hasn't also supplied very much about Miss Ann Kenilworth's visits. I can guess, you know, because no one I know there had any confidence in me."

Pilbeck looked almost a mediaeval mass as of some supposed plans, and thought it needed observance. He sought for the right words to put into over it, oblivious to the others at the table. Joanna brought her hand away. Quietly, she went on:

Before then we had been quite good friends. I remember we had some plan for a memorial, something he wanted some day to build. I was not interested, much, because it wasn't anything I could understand, or wanted in. I remember, though, he stayed on in his house called a "cut" measure, but it was to be something cosy and unassuming suited its themselves. All kind of soldiers, I think, not only our own, but of other countries as well, were close to his mind; it known about. I suppose. Now when you have called to talk to him about it, you will know almost as much as I do."

"Morbid idea," though," the prince observed. "I can't imagine anything I'd run away from quicker than a reminder of that sort. Sentimental though, I suppose they'll always be doing things of the kind."

"The sterling feature of his reception," Trevor remarked, "seems to be his suffering of a woman, a young woman, in the bizarre inception of all soldiers and nothing else, in real or the centenary fighting figure on his left. Pedestal this he have given tribute to her heroic deed. He proposes a memorial structure which shall draw attention to what soldiers fight for. Of Joanna she asked that that idea."

"John wouldn't have one then," she said simply. "I doubt if he'd want one now."

"Yes," Joanna agreed. "That was his original plan, but he seems to have adopted it. It's what he's caught on. I've read that he contends that it is always a girl that suddenly lights for her country, and mothers of some kind at home, one like me, perhaps, or the one they're married to or have had a mother. And mothers and wives were girls in their day. John has explained that he doesn't think girls change like fashions, so he wants a girl who has taken to be to fight for them, they have always been quite the same reliable and worthy while, it's a rather sort of an idea, but I suppose it must be a good one."

Yvonne had shot a sudden glance at Joanna, and kept her eyes on her, in silence, as she finished.

"If I remember correctly," she observed, "he did not always have the opinion that you mention, Joanna."

Joanna nodded at her. "Yes, I've been wondering if he's altered his theories, or just altered his scheme to make it pay."

"At any rate," Kenilworth remarked, "he is in a fair way to use his present notoriety. Mrs. Brady's youth internationalized and there is talk already of duplicating the idea in other countries. The preservation will go any length to draw a beam or an undisturbing memory out of the last upheaval.

Yvonne decided they had given enough of the two hour to the merits of John's idea for popular fame where charm is translated in terms of flesh, would serenade in the morning after the ball, in Bobby's determinations and in the local course, free him for his next feminine engagement. "For," said one young woman to her dancing partner at the fashionable Embassy Club Roddy looks as though he were going to be serious, this time, he hasn't had a serious affair since the early days of Yvonne Contant. He won't be a free agent until he gets over this attack, and the American is delaying matters."

Joanna liked Roddy Kenilworth. She had heard, as people do hear, that Yvonne was more of his making How much to believe is not what to discount by, didn't know, nor care. She gloried in her ability, she who had come out from behind silk counter, to bring the green thick into his eyes whenever she was of the mind to make him take note of her. She knew Roddy more as a emotional fight with himself over her. Inconsistent was always a term Brandon served her whenever she asked, but he remained almost, she was far as I know, unaffected. She would've done. But Roddy made an occasional effort to baffle the spell of her, and in thwart him was like quaffing wine.

Creamery butter production in Saskatchewan from January 1st to October 31st, 1926, totalled 15,120,580 pounds, an increase of 1,324,418 pounds over the record for the corresponding period of 1925. Unfavorable weather in September and October caused a reduction in output in these months compared with the figures for the same months last year.

HOUSE PLANTS IN WINTER

(Experimental Farms Note)

It is rather difficult to keep house plants in good condition throughout the long winter, hence a few hints may prove useful. Some house plants make little growth during the winter and, while they are then at rest or nearly so, they should be given just enough water to prevent the soil from drying up. This applies particularly to ferns, hydrangeas and fuchsias, the tops of which, if kept in a cool place. Plants which are growing should be kept well watered but it is important to see that no water accumulates in the pot or in the saucer underneath, as this will cause the plants to sour, otherwise the roots will rot and the plant not thrive. This often happens to large ferns. Plants should be watered only when the soil is becoming dry, and then thoroughly, not every day as is often done.

Greenness must be kept clean to this end wheat put in a window where they will get much sunlight to have them bloom well. Most blooming plants, such as geraniums, cyclamens, impatiens, spiraea, and bulbs, do better in a moderately warm or cool room than in a hot one.

Spraying plants, such as ferns, palms, rubber plants and asparagus, every three or four weeks is desirable. For aphis rouse the plants in strong soap suds or some tobacco preparation several times at intervals of a few days and, for scale insects, loosen them with a soft tooth brush or finger nail, and wash off with soapy water or some tobacco preparation, and repeat from time to time.

It is the duty of every citizen of the town to attend a meeting of the Fire Brigade next Monday night at 8 o'clock. Being fished while Rome burned and without some sort of organization and pre-arrangement the chimney will at the next fire have to run around like wet hens and be just as useful. Put your Kicking to one side for an hour or so next Monday and see if you can't make some effort to save your property from fire. What if someone have you fined your property is not on the fire demon's list? And if it happens your neighbor's turn comes then yours are you just going to stand by and snicker? You will want to help, won't you? Then come and learn how best to do it. Many hands make light work.

REV. POCOCK ADDRESSES WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The Women's Institute met in the ballot room of the Memorial hall at 2 p.m., January 12. The Rev. Pocock addressed the meeting on the subject of "World Peace," and explained the attitude of the United States. Mr. Pocock received a hearty vote of thanks for his enlightening and beneficial discourse.

Refreshments were served and a social time was enjoyed by all.

The Institute program for the year 1927 promises well and a good beginning was made at this first meeting.

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!

The noise of the bells on his team drowned the sound of an approaching train which nearly ended the career of W. Turner, the town scavenger, last Thursday. His horses' fore feet were on the rail with the engine just a few yards distant when Turner smartly backed up, the engineer slammed on the brakes, and a catastrophe was just avoided.

Turner was startled out of a year's growth, the engineer added a few more grey hairs, the Record lost an ad for a new scavenger and the town almost acquired a new nuisance ground. It pays to stop, look and listen.

GIRLS' A.A.A. DONATES MONEY TO VARIOUS CAUSES

A general meeting of the Girls' A. A.A. was held in the Memorial hall and the following officers were elected: Hon. President—Mrs. A. H. Rogers. President—Miss Ruth Shackleton. Vice-President—Miss Helen Becker. Secretary-Treas.—Miss Irma Groves. Executive Committee — Misses Olive Walker, Meta Graham and Helen Carscadden.

It was moved that $35.00 be donated to the Senior Hockey Club. Carried.

Moved that $10.00 be donated to the Fort Saskatchewan Red Cross. Carried.

After a short discussion it was decided to furnish a private room in the local hospital, costing approximately $100.00. The St. Valentine's dance on February 11th, 1927, is to defray a portion of the expense toward this worthy cause.

The Fort Juniors will play the Edmonton Maroons on the local rink on Saturday, January 22, at 8 p.m.

APPRECIATION

Having sold my interests in the Fort Hardware Co. to my former partner, I wish to thank all my friends and customers for their liberal patronage during my two year's stay in Fort Saskatchewan.

CURLING

Four ladies of the local club met a rink of ladies of the Thistle club, Edmonton, last Wednesday and played a tie game, the score being 5—5. The Fort ladies were leading up till the last end when the Thistle ship equalized. Refreshments were afterwards partaken of. Miss Atkinson, Mrs. Lane, Mrs. Grubb and Mrs. Becker were the Fort standard bearers.

HOCKEY

Not a penalty was given by referee Laurie Diamond in a fast game played between the Fort Seniors and Werner's Hardware of Edmonton on the local ice last Thursday. Two goals were scored by Werner's in the first period, and one in the third. The Fort seconds had goal in the first, two in the third and one in the last to counter enough necessary to decide the winner. D. Blythe, G. Walker, R. Stuckey and T. Blythe each banned in a contribution. Gordon Walker received a nasty cut on his foot in the second period which put him out of the game.

The Fort's line-up: goal, Rene Tercier; defense, D. Blythe, Pete Karren; forwards, G. Walker, T. Blythe, Roy Stuckey, G. Stuckey, Rod Allard.

With Don Blythe handling the ball to the satisfaction of all concerned the Fort Juniors played a tie game with the Edmonton Hustlers on Saturday. The final score was 1—1, both goals being scored in the second period, Val Berg doing the needful for the locals. The game was fast and clean and the Fort boys did well to hold their formidable opponents to a tie. The Hustlers have already played fourteen games this season and have only been beaten once in three years.

Earl Lane being responsible for all three. The Fort line-up was: goal, A. Mann; defense, F. Plimoff, E. Smith; forwards, J. Karren, R. Lane, F. Blythe, John J. Sutherland, A. Larose, M. Tercier, G. JONES, GRAHAM & O'BRIEN

A Lesson From Montreal

The recent tragic occurrence in a moving picture theatre in Montreal whom, following a panic cry of "fire," a stampede ensued resulting in the bleeding to ill-advise and entire and the consequent death through suffocation of seventy-seven children, should lead to a most careful investigation by all Provincial, municipal, school, and other bodies into the present exact condition of all public assembly, and an examination of all ordinances, by-laws and regulations governing the management of all such places.

Apparently no one of the children who lost their lives in the Montreal disaster was burned to death, but in the seeming panic following the cry of "fire" the exits proved inadequate. It is even possible that the exits themselves were sufficiently large and numerous, but with people standing in the aisles they become jammed.

No doubt in most municipalities throughout the western country power of said stringent by laws and regulations have been passed prohibiting the placing of exits seats in the aisles of theatres, churches, schools, and halls in order to accommodate audiences in excess of the seating capacity of such buildings. It is undoubtedly against the law in most municipalities to allow people to stand in the aisles leading to exits, or in the exits themselves. If no such regulations have been made it is criminal negligence on the part of the responsible authorities.

The important thing is, are these by-laws or regulations faithfully observed? Are municipal officials active in seeing that they are complied with? Is prompt action taken against the management of any building who neglects to observe this very fundamental need to insure the safety of the public?

As a matter of actual fact, it is not true that these regulations in public safety are only too frequently ignored by the breech rather than in observance. Readers of this article can undoubtedly recall numerous occasions when extra seats have been placed in aisles and people have been allowed to block aisles and exits and largely attended public entertainments.

If there is authority responsible for the enforcement of these regulations for safeguarding the public are negligent, it would appear to be the duty of building inspectors of such authorities to make vigorous protest to the managements in their own interest and in the interest of their fellow citizens.

Proper construction of buildings can be provided for and enforced; the utmost precautions can be exercised; but when disaster does occur there is no well night impossible to prevent a certain degree of panic, and if only two or three people lose their heads at such time the effect is contagious. It is the absolutely essential, therefore, that the management of such places has a fair fighting chance to get rapid control of the situation. This it is possible for them to do if, because of an ignoring of necessary precautions, conditions exist which make for panic.

In Montreal no doubt there will be not only a searching investigation, but radical changes in regulations and a tighten-ing up in their enforcement. This, of course, is necessary and wise, but it is only another example of locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen. In a few months the memory will be wise if they now take the lesson of the Montreal tragedy to heart, and resolve to the full extent that it is humanly possible to do against any like happening in their midst.

Makes Long Flight In Passenger Plane

Montreal Woman Uses Air Line From England to Cairo

To a Montreal woman, Mrs. F. Keeley Sebenhaler, of 1041 Van Horne Avenue, has fallen the honor of being one of the first persons to make the flight in the first passenger airplane from England to Cairo.

The plane in which Mrs. Schenhaler was a passenger left Croydon aerodrome on November 20 and made a successful flight over England, France and Italy, flying over Venice-line at a height of 8,000 feet and a cruising speed directly over the crater which was belching smoke clouds and flames. It then passed through the Straits of Messina to Malta, then across the Mediterranean to Rhodes and descended to 200 feet across the Nemaur territory between Damascus and Bethlehem.

Mrs. Schenhaler is to visit the headquarters of the Bahai movement at Haifa, Palestine, and will then fly to Bagdad, for a lecture tour, which will take her through India and Persia, terminating on the League of Nations Union.

"Well, Elsie, it looks as if half your little parents are not coming."

Safety Film Invented

British Firm Has Non-Inflammable Film That Eliminates Danger of Fire

A cinema film which, it is alleged, is non-inflammable and would eliminate the danger of fire in projection rooms of moving picture theatres was tested in a well-known London theatre recently. The tests were apparently successful as the film refused to burn in the ordinary manner. The film is a British invention, the result of 14 years of experimenting. A factory is to be erected near London where it is hoped to produce the film in marketable quantities within six months.

Scientific Distribution

Great Britain Would Distribute Population Within the Empire

Britain, does not regard its overseas settlement scheme as a means of getting rid of its unemployed problem, but is rather endeavoring to develop a scientific distribution of population of all classes within the Empire. This was the statement made recently before the Montreal Women's Club by Miss Margaret Bondfield, M.P., in her official capacity as a member of the British overseas settlement committee and of the Society for the Overseas Settlement of British women.

Shetland, believed to be those of the Vikings, were recorded recently at Reay, Caithness, Scotland.

Observed Name Of "Feast Man"

Philadelphia Theatrical Man Had Right Idea About Charity

A group of Philadelphians were discussing the death of John Mackenzie, the theatrical man. One of them was a milkman who declared that "John Mackenzie was the finest man that ever lived. Would you believe it his milk bill was from $60 to $2 per week; regular for about five years."

This called for an explanation and the milkman gave it. He said that when he began serving milk to Mackenzie's house on his route, the grocer, who man sold him to an second and third one. What puzzled him was the manner that their milk bought was a problem.

"Great book around," Mackenzie told the milkman. "You'll know which are the deserving ones and which aren't. When you have found them, just leave them as much milk as you think fit. The bill" So he that to me every month."

So, for four or five years, dozens of families in the poorer districts of Philadelphia have found milk on their doorsteps every morning but never a bill for it.

PEOPLE WHO NEED HEALTH BUILDING

Should Enrich Their Blood by Using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

There are conditions of health in which building or even repair is not to be at fault, just the patient is miserable and unable to pursue the ordinary duties of life with vigor and enjoyment. The remedy needed is a tonic that will build up the whole system rather than a part. The blood is the vital part as the body and an improvement in its quality is quickly followed by an improvement in the whole system. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make a prompt and visible improvement in the blood, bringing new health and strength to ailing men and women. Take for instance Mrs. W. F. Nash, R.R. No. 1, Bellamy, Ont., writing on behalf of her husband, says: "For the past two years or more my husband has taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a tonic. Previous to his use he was a weak condition, did not sleep well, and felt all the time, with poor appetite. The result was he got very thin. He decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and by the time he had taken three boxes he was feeling and looking so much better that it was very noticeable that the pills were all they were recommended to be. We feel very grateful and advise all to give the pills a trial course of treatment."

These pills may be had from all dealers in medicine, or by mail, post paid, at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Preventable Diseases

Fifty per cent of the people of Canada die before their time, in the opinion of Dr. H. H. Spechley, one of the leaders of Winnipeg's Health League. The main causes of death are human ailments in the dominion were the social diseases, pneumonia, cancer, tuberculosis, appendicitis, typhoid fever, scarlet fever and infant colonic. All were preventable except pneumonia, cancer and influenza, Dr. Spechley said.

Alberta's coal supply is about 2 billion tons. Premier Brownlee declares. With the immediate adoption of these views it is the greatest depot fuel in the world. The annual production from the province averages around 4,000,000 to 4,500,000 ton

The Family Physician

The good doctor is always worth his fee. But it is not always possible to get a doctor just when you want him. In such cases, remember that nothing equals the use of reliable home remedies, such as Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil which is wonderfully effective in easing inflammatory conditions, in healing cuts, bruises, burns and scalds. The presence of this remedy in the family medicine chest saves many a pain

The Growth Of Motor Travel Responsible For Greater Interest Now Taken In National Parks

The 1926 summer season witnessed the establishment of new records in the number of persons visiting the Canadian National parks.

While this increase has been general, it has been most noticeable in the matter of motor tourists. Advances made in the automobile industry and in the construction of good roads have brought corresponding advances in the growth of motor travel, until this phase has become of great importance in the development of the country.

Highways play an important part in drawing a large number of the tourists who visit Banff and Kootenay National parks by motor. Through the Kananaskis gateway, which is the eastern entrance to the Banff park and the Radium Hot Springs gateway, which is the western entrance to the Kootenay park, there passes each year the greater part of the motor traffic on the Canadian side in the Rockies.

The volume of travel which poured into these two parks by motor is shown by the registrations. At the Kananaskis gateway at the end of October of this year 19,569 motor cars had been registered as touring, at the Radium Hot Springs gateway, 6,382 entries were recorded, making a total of 25,951 cars entering the two parks. This number shows an increase of 5,780 over the number recorded in 1925.

Waterton Lakes National Park, in Southern Alberta on the International boundary, drew an amount of tourist travel far in excess of that of the past year. The possibilities of this scenic wonderland are accentuated by the plans for extensive development announced in 1926.

The opening in June, 1926, of the motor road extension from Lake Louise to Field, in the Yoho National Park for the first time into prominence in the motor tourist world. The first completion of this road, which is 20 miles in length, will enable motorists to proceed through Golden, is expected to be opened to travel early in 1927.

Jasper National Park, in the northern part of Alberta, had a most successful season, nearly 7,000 hotel registrations having been recorded prior to the end of October.

The National Public Park at Wainwright, Alta., drew visitors from by former years. A very keen interest is being taken in all countries, particularly in Canada and the United States, in the efforts of the Canadian Government to preserve the bubalo and also in the experiments that are being conducted at Buffalo Park in cross-breeding

Wealth Of British Columbia

Basic Industries Will Never Go Out — This Year Valued at More Than a Year Valuation Will Now Thus a Quarter of a Billion Dollars

British Columbia's basic industries will have an output this year valued at more than a quarter of a billion dollars. This represents an enormous increase over the 1925 figure of two years ago and indicates that industrial progress in Canada's Pacific coast province is maintaining its almost phenomenal stride. The estimate of the value of the year's production by industries is as follows: —Lumbering and related forest industries, $90,000,000; mining, $70,000,000; agriculture, $70,000,000; fisheries, $34,000,000; and pulp and paper, $10,000,000. In two years there has been an increase of 150 per cent in the lumber industry; manufacturing has advanced 114 per cent; the increase in the value of lumber export has been 900 per cent; and farming has gained 75 per cent.

Final Crop Estimate

Final estimate of the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association places the wheat crop of the three Prairie Provinces at 371,394,000 bushels. Oats are put at 319,000,000; barley at 61,000,000; rye, 3,704,000, and flax 5,643,000.

Model School Is Started

Children of Wembley Hill Learn Under Ideal Conditions

The final word in elementary schools — Wembley Hill Council School, High road, Wembley, was formally opened a few days ago by Mr. Percy Jackson, chairman of the West Ealing of Middlesex Education Committee.

Lucky children of Wembley Hill. They go to a school in which Middlesex Education Committee have incorporated all the newest ideas in design, furniture, health and happiness.

There are spray bath, where every child can have a bath once a week. The children suffering from colds are ranged round the wall, and then step on to "duckboards" under the warm spray. No child has a bath until the consent of the parents has been got on.

An unusual feature of Wembley Hill, which is a mixed school of boys and girls, is that Mr. Directed by a woman, Miss J. H. Vincent, who is also a man. Miss Vincent is the only woman head of other schools and it is clear that she is getting distinctive "atmosphere" out of Wembley Hill. It is provided basic "homes" on the public school model.

There is little divergence of the old fashioned kind. The model "pupils" is not known in school. Miss A. C. Evans, head mistress of the Ju nior school, strongly objects to the word.

"What we aim at here" she says, is to get everything possible out of the child rather than to force everything possible into him. The more giving of information is not education.

Will Soon Rival Radio

Television Machine Makes Possible Views of Public Events

J. L. Baird's televising machine has been demonstrated in London before the scientists of the Royal Institution. As previously announced, Baird's new invention, utilizing infra-red rays, does away with the hot, objectionable searchlights formerly necessary to transmission by television, new the subject can sit in total darkness under the invisible infra red rays, while every motion can be clearly seen by observers sitting in another room, also in darkness.

Although all movements are distinguishable, the images produced are not yet sufficiently clear to distinguish the features of the subject.

It is predicted television will soon be as popular use equal to that of the radio, with a television set in every home in London, the central broadcasting stations, items of interest on sports and plays in progress on with the present available radio.

The Size of Canada

How big is Canada? The answer to such a question probably would be the geographical dimensions. A better answer would be that Canada is big enough to give to every young person as great an opportunity as is available in any other country, provided that there are no appalling mistakes of commission or omission in government.

Silver foxes are now being shipped from Alberta farms to New York Skins, where they will start breeding pens. The fur industry has assumed very considerable proportions in Alberta during the last five years. Another novel industry is the raising of Karakule sheep, (Persian lamb). Dr. O. H. Patrick of Calgary is pioneer in this branch and has a flock of several thousand Karakules.

Boys Growing Taller Says Chicago Doctor

Lead by Over Two Inches Boys of Fifty Years Ago

The American boy is two and a half inches taller than he was fifty years ago, Dr. Herman B. Chase, assistant professor of hygiene at the University of Chicago and the American Child Association, told the Advancement of Science at Philadelphia.

"In comparable cases," the figures published by Dr. Chase in testing in 1872 and 1926," the average boy of fifty years ago was only one inch taller than and a half inches."

Dr. Gray's figures were worked out at the Boas Institute for Juvenile Research at Chicago.

"This paper is concerned not with the cause," he said, "but with the phenomenon. It might be argued that the American boy of today is taller because he matures more quickly but the lead he has an a half inches is maintained from six years of age right up to eighteen and involves the age twelve falls."

"Differences in height of children may be due to differences in opportunity or environment. Less favourable the more important matter is one that appears in favourable circles. It is due to progress in control of infantile diseases in the home. The total for the whole body of vitamins, sunlight and rickets, with consequent better nurture."

The reason Dodd's Kidney Pills have come to occupy such a prominent place in the home is that so many sufferers quickly find relief from sick kidneys.

Rheumatism, urinary troubles, backache and heart disease can be traced directly or indirectly to sick kidneys. To be assured of good health the kidneys must be kept in good working order all the time.

When she lost, and the croupier's wooden rake came to her to collect from her, she made pretty grimaces. When she won, and the rake pushed toward her fifteen big pile of gold and silver and notes, she clapped her hands and turned to smile up at the man who stood over her. In this afternoon she made her first plays Belleeily, as if her enthusiasm had been left with the hate of the men in the airline; but in the case of the winnings she had begun everything, seemingly, but the cry of the croupiers and the spinning of the wheel.

Brandon, strolling through the rooms as was his daily afternoon custom, came upon them. He pushed his way across the room, while always gathered about the Golden Girl when rumor spread through the rooms that John was playing. He stood with Kenilworth, Joanna, conscious of his presence lifted her unglazed fingers over her shoulder for him to touch them. Kenilworth observed to the newcomer; "She's in a reckless mood. But she's winning!"

As a rule the Casino rooms close with the first pallor of twilight. Only the inveterate gamblers remain to mount her, a glad smile in his face. Her two hands reached out to him, impulsively. Awkwardly he took them both, and would have dropped them but they held onto his.

"We know you had done," Yvonne said, "and so I am to be the first to tell you what wonderful things you have been doing and how happy. I—we are! You are quite the same John Whitacre we left in New York!"

The "we" was simple—but John noticed that it confused him. And the woman was still looking his hands.

"I did hope," he said, "that you wouldn't say I looked just the same! Every experience I have says that to me. I feel as if I was double in height and I don't know you'd look. Being with you is change some people you know."

He fumbled a little with his hand and Yvonne released them. She glanced at his ring. "She is over there," she said, pointing. That crowd in here's the one in the Red and Blue always sweeping out of herself! She's playing the roulette table, and winning. We haven't dared disturb her now."

The walked across the salle and up to the edge of the crowd that surrounded the girl in blue and white who still played, with no less than three times the maximum, and whose piles still reached the edge of the table. Brandon came out of the park and greeted John affably.

The Object Of Colleges

Important Thing is to Know How to Get Along With Your Fellow Human Beings

The object of colleges is to educate The primary object has generally been held to be to educate in history in Latin and Greek, and law and what not. But we do not agree with that idea. It is the secondary purpose of a university education. We do not believe that the education of the mind is the main purpose to the education of the man. If you get what we want We believe it vastly important to any of you to know that—not merely that you be familiar with kindness and courtesy than it is to know the binomial theorem—whatever that is. We believe the most important thing you can know in life is how to get along with your fellow human beings and that takes in a lot of territory. You must know a Greek root from a hoemerrhoids root, but if you deal kindly and considerately with whom you meet you succeed. Your life will be a success College should teach you this

KEEP LITTLE ONES WELL IN WINTER

By Regulating the Stomach and Bowels With Baby's Own Tablets

Winter is a dangerous season for the little ones. The days are changeable—one bright, the next cold and stormy, then the weather is frosty. It is then the children out for the fresh air and exercise they need so much. In consequence they are often rooped up in overheated, badly ventilated rooms and are soon seized with colds or grippe. What is needed to keep the little ones well is a few doses of Baby's Own Tablets. They will regulate the stomach and bowels and drive out the cold through their use the baby will be able to get over the winter almost in perfect safety.

The mother who uses Baby's Own Tablets has an absolute guarantee that she is giving her precious little ones something that is absolutely safe and something that cannot possibly do them harm for in the powders baby or the Tablets coming not one particle of opiates or other dangerous drug. They are sold by medicine dealers or at 25 cents a box, by mail from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

The yearly meeting of the Good Hope School District was held in the school on Saturday, January 15. J. Negura, secretary-treasurer, read the report for the year which was considered very satisfactory. The financial statement gave rise to a discussion when a few of the ratepayers desired to see a reduction of the tax. A long debate arose as to the lasting of the school for the spring. Mr. Charles Thomas was elected as trustee for the coming term in place of Mr. Calpas, whose term had expired.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE UNITED CHURCH

The annual meeting of the United Church congregation of Fort Saskatchewan was held in the church on Monday evening, January 24, and was well attended. All the church organizations submitted their reports and each reflected enthusiasm on the part of individual members and careful directing on the part of the officers.

The report of the Session showed advancement in congregational matters.

The Board of Stewards showed a satisfactory financial condition, all debt having been paid off and a substantial balance on hand.

The Sunday School report showed an enrollment of 169 pupils, and a cash balance on hand.

The Choir showed a substantial balance on hand from their various entertainments.

The Ladies' Aid report detailed work undertaken and finished and showed a cash balance with which to commence the new year's activities.

The Women's Missionary Society showed amounts remitted to missions, and a balance on hand.

The Credle Club has an enrolment of twenty. The Junior Mission Band showed an amount raised and forwarded to missions, and the C.G.I.T., which is a non-denominational body but organized and conducted in connection with the church, showed an enrollment of 35 with a 75 per cent average attendance, and a cash balance with which to commence the new year.

Messrs. R. Hunter, W. D. Clarke, and H. R. Peters were elected to the Board of Stewards, replacing those retiring.

The selection of a Hymnal brought on considerable discussion and it was eventually decided to use one only, and the congregation by a good majority decided on the recent Methodist Hymnal.

It was decided to make the position of choir leader a paid one, and a definite arrangement was arrived at.

Mr. Thorne-Collinson received the thanks of the congregation for his energies in putting on the recent play as successfully.

The business meeting was preceded by a supper served in the Sunday School rooms by the Ladies' Aid at which the number of diners attested to the excellence of the repast.

The United church Ladies' Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. C. Walker on Thursday, February 3, at 3:30 p.m.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Margaret Thomas, one of the oldest residents of Josephburg, died in the Lamont hospital on Thursday afternoon, January 20, after an illness of several month's duration, senility being the direct cause of death.

Born on June 30, 1846, in Uhersberg, Galicia, the daughter of Peter and Katherine Schmidt, she spent her youth in various villages of Central Europe, where the father found employment.

On February 23, 1865, she was united in marriage with Mr. Franz Thomas, who preceded her in death in May, 1916. This union was blessed with ten children, of whom only two survive their mother, namely Henry, of Josephburg, and Philip, of Bruderheim. Besides these, there are twenty grandchildren and twenty great grandchildren.

Reared and confirmed in the Continental Reformed Church, she was one of the charter members of the Josephburg church, which the funeral service was held on Sunday afternoon from the home of Jason Hoffman, in charge of Rev. Jason Hoffman.

The family came to Canada in 1888 and helped to found the colony at Uhersberg, Alberta. After two years of the hardships of pioneering, this colony was abandoned, and a large portion of its inhabitants founded the present community of Josephburg, where deceased spent the remaining years of her life.

The ages were 81 years, 6 months and 10 days.

Floral tributes were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. P. Oppolt, wreath; Mr. and Mrs. Philip Thomas, Miss Thereen Thomas, spray; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thomas, Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Thomas, spray; Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Mohr, Mr. and Mrs. Jos Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. H. Mohr, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Mohr, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Becker, wreath.

HOCKEY

The Lamont Juniors trimmed the local Juniors to the tune of 3—1 last Wednesday. Over-confidence on the part of the Fort boys, opportunities missed in front of goal and the good checking of the Lamont boys were the three reasons for the score being adverse to the locals.

A smashing drive from right wing which glanced off R-land Buchanan's glove into the top corner of the Fort goal decided the game in favor of the Normanad aroons after two and a half periods of scireless hockey last Saturday against the Fort Juniors. The Maroons scored again near the end of the period though the goal which obtained it was decidedly offside. Referee Pete Karran did not see it however and the goal counted.

The aroons, older and heavier than the locals, were inclined to be rough.

The Fort Bay Scouts played a return game with Westward Ho school, Edmonton, last Saturday morning on the local ice, and defeated them by 5 goals to 2. Earl Lane found the net three times, F. Flindell once and John Karras once. The latter played a wonderfully good game.

LAMONT WANTS TO LINK UP WITH FORT HIGHWAY

A delegation from Lamont consisting of Dr. Archer Mr. R. E. Harrison met Edmonton officials of the Alberta Motor association on Saturday to present claims for a route via the old Canadian Northern right-of-way. Similar representations are being made to the provincial government.

The residents of Lamont are urging that the proposed highway follow the Canadian Northern right-of-way from Vegreville to Scotford, thence to the Fort and over the gravelled road into Edmonton.

The total distance between Vegreville and Fort Saskatchewan is nine miles less than the road over the alternate route along the correction line to Wetaskiwin would be, Lamont points out. Cost of maintenance of the former road would be low, it is further claimed. gravel would be much more conveniently available and a more thickly populated stretch of country would be served.

ST. GEORGE'S ANGLICAN CHURCH ANNUAL MEETING

With Rev. E. R. Lockyer in the chair the annual meeting of the congregation of St. George's church was held in the rectory on Tuesday evening.

In presenting the financial report Mr. Harper stated that the attendance at services had not been so good during the past year and in consequence the open collections had been smaller. Envelope subscriptions had also been less than formerly.

Reports were presented of the Women's Auxiliary, the Chancel Guild, and the Junior W.A.

Mr. Lockyer extended his hearty thanks to the Vestry, wardens, lay reader, the ladies who had kindly officiated as organists, the various organizations for their help during the year, the Junior W.A. for their gift of $5.00 toward the apportionment and the Chancel Guild for $25.00 towards the same, and to various people who had assisted him to get his outside work, especially Mr. H. Dodge.

Rev. Lockyer also stated that Mr. Harper had again consented to act as his warden for the coming year. Other officers were elected by the meeting as follows: People's warden, Mr. Dodge; Vestry, Mrs. Magee, Mrs. Spicer, Miss Warrier, Messrs. Brewer, Bulloch, Magee, Carscadden, McDonald and vacancy.

Mr. Harper presented estimates for the budget of 1927 as at about $1600.00 to be the minimum requirement to run the parish.

Mr. Dodge stated that the outlying station of Ardrossan hoped to be able to raise $200.00 towards defraying Rev. Lockyer's expenses in holding services there.

Refreshments were served after adjournment of meeting.

An Inspiration To Canadian Youth

All America is ringing with praise of George Young, the 17 year old Toronto boy who won the great swimming marathon between Catalina Island and the mainland of California, successfully negotiating this stretch of icy water in a contest wherein one hundred others failed, including some of the world's most renowned swimmers. It was a wonderful achievement, and, following the performance of John Miles, of Sydney, Nova Scotia, who set a new world's record but year in winning the Boston Amateur Athletic marathon in his 40th race over the 26 mile course, and the enthusiasm which Canadian hockey players are arousing in the big American cities, is having the effect of further directing attention to Canada as a land which produces the finest types of sturdy young manhood.

Through his great feat, George Young not only won a substantial financial reward, but he leaps into athletic fame. He will be honored, cheered and feted, and his name will long be remembered in the annals of great feats of courage, strength and endurance.

But it is not because of his victory alone that Canadians should be proud of George Young and find delight in doing him honor. Rather our deeper national pride should rest upon the qualities of mind and heart and character which this young disployed in approaching the hard trial to which he set himself, and the noble impulse which dictated his action.

A poor boy, with no relatives but a widowed, crippled mother to whom he was devotedly attached, George Young voluntarily sacrificed his amateur standing as a swimmer and staked his all on this one effort. He did not do it because of a personal desire for fame or money; but in all unassuming de-sire to be able to take his crippled mother to California and provide her with the means whereby she might regain her health.

The boy's strength of character, his grim, determination, and his willingness to sacrifice were clearly shown when, lacking the necessary railway fare from Toronto to California, he started to make the journey on a pushed up motor cycle and doggedly pushed his way as far as Arizona. A boy of less character and perseverance would have "passed the buck" to some one else in front of his desire. Had George Young not achieved fame as he has done, it is safe to say that, in any event, he would have made a success of his life and in whatever sphere he might choose.

Premier Mackenzie King rightly expressed the sentiments of the people of Canada when, in extending congratulations on behalf of the Government and people of the Dominion, he said that this country shared with equal pride George Young's success and his beautiful tribute to his mother and all that disclosed the secret of his splendid achievement.

Such an achievement in the face of obstacles to be overcome that might well daunt the stoutest heart is an inspiration to the youth of Canada. These seeds of Canadian boys who can never hope to be great athletic champions and whose names will never be found on the lips of millions of their country-men, but who in meeting the problems and difficulties of everyday life, and in shouldering the responsibilities that may be forced upon them, do so with the same force of character, the same determination, the same willingness to sacrifice self for the good of others, are equally heroic, and of them Canada will be equally proud.

George Young has builded better than he knew. His mother has borne buoyancy to the ripeness of his young life, and George has in spectacular fashion shown all Canadian boys that a stout heart, free from bad habits and dissipation, pays. He has brought, forcibly home to all the truth of the old saying that where there's a will there's a way. In bringing fame to Canada, he has likewise brought something of far greater and more lasting value, an object lesson which will mightily appeal to the imagination and love for the heroic in every normal Canadian boy.

This is a real national asset, because it is only through the cultivation and development of these same traits which made George Young a winner that the boyhood of Canada, or of any country, can realize full success in their endeavors no matter what direction they may take, or how humble they may be. It requires exactly the same qualities to make a real success in anything it like as were required to successfully swim Catalina channel.

Hardness of Wood Seed

Seeds Lying Dormant for Forty Years Will Germinate

The seed of some of the troublesome varieties of weeds show a great tenacity of life. They will resurrect long after they are supposed to have been killed if not thoroughly and skilfully disposed of. The Michigan Agricultural College is engaged, as recorded in Bulletin No. 72 of the Dominion Department of Agriculture on Crop Rotation in an experiment to ascertain definitely how many years the said noxious weeds will lie dormant in the soil and then germinate growth when suitable conditions exist about. Weed seeds are mixed with sand and placed in unsorted plot bottles that are buried twenty inches below the surface and are taken up every five years. The experiment which can be continued for 100 years has already been conducted forty years. After lying this length of time in the soil it has been found that black mustard, pepper grass, fox tail, ragweed, wild primrose, common plantain, purslane and curled dock will still germinate. Some of these weeds which in the earlier years failed to germinate but did so in later years. Ragweed failed to germinate in every year but small plots had been forty years in the soil. As the authors of the bulletin referred to (Messrs E. S. Hopkins and H. C. Hopper of the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Farms) suggest it is apparent that there can be no rest in the war against weeds, especially if the land has once become infested and that prevention is best. Seeds of weeds predominantly the most important method of weed control. Neglect for one year may result in a plentiful supply for a life-time and longer.

Canada Attracting Attention

Has Greatest Export Trade of Any Self Governing Country

Canada is becoming more widely known all the time. In an address before the Canadian Conference on International Trade in Montreal, Sir Edgar Jones, and Hon International Relations, Sir Walter A. Riddell, advisory expert for the Dominion in the League of Nations, declared that Canada's export trade has shown a greater increase than that of any other self-governing country in the world since 1912. He went on to point out that today, due to the latest figures in their foreign exchanges, her exports have increased 30% per cent since 1913, and to the fact that she is selling per-haps in 50 different countries and 20 dependencies, Canada is no longer living to itself, but is taking a tremendous interest in world peace and this is made manifest by her trade.

As a result, he declared, Canada is attracting more attention than at any other period in her history.

Robbers Take Heavy Toll

A Billion and a Half is Stolen Each Year in United States, According to Estimates

Merchandise, valued at $1,400,000, was taken out of legitimate channels in the United States each year by fraud, theft and robbery and sent back into the market through a system of "fences" to undersell honest dealers.

How the "fences" or receivers of stolen property operates to supply the fissen between swindlers, burglars and highwaymen is told in a voluminous report issued by the prison commission of the association of Grand Juries of New York county.

In arriving at the huge total of losses the report gives the following tabulation: Merchandise frauds, $500,000,000; credit frauds, $250,000,000; robbery theft and bookkeep- $100,000,000; burglary, $-2,000,000.

The report also points out the weakness in existing laws which make the illicit dealer almost immune from prosecution.

Plans for Diamond Jubilee

Unquestionably events in the history of Canada will be faithfully depicted in pageantry of the most colorful and gorgeous sort, according to plans which are being quietly worked out for the Diamond Jubilee celebration of the Dominion which will be observed July 1, and participated in by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Prime Minister of Great Britain, says The Ottawa Journal.

British Subjects Should Use Canadian Ports

Improvements in Fruits

Determining the Kind Most Suitable for Growth on Each Particular District

There are no more valuable experiments being carried on at the Dominion Experimental Farms and stations than those concerning fruit. Not alone are efforts directed to the improvement of varieties, but also to the ascertainment of the kind most suitable for growth in each particular district. Apples being the greatest staple of the country naturally receive special attention and some valuable varieties have been developed or bettered by cultivation Special efforts are being made to obtain hardier and improved winter sorts. Around no few or than three hundred of the longer keeping varieties now being under test. Plums are receiving similar attention and particularly with a view to securing better blight-resistant varieties.

Hardy cherries are being looked for and the hybrids between the native American species and the Japanese plums have produced useful sorts for Eastern Canada. A spineless gooseberry is proving promising and blueberry cultivation is also dominated with to encouragement of their wider growth

Investigations in regard to raisin formation and fertilising of the strawberry have shown that the earlier the runners root the longer will be the crowns and that when nitrate soda is used as a fertilizer the best results are obtained when it is applied during the month of September

Saskatchewan University Professor Believes in Co-operating

Professor W. W. Farmers are beginning to plumb the depths of co-operation, and when they have learned properly to utilize its tremendous power the economic and cultural standards of the Province will be substantially raised."

IDEAL FASHIONS

Canada Achieves International Renown For High Quality Of Its Vegetable Products

Value of Good Dairy Cow

Farmer Should be Particularly Satisfied Before Starting Purebred

How much can a farmer afford to pay for a good dairy cow, and what valuation should be place on his good producers? This question is pulled in the latest bulletin of the Holstein-Friesian Association and an attempt made to answer it on the basis of figures obtained from the records of 66 Jears Cow Testing associations for a full year completed last year.

A summary and average of the 7,854 cows of which complete year's records were kept showed that the profits after paying all feed costs, varied from $117 to $191 The cows which produced an average of only 100 lbs butter fat in the year required only $35.47 worth of feed, while those producing an average of 500 lbs. butter fat had a feed bill of $93.71. In spite of the higher feed cost the 500-lb producers made a profit over feed cost of $91.73, while the 100-lb producers returned only $17.32 after paying the feed bill. The records of cows between the 100-lb and 500 lb producers showed that the profits increased as production increased, even though the feed bill grew steadily larger. Those of 300-lb butter fat showed 300 profit; those producing over 300 lbs. showed only $33 profit.

From these records it may be concluded that, in some instances, they would not be economical. A good grade dairy cow, and that even $50 might be paid for one by another. The good cow may cost more than this, but if covered value of feed she eats as will the poor one. When the whole life time production of a cow is considered, one good cow, well fed, may be worth a whole herd of inferior producers. The lesson from such records should be rare ful selection, coupled to rare breeding. Other wise to make a success of his business.

German Cruiser Draws Crowd

Rush to View "Emden" at Capetown Is Compared to Gold Rush

An eager rush to board the German cruiser Emden recently brought disaster at Capetown harbor, when a small pilot boat, which was hauled at Wilhelmshaven, Germany, in January, 1925, and christened after the famous war time German cruiser, was let into the public aboard, but the vessel could not accommodate the unexpected thousands who thronged the quay. It seemed at one time as though many persons would be pushed overboard by the pressure of the crowd which was trying to get on board. Many were hauled into play. There was a momentary panic in which many persons were injured.

The incident marred the good feeling which had been displayed since the Emden came into port for a visit.

So-so will be taking to pay aside the usual assistance from the provincial government towards the establishment of packing plants, instead of being cast out to the open market to shoulder their own burdens. This policy reaches the delicate brain tissue if rumors emanating from Ottawa are correct.

The rumors, it is stated, declare the government intends the sum, supplemented next fall from the treasury, will be distributed among the packing plants according to the amount of business done by each.

Under this plan, it is stated, the government would not depart from their policy to encourage the smaller packing plants and enter upon a broader undertaking which would provide greater uniformity of action and greater economy in operation. The object is to introduce the influence of federal matters to which the importance of their industry was entitled.

Shortly after the convention had endorsed this policy of action, H. W. Wood, who was re-elected to the presidency of the U.F.A. for the twelfth consecutive term, indirectly drew attention to the possible conflict of interests arising by the development of this co-operative.

Mr. Wood and his ilk agree with the two main parties in saying that co-operation is the junior branch to the agricultural industry. There had, he said, been a slight deviation of the co-operative spirit from the early conscientiousness in the junior branch which did not appear to be the case in the senior body.

"I don't think any real or serious damage has been done but there are many signs that the blood is getting into the wine-press, there to meditate undisturbed upon the wool that had given Him to do. During these days of the Spirit, we are referred to here perhaps as a "round number," representing many days, by means of the decade. A decade is only a third it. Mark, Jesus seems to have stayed but a few days, perhaps not the wide cross-section, but as told in Matthew and Luke the apostolic peregrinations seem to have come at the end of the period.

Jo to Ottawa and may have retired this inequation, for in no other way could I have been saved. We have the account as Jesus gave it of a conflict which took place in His mind on inner and spiritual struggle, which depicted by a series of fitting images which His hearers would understand. We cannot believe that had Jesus in mind a struggle for the devil to person, knowing that they were of the evil one (as the literal interpretation of the story puts it), they would have held any temptation for Him. The devil is represented as coming to person beside Him, pointing to the stone round about them, suggesting Him to the top of a hill, and to the pinnacle of the temple. There must be something so attractive about a temptation, so deceptive, so persuasive, that even a good man might yet be inclined to accept the invitation. The tactic which we all make, since to though we are, is not between the known good and the known bad; it is between two courses of action, each of which appears to be good. It is very rare by that we sin, saying boldly to ourselves, This is plainly in defiance of the will of God, but I will do it." No, we somehow persuade ourselves that darkness is light, and evil is good. We do the bidding of the devil, but in order to get us to do it he has to disguise himself so that we may not recognize him. If the devil came, the plain devil, and said, "Do this," we would not do it. It is not in that manner that he is accomplished. Still less was Christ thus tempted. The sight of the temptation by consequence knowledge that the suggestion of his paltaine Satan was the suggestion of evil, would have made any true temptation totally impossible." — George H. Hodge.

Mark, Jesus seems to have stayed but a few days, perhaps not the wide cross-section, but as told in Matthew and Luke the apostolic peregrinations seem to have come at the end of the period.

Jo to Ottawa and may have retired this inequation, for in no other way could I have been saved. We have the account as Jesus gave it of a conflict which took place in His mind on inner and spiritual struggle, which depicted by a series of fitting images which His hearers would understand. We cannot believe that had Jesus in mind a struggle for the devil to person, knowing that they were of the evil one (as the literal interpretation of the story puts it), they would have held any temptation for Him. The devil is represented as coming to person beside Him, pointing to the stone round about them, suggesting Him to the top of a hill, and to the pinnacle of the temple. There must be something so attractive about a temptation, so deceptive, so persuasive, that even a good man might yet be inclined to accept the invitation. The tactic which we all make, since to though we are, is not between the known good and the known bad; it is between two courses of action, each of which appears to be good. It is very rare by that we sin, saying boldly to ourselves, This is plainly in defiance of the will of God, but I will do it." No, we somehow persuade ourselves that darkness is light, and evil is good. We do the bidding of the devil, but in order to get us to do it he has to disguise himself so that we may not recognize him. If the devil came, the plain devil, and said, "Do this," we would not do it. It is not in that manner that he is accomplished. Still less was Christ thus tempted. The sight of the temptation by consequence knowledge that the suggestion of his paltaine Satan was the suggestion of evil, would have made any true temptation totally impossible." — George H. Hodge.

Portrait of Louise Appears on Stamps

Proceeds of Restricted Issue to be Used for Charity

For the first time since his death the visage of Nicolai Lenine has appeared on an issue of stamps. It represents him as a child of nine, long before Communism was dreamed of in Russia and appears on a restricted issue of twenty kopek stamps, the proceeds to be devoted to relief of the starving Russian vagrant children. Before the authorities have forbidden use of Lenine's likeness on stamps, cigarette boxes or advertising matter. The rule was relaxed in this instance to help the children.

A Good Policy

When a high-salaried executive left the employ of the Marshall Field store, some one asked Mr. Shedd, the president of the firm, what he was going to do. "Hire another office boy," he said. Promoting all along the line and filling in the vacancy at the bottom was his policy, and he found that it helped to keep his business prosperous and the morale of his staff high.—Youth's Companion.

U. F. A. WOULD WIDEN SPHERE OF ITS INFLUENCE

Edmonton, Rejecting the counsel offered by executive members of the organization, to concentrate on the immediate problems and development of the movement in the province, the United Farmers of Alberta, in convention here, committed themselves to a policy of inter-provincial co-ordination and national organization.

The people have also opposed to actual discussion of the establishment of a farmers' political party, the new platform of which has not been thoroughly canvassed.

The proposals for national solidarity generally carried that the farm organizations must depart from their strictly economic functions and participate and enter upon a broader undertaking which would provide greater uniformity of action and greater economy in operation. The object is to introduce the influence in federal matters to which the importance of their industry was entitled.

Shortly after the convention had endorsed this policy of action, H. W. Wood, who was re-elected to the presidency of the U.F.A. for the twelfth consecutive term, indirectly drew attention to the possible conflict of interests arising by the development of this co-operative.

Mr. Wood and his ilk agree with the two main parties in saying that co-operation is the junior branch to the agricultural industry. There had, he said, been a slight deviation of the co-operative spirit from the early conscientiousness in the junior branch which did not appear to be the case in the senior body.

"I don't think any real or serious damage has been done but there are many signs that the blood is getting into the wine-press, there to meditate undisturbed upon the work God had given Him to do. During these days of the Spirit, we are referred to here perhaps as a "round number," representing many days, by means of the decade. A decade is only a third it. Mark, Jesus seems to have stayed but a few days, perhaps not the wide cross-section, but as told in Matthew and Luke the apostolic peregrinations seem to have come at the end of the period.

British Marines Are Sent to China

Will Be Used for Defensive Purposes Only Says Officials

London.—Little is now familiar in the time of the war's decade ago were recounted by Chatham which marines departed for duty in the Near East, to commence their preliminary journey to Portsmouth. Three hundred marched to the station with full field equipment and, like a regimental band, and were frantically cheered by spectators.

They were joined by another 200 from Plymouth. Portsmouth supplying the remainder now necessary to make up 1,000.

Official quarters again stress that whatever is being done is in no way directed to the disturbance of the policy of non-aggression. In this connection Sir Hale, a radical newspaper, says:

"All it is intended to impress Europe-Chen, Cantonese Foreign Minister then it may be possible to justify such a demonstration. Such a display cannot make a demonstration and this draw back."

The marines will sail for China near the end of the month, and according to the Government will be used only for defensive purposes.

He thought there ought not be attached to any decorative country "an enigma and an unmeet system."

A League of English Speaking Nations

One Factor That Can Ensure the Peace of the World

Speakers at the annual dinner of the Canadian Society of New York held recently, emphasized the importance of friendship and understanding between the United States and the nations of the British Empire to assure the peace of the world.

Mr Justice W. R. Riddell, of the Ontario Court of Appeals, said that while he was president of the League of Nations Society of Canada at the time the United States declined not to join the League he was not particularly concerned because he realized there was a far more important league—the league of English-speaking peoples.

"As long as this league exists and the English-speaking countries are in harmony the peace of the world and civilization is secure," Mr. Justice Riddell said. "Let them part, and no unutterable evil will follow."

"I didn't think the new papers would announce me," Joan said, slyly.

"I wanted to surprise her; I have not told her who I was coming."

They moved in among the spectators nearby. Some curiosity came to his side Brandon edged in between Kenilworth and Michael and, almost without a word communicated to both of them that they were behind them. Kenilworth did not turn around. Prince Michael swung around quickly and Joan saw him red with anger. Yvonne a deliberate servants. Apparently he was satisfied with his observations, for he turned his back and continued his fruitless play with Joanna's money.

Yvonne played "no pein" in the sweep of the colors and redness. She had won that sensation play three times. Now she lost with time, simply lost her share of the luck gold and notes. Any experienced player would have switched, as she knew, to the simple system of the next player, until "luck" changed. But a sudden stubbornness overwhelmed her. "En plein!" she called again, and swept her whole fresh stack into the table. Again she lost. Whispering in the crowd behind her roused Necks craned to see her next play. "En plein!" she called, and tossed another dozen coin on the green cloth.

The crowd of watchers at the table gasped. Double silence fell. Even Yvonne, who had been chatting over her shoulder to Michael for her money from his pocket. Again $5,000, and again! The watchful chief de partie stopped the play. At last with a shrug her shoulders the Golden Girl leaned back in her chair. She smiled to the crowd.

"Merci, Messieurs," she said, "that is all I have to-night."

The complete loss she was no one else playing, permitted himself the rare pleasure of an exchange with Mademoiselle Joanna.

"I am delighted that Mademoiselle should have been so unlucky!"

She shook her head, still leaning back in her chair, and smiling at him queerly.

"Merci, Monsieur," she said, "but I am not unlucky. I always play, you know, lucky in love. I want to be very lucky today), Monsieur—at love!"

She got up, then, and looked up at Kenilworth and Michael, who were standing transfixed by the suddenness of the piling up of her tremendous stakes. She put a hand on the sleeves of both of them and shared her fortune to that persistent, quizzical smile. She was about to chaff them when her eyes found Yvonne, and the man beside her. Both Kenilworth and Prince Michael felt, and took a different license from the sudden gripping of the fingers that had rested so fairly like upon their arms.

CHAPTER XXVI

John's Success

John, changed much, despite his dislike of being expected to be different, put Joanna's hands together and wrapped his own about them.

Quite a few of the men who had been spectators to the Golden Girl's reckless play, and who had remained near at the abandon with which she tossed fortunes into the discard when she had the pitted a stakers will against he implacable rules of chance, gaze John a deeply speculative glance. Among the crowd about the roulette table there had been many women, smart women from Russia, and Madrid, and Paris, with a sprinkling of Americans who were distinguished by their shy wonder at the boldness with which the others flaunted their beauty of sex. Some of these watched the girl who greeted the struggle so intently that their own stares seemed to

The ladies of the Alter Society will hold a whist drive at 8 p.m. Thursday, February 3, in the buffet room of the Memorial hall. The lucky ticket for the guilt chest will be drawn for during the evening. A pleasant time is promised and everybody is welcome. Admission 25c.

Graham Spry, a former Rhodes scholar and now the first permanent secretary of the Federation of Canadian Clubs, addressed the high school pupils on "Citizenship" and kindred topics on Monday. Mr. Spry is on his return east after a survey of the Dominion in the interests of Canadian Clubs and has undertaken organization work where such a club was required.

The show by the Broadway Players last Thursday night was very poorly patronized, few more than a baker's dozen being present. There were strong man feats, balancing and jugging, escaping from straight jackets, mesmerics, ropes, etc., demonstrations in what was termed physic phenomena, but which was well diluted with horse-power, and a display of the hula-hula dance by a young woman. Taken all round, a fairly good show and deserving of better patronage.

During 1926, the Canada Colonization Association settled 734 families on 160,894 acres in Western Canada, 59,278 acres of which were in the province of Manitoba.

Plans have been completed for the World's Poultry Congress, to be held in Ottawa from July 27th to August 6th. More than thirty countries will be represented and the number of delegates is expected to reach 6,000.

Shanghai is at the present time operating more trolly busses, carrying more passengers per mile of road, and charging a lower fare in terms of gold ounces, than any other system in the world.

The champion Jersey cow of the world, an out and out British Columbian product, is going to some interesting to the directors of David Spencer Limited of Vancouver, who stated the champion would arrive at the Canadian Pacific Express yards shortly.

Reports indicate that the many dairy companies in Nova Scotia have had a most successful year. One company reports that they manufactured well over 100,000 pounds more butter than in 1925. This increased production was valued at over $60,000.

Developments in bacon-hog raising in Nova Scotia and particularly in the Annapolis Valley as a by-product of the dairy industry, is already an assured success. In 1926, 21 swine clubs were functioning successfully in the Province. Of these eight operated in the Dominion Atlantic Railway territory.

The first fish net factory to operate in Canada is being started here by the Canadian Fish Net Co., Ltd., financed by Canadian capital and employing Canadian labor. Hitherto the nets used by Canadian fishermen have been imported from Europe and the United States, which has at times entailed heavy losses owing to late deliveries.

Grain left Montreal for seventeen different countries in the 1925 season. Great Britain imported to the heaviest extent, followed in order by Holland, Germany, Belgium, Italy, France, Norway, Greece, Ireland, Portugal and South Africa. Great Britain took 30,291,763 bushels or 21 per cent. of the total exports from the Port, being also the heaviest purchaser of oats. Norway and Holland were the two largest buyers of rye.

The grain harvest of 1926 has left more money in the country than the greater harvest and somewhat higher prices of 1925, according to M. M. Paterson, president of the Paterson Steamship Company, and owner of a hundred country elevators in the West, with one other city elevator now being built at a contract cost of $600,000 at Port William. Mr. Paterson, who was interviewed at the Windsor Hotel in Montreal recently, having arrived from Winnipeg, is travelling with his father and mother, wife, six children and two nurses, by Canadian Pacific route, land and steamship, to England with a view to staying at Bournemouth for the next three months.

Steamship companies brought approximately 165,000 passengers to the Dominion in 1926, an increase of nearly 40,000 over the previous years. Canadian passengers, the majority of whom were immigrants or new settlers, accounted for over 130,000. An outstanding feature of travel has been the development of tourist third class accommodation. Approximately 7,140 passengers of this kind were carried southbound across the Atlantic from Canada and 5,600 transported northbound during 1926, making a grand total of this kind of travel of 12,740 for the year.

FORT SASKATCHEWAN RATE-PAYERS' ANNUAL MEETING

The annual ratepayers' meeting for the purpose of receiving the auditor's report of the finances of the town up to the preceding 31st of December and the reports of the chairmen of the various committees of the council was held in the town hall on Friday, January 28.

His Worship the mayor was elected to occupy the chair.

The minutes of the previous annual meeting were read and adopted.

The reports of the Finance, Fire, Water & Light, Public Works, Works & Property, Health & Relief, Licence & Police committees were submitted and adopted after several questions had been asked and answered.

The School District report was read and adopted.

The matter of a day service of electrical energy was brought forward and discussed and assurance given the meeting that same would receive careful consideration when the renewal of contract took place with the department of Public Works in July.

Mr. S. O. Jones proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the council for their time and trouble and for the efficient manner in which they had conducted the municipal business during the past year.

The meeting adjourned with the adoption of a vote of thanks to the school Board for their efficiency and attention to duty.

CURLING

To create further interest in the game Mrs. Harper presented four china vases for competition amongst the lady curlers and for some time past the competition has been in progress. It came to an end last week when Mrs. Harper's own rink, which had earlier in the season been regarded in the "weak sister" class, won out by a close margin in the final game. Personnel of the china collectors: Mrs. Harper, skip, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Stuckey, Mrs. Hallam.

FORT HOCKEY PLAYERS BRING HOME McQUEEN CUP

The senior team went to Chipman on today (Wednesday) to make a raid on the McQueen cup, presented by Mr. McQueen of Lamont for competition by teams from Fort Saskatchewan east to the provincial border, from Tofield east and from Redwater Centre to St. Paul.

The trophy was taken from the Lamont team by Chipman in the first game and has since been held by that team against several onslaughts. The Fort boys, however, in their first attempt, decisively showed their right to its possession and returned home with the handsome and coveted trophy.

Quite an ovation was given the boys when they stepped from the train, and a noisy escort accompanied them to the skating rink before going on to the Memorial hall, where the silverware was deposited with manager Selinske.

The game was fast and clean and marked throughout the slightest sign of favoritism by Mr. Grierson of Chipman. Two periods were scored by the Fort in the first period, two by Chipman in the second, and three by the Fort in the third. All five for the Fort were scored by Dan Blyth.

PUPIL ON LOCH RODNEY FARM BURNED TO DEATH

A young farm pupil on the Lord Rodney farm, named Audley Reginald Hawkins, was burned to death in a fire in the pump house on Monday evening. The unfortunate young fellow was lighting a fire and, contrary to rules, was making use of gasoline from a can to assist it to ignite. The gasoline caught fire and the blaze was a mass of flames instantly.

Attempts at rescue were made but it was an impossibility to get through the door and an effort to cut through the side of the building was also unavailing as it was so quickly consumed by the flames.

Hawkins had only been in the country since last April.

Survivors Of a Bygone Age

Newspaper discussions Canada recently pointed out some of the obstacles reached by the newspapers and pioneers of a school district in Utah in which is allowed a widow able in this district and generation. The little school house in this particular district was built in an old lange and, according to a teacher in at busy twenty five days in the year the light is to pass the children can hardly see the blackboard. Under the circumstances a committee was selected to pick the cost of the installation and maintenance of electric light on which pay-mandate the school district officials would be only too glad to accept

On the contrary the offer was refused and the reason for refusal was that old lamps were used twenty years ago and are acceptable now and always now since in a word, what was good enough for their father and grandfather was good enough for the children and grandchildren.

It the pioneers of this Ontario school district are receiving one is inclined to the conclusion that they still carry on their lighting operations with lamps and rake hand skills and scythes, scorning to use modern hand machinery that they plod to town with a team of oxen and with all despite a cars now fashioned no labor or tailors tracks or automobiles, telephones, telegraphs and radio notes are anathema to them.

Fortunately for Canada there are few people of the same mind as these We continue inevitably to lead prosperity. It was not so many years ago that small but ambitious Brother, the pioneers who came first into Eastern Canada and later pushed out over the almost limitless expanses of the prairies were men and women determined that, whatever hardships they had to undergo and put up with, their children and their children's children should be better off. They were most decidedly of the opinion that what was good enough for their grandfathers was not good enough for them, and the best was not a bit too good for their children. Consequently they conquered the virgin forests and the virgin prairie, made homes, constructed roads and railways, built cities, schools and universities, and made Canada what it is today.

This constant urge and striving for some thing better this it inside the mind for development and improvement, is the glory of mankind, the distinguishing mark between man and the beasts. In it is to be found the secret of all progress. Without it the world would stagnate, deteriorate, and become hopelessly lost.

It may be that some of the younger generation of today are demanding too much; that they insist upon having more than their fathers had it, and expect more and earnest and the rewards which labor should be theirs as a matter of right, without having to labor themselves to attain them. But, after all, may make it they would really enjoy life and prosper in the world. But placing a proper restraint upon such blind and loud desires, and curbing such youthful folly, is an entirely different thing to depriving the children of today of the advantages, with which arduous toil and years of enlightenment has blessed the world.

Apparently this little group of ratepayers and school trustees are not only willing to endanger the eyesight of their children but would condemn them to lead the same benighted ignorant and unprogressive lives they apparently are content to live. We venture to predict the children will rebel and at the earliest possible moment break away from their home environment and launch out into the world of light, progress and advancement.

The surest guarantee of keeping the boys and girls in the old home district, and preventing them from flying off to the cities and other faraway lands, possessing green pastures, is to make the old home surroundings as up to-date and attractive as possible, thereby providing a powerful rival to that other world which beckons. If parents and communities realize this and act accordingly, they will also find they have a great ally in the appeal which home always makes to every boy and girl.

The ratepayers and school trustees of Westminster township, Ontario, provide a horrible example of how not to do things.

HOCKEY

The senior team entertained and outplayed the A.F.P., Edmonton, hockey team on the local ice last Thursday, despite the heavier weight of the visitors. The final score was 4—2 in favor of the Fort.

Being convinced that could turn the tables on the local boys on a larger sheet of ice the A.F.P.'s arranged a return game at the week end to be played at the Arena, Edmonton. The result was disappointing for the challengers as the Fort boys once more did the trick with a 3—0 victory.

A stubborn bottle for supremacy was put up by the North Edmonton team and the local Juniors Saturday night. The home boys scored one in the first, two in the second and one in the third period, while the North Edmonton team managed one in the first and one in the second.

After five or six more similar explosions, he told us he would not be hard on us and would keep his temper as the doctor had said we might be feeling "kind of seedy."

The supply of provisions so completed the dessert some cakes were afterwards auctioned off.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

EDSON R. WAITE, Secretary,
Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce

THAT the world is full of substitutes, but there has never been invented any substitute for newspaper advertising worth considering.

THAT courtesy in a business and a willingness to serve customers is the best of their ability does much to build a better community.

THAT the business man who clings tenaciously to the old ways of doing business must surely fear in these modern days of keen competition.

THAT nowadays you can find in the advertising columns the names of the business concerns that operate normally and successfully.

THAT the most practical thing to do in order to inject life into a moribund business is to ADVERTISE.

THAT no business concern should think that just because they have been in one location for a long time that everybody knows all about them and are in duty bound to buy from them.

THAT what they should do is to get their business firmly established in the minds of the buying public that when they think "buy" they will think of their place first. ADVERTISING does the work. ADVERTISE!

THAT the noise of good advertising attracts attention.

THAT it doesn't pay to be independent of the public; you are dependent on them for their patronage.

EXTENSIVE ADVERTISING OF your business proves that your service and goods are right.

WHEAT POOL NEWS NOTES

Andrew Bublish, a well-educated and progressive Ukrainian, is now canvassing Pool members at the Head office of the organization. He will later take up field work among the 60,000 Ukrainians in Alberta to encourage as many of them as possible to join the Pool. Mr. Bublish's headquarters will be at Vegreville.

Financial men in the Dauk Tobacco district of Kentucky estimate the growers lost ten million dollars since the Pool was put out of business. The Dauk Tobacco Pool failed because of excessive contributions by the Tobacco Trust. Over-capitalization and propaganda were the methods used.

Telling the World of Canada's Wonders

Hartley Roberts and John Murray Gibbon, two well-known authors, whose books have done much to awaken world wide interest in the scenic wonders of Canada. This picture was made this year at the Trail Riders' Post-once, near Lake Louise.

Hartley Roberts, who in 1904 or 1905 drifted that way in the course of an almost tramp-like journey across Western America. Since then the world has recognized Hartley Robert: as one of its finer craftsmen. At that time he worked with axe and shovel on the titanic task of pushing the steel of the C.P.R. through the mountains on its way to the Pacific.

"The Western Avernus" is a book in which he told the story of his wanderings and something of life in C.P.R. construction camps. Through his eyes we can see the Rockies as he saw them when they were new to Europeans. "Here is a vast, gorge," he says, "now broad with sloping bastions of opposing formation on either hand, now narrow with steepest walls and impending rocks threatening the calm lakes that catch their shadows and receive their reflections. Even as you look do they not and with possible thousand avalanche, or is it the play only of shadow from opposite peak and pinnacle? How these are cut and warped in all conceivable fantasy of art and inconceivable majesty of nature, how they are castled and upheld with arch and bridge, and flying buttress! This is the aisle of the Great Cathedral of the Gods, this is the nave of Asgaia, the home of the hurricane, this is the lofty spot most beloved by the sunlight, for here come the first of the day beams and here they linger last as rosy snow covering the rock whose mossy base lies in the under shadow."

It would require much space to enumerate even the more outstanding books that have the Rocky Mountains as a background, but among them the books of Ralph Connor are notable, particularly "The Patrol of the Sundance Trail," which is a story set in the vicinity of Banff

The latest addition to Rocky Mountain literature is a new novel from the pen of John Murray Gibbon and no one better knows the Canadian Rockies and loves them more intensively. "Eyes of a Gypsy" is its title, and its best chapters are laid in the clouds where everlasting glaciers give place on the rocky slopes to straggling forests. It is a tale of human emotions and although part of its action takes place in New York, it is Canadian in spirit and its people are mostly the sort of people whom Canadians will recognize as to be met with in any part of this country. Reviewers say it is the best book Mr. Gibbon has put forward; it certainly holds the attention from first to last, and if one or two of its characters are unusually unlike the ordinary run of people, that makes the book all the more thrilling. In any case it is doing important work in helping make Canada more glorious known to the world.

Hartley Roberts and J. Murray Gibbon are friends to such other as well as of others. They spend some weeks together in the mountains this year during the annual meeting of the Trail Riders. Roberts was renewing old acquaintances and re-visiting an area he had not seen for forty years. New books will no doubt later come from each and it is to be expected that in the east of neither has a lost word been spoken on the Rocky Mountains.

"You mean me?" The effulgence was sudden—so relentless that he shrank.

But we haven't an hour to lose," he objected. "We've been driven quite differently than either of us expected. Let's just accept each other as we are, and be realistic."

"But we are not going to do that at all, Jedd!" she whispered, suddenly tense. "We're not going right to-day. You're much too smart and too serious and prosperous for me. I'm not in the [illegible] for you. You've told me all that before, and you'd settle up your account as I'm just as much glad to see you, because I proved that you are liable to [illegible] me."

In the low-ceiled dining room of the hotel they sat across from each other over a table of antique mahogany and attentive silver. He swept me off my feet by asking if I had not some plan or knowledge and it occurred to me then what you and I had talked over so much. We sat an hour over it, I think, I am quite static. He reminded me that several times I had referred to it in the drawbridge room in the office boys. One of them I suppose, had mentioned it to him. The Kraus always was interested in the science of its appreciates. And he had passed the thought on to someone else, he said, and in some connection. That all there was to the start of it. Things just happened suddenly."

"They do, sometimes," Joanna remarked.

The most noticeable change will be the installation of the famous Holley Hot Plate Vaporizer Carburetor as regular equipment. This carburetor greatly increases the mileage obtainable with a Ford car. From enquiries, and orders booked for spring delivery, Mr. Graham believes that 1927 will prove to be another banner year for Ford dealers. ROSE CROWD AT ALTAR SOCIETY WHIST DRIVE

There was a very large attendance at the whist drive held by the ladies of the Altar Society in the buffet room of the Macdonald hall last Thursday. Thirty-two tables were in use and the tuesday is how it was managed to find room for so many tables and players. The magnet which attracted so large a crowd was curiosity to learn at the first possible moment the winner of the color chest and the beautiful linen contained, each of course hoping that it would be "one" of their numbers which was drawn. The winner proved to be Miss Bertha Durocher, with ticket No. 172, and if rumor is correct the result could not have been more appropriate as the chest will, in the near future, be put to the purpose it was intended.

Those winning prizes at the card tables were: ladies' first, Mrs. von Island, second, Mrs. Geo. Beeker, consolation, Miss Mary Hagen; gents first, Adelard Neale, second, Stanley Daniels, consolation, H. Staples.

Joe Normandeau, Lamoureux, won the box of apples in the entrance ticket lottery.

Refreshments were served and Father Zephyrin and a party from Edmonton gave a short concert program.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Hannig left Wednesday to attend the pre-session banquet at the Macdonald hotel.

U.S. PAPERS SAY WHEAT AND OATS CHAMPION FARMS IN ARCTIC REGION

Articles appearing in United States papers, referring to the winning of the Sheffield's championship in wheat and oats by Herman Trolle of Grande Prairie, in the Peace River country, describe Mr. Trolle's farm as being in the Arctic region. This is particularly emphasized in an article which appeared in the Kansas City Weekly Journal.

It is interesting in this connection to draw attention to the fact that Mr. Trolle's farm is far from being in Arctic regions, is still one thousand miles south of the Arctic Sea. A study of the map will show that Mr. Trolle's farm is actually located as far south of the Arctic Sea, as Kansas City is north of the Tropic of Cancer.

FARMER'S ACCOUNT BOOK

(Experimental Farms Note)

Frequent reference has been made in recent issue of the farm press to the desirability of making an inventory or taking stock of farm supplies, implements, live stock, etc., during the month of March. The suggestion is a good one and the Dominion Experimental Farms System has published an extremely simple Farmer's Account Book in which are several pages especially designed to assist the farmer in making such an inventory. To "keep accounts" in this book requires no special knowledge of accounting, simply the ability to write and add, and a record of transactions can often be made in less than one hour a week. A few plain directions as to making entries and taking inventories, a table of silo capacity, and a nutritious table are given on the inside-cover pages of the book.

There are pages for the entries of receipts and expenditures (both of which may be seen at a glance on the same page) relative to cattle, horses, sheep, swine, poultry, crops and labor and ample space for miscellaneous items. There is a page on which to record amounts owed to and owed by the farm and forms on which may be made inventories of land, buildings, live stock, feed, supplies and machinery. There is also a page where the year's business may be summarized, with a few directions to assist in filling out intelligently at the end of the year. Further, there is a table on which to enter acreage and yield of crops and one on which to keep a live stock service record.

The book may be obtained from the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, at a nominal charge of ten cents. No postage need be placed on letters of application.

Solving Western Problems

Dr H M Tory president of the National Research Council and also of the University of Alberta, making appeal in a recent issue of a Canadian periodical for greater aid in the work of research in Canada, says: "Such an organization could in a few years be made to mean more to industry than all the petty tariff change, about which there is so much agitation."

Dr. Tory is a man of sound economic views, is above playing the game of party politics, and is one whose opinions carry great weight throughout this whole western country, and, indeed, to an increasing extent throughout the Dominion. His words, above quoted, are, therefore, deserving of attention.

The truth of this statement can hardly be questioned, because, by making production more efficient greater help will be brought to industry in all its branches than can possibly be done by any tariff. Efficiency in one branch of industry assists all other branches whereas tariff changes, which are designed to help one particular industry or group of industries very frequently operates to the disadvantage of other industries more or less dependent upon the first group.

The National Research Council is, within the limits of its comparatively small means, practicing what its president preaches. It has been doing valuable research applied to the needs of industry. A few days ago announcement was made that research work of really vital importance to all the wheat farmers of western Canada is to be carried on at all the provincial universities of the three prairie provinces in association with the Dominion grain research laboratory at Winnipeg. The particular problem to be tackled is damp and tough grain, the importance of which will be appreciated by every farmer who has sustained loss during the present crop season.

The National Research Council some time ago appointed a special committee on grain to search to study various problems connected with the production and marketing of grain, including factors affecting milling and baking quality, commercial grading, and diseases affecting grain pulses, particularly rust. The committee now proposes an immediate survey of the methods employed in grain drying, to be followed by a study at the different methods with a view to determining which is most advantageous from the viewpoint of economy and the resulting quality of the dried product.

In order to make investigation as thoroughgoing as possible, the University of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will engage in the work. Milling and baking test laboratories of the most modern type have already been installed at the Alberta and Saskatchewan Universities and the same equipment is being installed in Manitoba. Dr. Tory has expressed the opinion that it is doubtful if a research of such magnitude has ever before been undertaken in Canada.

Our Prairie Universities are playing a large part in the development of these provinces and in finding solutions for many problems. Research work is necessarily slow. To be of any value it must be most thorough, frequently covering years of study and many tests. Anything unplanned will not do. Decrease of this, many people are impatient of research work and can critical of money spent on it. But the fact remains that it has been the work of scientists and experts, rather than British, which has made the United States the great industrial nation it is today. The industries of Great Britain built up their world trade, not because of tariffs, but through the application of scientific discoveries. Industrial Germany was the product of research and the work probably to a greater extent than any other country.

Canada, it must be admitted, has been backward in this respect, and our manufacturers are largely to blame, because for years they have been obsessed with the idea that in Customs tariffs, and in Customs tariffs alone, was prosperity to be found. If the Canadian manufacturer would throw the whole weight of their influence and resources back of the National Research Council, a new and better era in Canadian industry would result.

A Wonderful Age

Seventeen Has Been Horse Age for Many People

Many are the readers who laughed till they cried over Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen." The hero of that book is a typical boy at an age when moon-struck subjects cling into his ken circle, and soul is blend and brunette clothes his first straw suit, pompous mentions the tangled period silly of chasing after a rose, flower, pompous, and a pompous, what a title!

Yet seventeen is not a year or some thing he has been things usually associated with rather tooth lower forms, where of the catalogue of boy possessing counts. It seventeen. Think of the qualities necessary to achieve a swim of 22 miles, in cold rough and dangerous waters time hundred and two men and women made the start, some of them expert speed swimmers for a stretch or more but it was a youth of seventeen who was there at the finish.

Seventeen is the age when most any thing might happen. Time and time again it has been an heroic age for some. At that seventeen a youth has borne the load of the family support and borne it unconsciously. Poet and prophet has sung its praises. All those belong to the age of seventeen, and because of this fact youth is the wonder of the world. Was it not the Man who said: "Let no man despise thy youth"?

Canadian Farmer Tells His Experience

"Les" Booth, widely known Ontario farmer, and a sick man for 20 years, suffered daily, only half alive. Now strong, robust, vigorous, credits new found health to Tanlac

Though popularly known as "Les" Mr. Booth's correct first name is George. He lives at 221 Perth St., Brockville. For the past three years he has required vigorous health. But what he endured in the many days and nights of suffering, I cannot begin to describe. Indeed, I do not wish to, as I would prefer to forget it myself. Suffice to say that I had to quit work entirely and I remember one bad night that kept me in bed for six months.

"My constipation became so bad that the pain was intense. I was also troubled with Indigestion, Dizziness and insomnia so frequently that I do not know how I stood it. Many a night I thought I would never see the morning. I lost weight, my appetite left me entirely, and I was a mere bag of bones. I suffered from gas on the stomach so much that I could hardly breathe. I had no strength, and was so nervous that I could not sleep. I was in a terrible condition.

"I was strongly advised to try Tanlac. I took a good deal, for nothing I had helped me. I could notice the benefit after a few days, and from then on I improved right along. Soon my appetite returned, my digestion was fine, I had put on 15 pounds which I still retain, and I can work hard without distress. In fact I do not know what indigestion is. I sleep like a baby, and I don't have a bad spell with my head. I can truthfully say that Tanlac has done me a world of good, and I am glad to tell them to others."

Exceptional Advantages Are Offered In Western Canada For The Sheep Raising Industry

No country in the world is perhaps better adapted than Canada for sheep raising and no country offers greater opportunities for the development of the industry. The physical features, the soil, the climate, and the agricultural population are all favorable to the production of mutton and wool of the highest quality. In most of the provinces there is an abundance of waste lands admirably suited to the raising of sheep. Furthermore, there are many farms, particularly in western Canada, that as yet are carrying no flocks. In eastern Canada on mixed farm lands and in the grain belt of western Canada the small flock of ten to fifty ewes is generally kept. These flocks can be established at little expense and return an excellent revenue for the labor required and money invested. In the rougher parts of western Canada and in some districts of Manitoba larger flocks of from one to several hundred ewes are kept under semi-ranching conditions, often by men settlers who may have been originally miners or fishermen. Many suitable areas are still available for the carrying of flocks of this size in south western Saskatchewan, south eastern and parts of northern Alberta, and in British Columbia, sheep ranching is practised quite extensively, but even in these provinces there are tracts of land awaiting ranching or semi-ranching purposes. On western farm lands, by utilizing waste pickings, supplemented by a forage crop with a short finishing period of grain, the farmer can market choice mutton lambs towards the end of December.

The labor attached to sheep raising is not great and is more or less seasonal, leading itself readily to the order of events where grain farming is the major farm activity. The initial cost of a suitable flock is not large, so if the best returns are not made at the start, the loss is not likely to be heavy. Comparatively little land is necessary for sheep and a cheap pole and straw shed is ample. No animal has a higher value for wool destruction than sheep. The sheep provides two sources of revenue annually. The lamb pays for its keep the first year with its fleece and at two years produces both wool and lamb. Statistically, the wool situation could not be better for the past few years and for the past year has been reflected in price values to the extent of around 10 cents a lb for lower grades and up to 15 cents or better for the finer wool. The prospects are that the sheep men in the business have several good years ahead.

The Dominion and provincial governments have repeatedly drawn attention to the possibilities for sheep ranching in this country through bulletins by the various agricultural departments, the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior, at Ottawa, has also published a report on the woollen industry and quite recently has issued a map showing in graphic form the extent and location of the various areas in Canada suited from the standpoint of food supplies and climate for sheep ranching, copies of which are available, without charge, to those interested. A complete summary of the number and location of knitting mills is also shown on this map.

In this connection it may be interesting to quote a well known British authority with respect to the efficiency of Canadian woollen mills, namely Mr. Alfred F. Baker, professor of Textile industries at Leeds University, who, following a visit of inspection to Canada and the United States in 1919, said:

"From the whole, the Canadian woollen mills come up to the best Yorkshire—some few Yorkshire mills are better, many are very much worse. Quite a considerable part of Canada is so fortunate in climatic conditions that even in spinning and weaving no special sprays needed, other than those made in Yorkshire, for example, are adopted.

"Hosiery mills are in evidence in every textile district of the Dominion and the equipment of these mills bears little to be desired. The hosiery mills of the United States are possibly behind the hosiery mills of Canada, in fact some of the Canadian hosiery mills cannot be beaten."

Orientals in B.C.

Hold Property in Province Assessed at $11,500,000

British Columbia's Oriental population today stands at about 68,000, of 52 Asiatics for every 1,000 whites. It was disclosed in a survey recently conducted by the provincial government all over the province The report, which was made public by the department of agriculture, shows the Oriental population has grown rapidly of late but the Japanese are outstripping the Chinese and Hindus.

Orientals in British Columbia, according to the report, hold real property assessed at $11,500,000; more than 2,000 Asiatics are licensed to carry on business of almost every kind in the province and attendance of Oriental children in public school has increased at a startling rate, representing 3.2 per cent. of the entire school pupil nation. The Oriental school attendance is increasing at more than double the rate of the increase in total school population. The report further shows that the Oriental problem, once concentrated almost entirely in British Columbia, is beginning to hit the east of Canada in a big way, at least with the sudden flocking of Oriental to the older provinces—a movement which is being laid to the most significant fact revealed by the investigation.

Western Rye Grains

Best May Crop in Sections Where Moisture is not Abundant

Western rye grass has established itself as a valuable hay and pasture crop for the sections of the prairie provinces where moisture is not abundant enough to permit of the successful growing of timothy Recent tests of the grass at the Lacombe, Alberta, Experimental Station, have fully borne out expectations as to the value of this fodder. In competition with Brome grass, different strains of timothy, and with Kentucky blue grass, western rye grass was easily first, outyielding the other grasses by a considerable margin.

It is interesting to note in this connection that of the strains of rye grass tested in the experiments, "Lacombe," a variety developed by the Central Farm at Ottawa, outyielded the commercial varieties used. Yet, according to the latest report of the Dominion Agrostologist, there have been new varieties recently developed at the Central Farm which appear to be considerably heavier yielding than "Lacombe" It is therefore expected that within a few years, further strains will be generally available that will produce more profitable yields than those in use at present.

During 1926 the Canada Colonization Association settled 1,641 families on 164,991 acres in Western Canada, 59,675 acres of which were in the Province of Manitoba, according to T. O. F. Herper, manager of the Association Since the Canadian Pacific Railway took over the Canada Colonization Association on January 1, 1925, a total of 1,641 families have been settled, taking up 462,846 acres of land work with management between $18,000,000 and $19,000,000 Forty-five per cent. of this land is in Manitoba, 30 per cent. in Saskatchewan and 25 per cent. in Alberta.

Three Prairie Universities Will Try To Solve Problem Of Tough And Damp Grain

Research work of the highest importance to all the wheat farmers of Western Canada in regard to the problem of damp and tough grain is to be carried out at the three Prairie universities and the Dominion Grain Research Laboratory at Winnipeg, under the direction of the National Research Council of Canada.

About a year ago the National Research Council appointed as its special committee on grain research to look into various important problems connected with the production and marketing of grain. At its organization meeting last year, this committee drew up a comprehensive program of investigation, particularly with regard to wheat, involving factors affecting milling and baking qualities, commercial grading, and certain diseases present.

A special meeting of the committee was held in Winnipeg recently for the purpose of conferring with the Board of Grain Commissioners and representatives of the Wheat Pool in regard to the pressing problem of damp and tough grain. The meeting was held in the office of the grain board. There were present, representing the grain board: Commissioners Boyd, Robinson and Snow, secretary Rathbone and Dr. F J Buchanan chemist of the board; those representing the National Research Council Associate Committee, Dr. H. M. Tory, president of the National Research Council, Dr. H Newton, professor of agronomy, University of Alberta; Dr. T. Thorvaldson, professor of chemistry, University of Saskatchewan, and T J Harrison, professor of field husbandry, University of Manitoba, representing the Pool were: Messrs. H. W. George Sells, secretary, and A. F Sproule, representing the Central selling Agency, W. A. MacLeod.

The meeting discussed the basis for the research before them, straight grades and tough or damp grades and the possible effects on milling and baking quality of the methods of drying now employed. These two questions were considered of urgent importance on account of the very large amount of damp and tough grain coming on the market this year due to the great uncertainty of these two points it was decided to undertake at once an investigation of the whole matter The members of the grain board and the representatives of the Wheat Pool assured the committee that all necessary facilities for carrying out this investigation in existing drying plants would be made available, and that the committee would have the hearty co-operation of both bodies

The first step to be undertaken will be a survey of the methods now employed in grain drying. This will be followed by a comparative study of the different methods, with a view to determining which is most advantageous from the point of view of economy and the resulting quality of the dried product It is believed by members of the research council that this investigation will also provide a more satisfactory basis on which to determine an equitable spread in price between the different grades

In order to make the investigation as thoroughgoing as possible, the universities of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will act in co-operation with the Dominion Grain Research Laboratory at Winnipeg and with the other agencies concerned Milling and baking test laboratories of the most modern type have already been installed at the universities of Alberta and Saskatchewan, and the University of Manitoba is in process of installing the same equipment Tests will be repeated in all these laboratories so that there may be no question of the complete reliability of the conclusions reached.

Dr. Tory pointed out to the meeting that the associate committee of the research council felt a very grave responsibility in undertaking an investigation involving questions of such importance to both the producer and the grain trade. He doubted if a research of such magnitude had ever heretofore been undertaken in Canada.

Cost of Raising Reindeer in Alaska is Very Low

More than 250,000 reindeer distributed in 110 herds, are now being kept in Alaska according to statistics and thirty-three and forty-five per cent thirty-three and forty-five per cent annual. Within the next years the raising of the animals has become an important industry. They are known as the "three way" producers as well for food, clothing and for transportation and in some sections are even exploiting the deer teams for sleighing. The cost of producing average cuts about $1 a year for each animal, while prices of $10 to $12 are realized in the herds at markets. Between 1890 and 1925 nearly 2,000,000 pounds of reindeer meat was exported from Alaska. The government is endeavoring to improve methods of control and harvesting of herds and to relieve shortages. It is said that the country can afford passenger use to at least some animals.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FEBRUARY 14TH

MAKING OUR HOMES CHRISTIAN

Golden Text: Let us love one another: for love is of God.—1 John 4:7.

Lesson: Ephesians 4:25 to 6:4

Devotional Reading: 1 Corinthians 13:1-7.

Explanations and Comments

I. The Duty of Husbands to Their Wives. 4:25-28. "Husbands," commands Paul, "love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it." Paul sees a high standard for husbands, and he sets up Christ as the example. It is hard for wives to live up to the requirement to the self-sacrificing love of Christ for the church, but it should be capable of suffering and dying for the sake of a loved one.

Would we realize the fact—should we keep it in mind—that many daily transactions amount to more or less of a test of love and degrees of love in married life, we must adorn everyday with sacrifice—food, comfort, consideration, to petty service.

Paul goes on to state the object of Christ's sacrificial love—"that he might sanctify it, having cleansed it by the washing of water by the word." This is in accordance with the thought that the church is the body of Christ, and that the members of the church are the instruments of the Lord's will. Love is to find its possibilities in its use in the service of others. Husbands are to love their wives "as their own bodies." He that loveth his wife loveth himself.

"Although the husband-love for his wife may be compared to that which called his love for himself inasmuch as it built, fed and cared for, which as his own, and he loved that which seems he so. If it caused himself love the two lives are certainly different in their essences. There is no question as to this point. It is the same kind of love, not of two kinds; and is a love of man's nature but in the sense of sin-cerest people.

Agriculture in B.C.

Farming Population Has Doubled Since 1911

Total farm production rose during the ten-year period from 1911 to 1925 from $21,000,000 to $67,000,000.

A SCOTCH DISCOVERY

He was a canny Scot, and decided that an excellent method of saving money for Christmas would be to put a penny in a money-box every time he kissed his wife.

This he did regularly until the ball time came around, and on opening the box was amazed when out came not only pennies, but sixpences, shillings and half-crowns.

Thunderstruck, he asked his wife how she accounted for the miracle.

"Well, Jock," she replied, "it's no very men that's as close-fisted as ye are!"

Fort Saskatchewan Live Stock Shippers' association shipped three cars of hogs last week. The cars were billed through New Westminster, B.C. One of the cars was loaded entirely with hogs raised by T. W. Moore and the rest of the cars, loads of hogs shipped this year, all grading straight thick smooth.

HOCKEY

In a game full of clashing, tripping, and penalties galore, combined with some downright spectacular hockey, fine rushing, shooting and stright good handling, the Fort Juniors defeated Norwood Maroons here by a score of 3—1 last Saturday. Don Styles, referee, held the players well in check, serving out more penalties than in any game played here this winter. Kelly Walker starred the best rush of the evening to score the only goal of the game.

Two players received injuries during the game. In the first period one of the Maroons took a long shot at goal and the puck glanced off one of the players sticks and struck the right optic of Irwin Hutton, who was wearing glasses at the time. Fortunately no glass entered his eye. The other victim was Gordon Walker. He received a crack on the forehead near the end of the third period which however was not serious.

An incident riot, caused by the referee preventing one player from striking another, flashed out when the bell was rung for time.

Beginning the Vegetable Garden

(Experimental Farms Note)

In beginning a vegetable garden one should insure it against its natural enemies chief of which are cows, pigs, chickens and wind, by the erection, at the start, of a wire fence tight enough to keep out chickens and pigs and high and strong enough to keep out stock. Nothing short of a hedge, however, can counteract the effects of wind. Caragana hedges planted in 1912 around the garden of the Dominion Experimental Station at Beaver, Sask., were of much size by 1916 that the garden enclosed by them has not been followed since and has borne a good crop of vegetables every year. A distance from the hedges of two feet south and south of one hundred feet and between these running east and west of two hundred feet has been effective against wind and drouth.

Heavy manuring every year keeps up the fertility of the soil both in its water retaining capacity and in fertility.

A good list of vegetables that have done well can be found in the Experimental Farm annual reports. Seeds may be obtained at most of the successful vegetable seed houses in the west.

A hot bed is necessary for starting celery, cabbages, cauliflower, tomatoes, melons, onions and peas are more satisfactory if sown in the open as early as possible. Beans, corn, cucumbers, pumpkins and squash do better when sown in the open late in May. These being sown plants do not stand transplanting well and if sown early in the open are likely to succumb to frost.

LOTS OF FUN; LITTLE GAIN AT GIRLS' A. A. A. DANCE

The main object of the Girls' A. A.A. was attained at their dance last Friday night, that is, to provide a good time. A little profit is naturally hoped for from these pleasant functions but this ambition is not of major consideration. This dance netted a few cents over three dollars.

There was a very fair attendance, mostly town people, the cold and threatening weather no doubt discouraging anyone who had to travel any great distance.

The decorations were pretty and a credit to the girls responsible.

The local orchestra supplied the music in their usual satisfactory manner.

Supper was served at midnight in the buffet room.

INCREASE IN EXPORTS

An increase of $410,000 in the value of exports from Alberta to the U.S. during 1926 over 1925 is indicated in the report of S. C. Read, American Consul for Alberta, to his government at Washington.

Josephburg

Over ninety guests were entertained at a Valentine party on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hennig.

The ladies of the Beaver Hills and Deep Creek congregations met last Thursday at Mrs. Walter Cranston's. The Men's auxiliary seems to have found a natural but untimely death, as there was only one left over. Too bad!

The School principal is fading visibly with worry. Owing to the awful frequency of birthdays, he can hardly squeeze any homework out of his riotous flock. He hopes shortly to secure legislation which will limit birthday celebrations to the old-time wheezing—one fair each year.

BIG ATTENDANCE AT FORAGE CROP TRAIN

The forage crop train now touring the central part of the province under the auspices of the C.P.R. and provincial department of agriculture is visited by large crowds at each point. The meetings being held average more than 100 in attendance and the farmers stay long after the meetings to discuss their individual problems with those in charge of the train. The sale of seed has been large, the sale being chiefly of sweet clover, alfalfa, grasses and corn. The lectures cover poultry raising, forage crops, soil management and control of pests. During March the train will operate on the C.N.R. lines in central Alberta.

Yorkville

A shower was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Trickey on February 4, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. William Twigge, who were recently married. During the course of the evening's dancing, the orchestra struck up "It ain't a goose makin' no man" and two lots, Kathleen and Harvey Lawrence, and two other children, Vera Johnston and Maurice Andrews, brought in a load of presents for the newly-married couple, so that a shower of generous proportions proceeded any disappointment on account of the lack of rain. Supper was served at midnight and dancing resumed afterwards until the small hours. Among those attending from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. James Kelly, Deep Creek, Mrs. Sander, Mrs. Lloyd Sander, and Mr. and Mrs. V. Lawrence.

At the annual meeting of the Yorkville auxiliary of the Red Cross the following officers were elected for the current year: president, Mrs. G. Moody; vice-president, Mrs. F. Anderson; secretary-Mrs. J. Trickey. All meetings are held the first Wednesday in the month, the next to be at the home of Mrs. F. H. Robinson on March 2.

Mrs. G. W. Armstrong is convalescent after an operation in the Royal Alexander hospital, Edmonton.

We are sorry to report Mrs. J. E. Armstrong is still in hospital, complications having set in after an operation. We wish her a speedy recovery.

We regret to state Mrs. G. Moody was called to Kindersley, Sask., on account of the death of her mother, Mrs. Heinzen. The sympathy of the district goes to Mrs. Moody as she has lost both father and mother in the last six months.

Mrs. J. Trickey was chosen delegate to attend the convention of the Red Cross held at the Macdonald hotel, Edmonton, on Tuesday.

A little girl came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Galloway. (Percy says she can stay.)

Little Ruth McEachern, who has been taking treatments in Edmonton, is reported improved in health. We hope she continues so.

Good Hope

The skating carnival held last week was a big success, large crowd, beautiful night, and good ice, everything was perfect. The judges were Mrs. Cenford, Mrs. Ditchfield, Messrs. Hamlin and D. Cranston, and they found it a very difficult proposition to decide which was best on the costumes were all good. Miss Gray as "Polly" got first prize, and Miss Corcoran as "Daffodil" was second; in the men Walter Pomeroy got first as a donkey, with Irwin Pomeroy second representing "His Satanic Majesty" for the best lady skater Mrs. L. Clarke got first and Miss D. Houston second and the men Harvey Cranston first and Ralph Pomeroy second; partners climbing, the prize went to Miss Helm and Leonard Kelley; (Miss Helm's costume was "Queen of Hearts"); boys under fourteen years was won by Duncan Cranston and girls under fourteen Ruth Pomeroy.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS OF CALGARY HAVE NEW EDIFICE

First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Calgary, held its first service in its newly erected edifice on Sunday, February 6.

Almost two years ago, in order to meet the requirements of growth and progress, First Church of Christ, Scientist, Calgary, sold its former property, and the members since that timehave been holding their services in the A' Asher temple. In the meantime the Church purchased a most desirable site at the corner of Fourteenth avenue and Sixth street west. It is on this site the new church has been built.

LEGISLATURE OPENS

The Sixth Legislature of Alberta opened in its first session in Edmonton on Thursday afternoon. Mr. George N. Johnson was elected Speaker of the Assembly, and the address from the throne was delivered by Lieutenant-Governor Egbert. The speech called attention to Alberta's winning in agricultural exhibits abroad, and spoke of the agricultural prosperity which was on the increase in the province. The session is expected to last about six weeks.

Home Owners vs. Renters

Among the many interesting and valuable reports issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the one recently made public concerning an analysis of home ownership in Canada based on the last Dominion census is most instructive. It is likewise of an encouraging character indicating as it does that a fairly high percentage of Canadians own their homes.

According to the figures presented, there are 2,001,512 families in Canada, and of this number 1,339,159 own their homes, as compared with 762,353 living in rented houses. In other words, 62 out of every 100 families own their homes. It is natural, and to be expected, the percentage of renters is much higher in the cities, towns and villages than in rural districts, the respective figures being: Rural home owners 78½ per cent., to renters 21½ per cent. urban home owners 46 per cent., to urban home renters 54 per cent.

Little Prince Edward Island makes the best showing in the Dominion with 87½ per cent. rural, and 54% per cent. urban home owners. This is an old settled portion of Canada and the population is of course small in comparison with the other provinces.

It will be especially gratifying to the people of the prairie provinces to learn that this newer portion of the Dominion takes a very high rank. Although a young country where the people are really only beginning to become established, and to which the majority of immigrants make their way, newer families already own their homes than is the case in the older provinces. Saskatchewan, the third province in in Canada in point of population, follows closely after P.E.I. with 82 out of every 100 rural families and 56 out of every 100 urban families owning their homes, as compared with, say Ontario, with 76½ per cent. rural and 54½ per cent. urban home owners.

Alberta comes a close second to Saskatchewan, 81½ per cent. rural and 49½ per cent. urban families being home owners. Manitoba shows 79½ per cent. rural, and 47½ per cent. urban home owning families.

The percentage of home owning families for all Canada would be much higher by far than the test that has been ascribed of the families living in the cities and towns of Quebec own their homes. In Ontario, on the other hand, the artizans and workers in the big industrial centres appear to be purchasing homes rather than renting, the percentage of urban home owners in that province now being, as already stated, 54½, or the highest in the Dominion after P.E.I. and Saskatchewan, and almost equal to those two provinces.

Taken as a whole these figures are gratifying in that they reveal Canadians as a home loving and home-building people, in marked contrast to the manner in which the residents in the big United States cities are lived in block and apartment houses and dependent on rents-mainly, much country and confederate. This home building characteristic of Canadians is reflected in the health of the people and the low death rate in this country as compared with other countries.

The only fly in the ointment, so far as Western Canada is concerned, is found in the fact that building lots in most if not all our Western cities and larger towns are held at too high a price, thus acting as a deterrent to home building. In view of the vast unsold acreages in which these centres, the population now located, and the ones with which they can be extended, if necessary, prevailing prices for vacant city and town lots are, in many instances absurd. They are a relic of the speculation indulged in during "boom days."

Home building by young people about to be married should be widely encouraged. It makes for permanence and happiness in the home; it is a good investment from a purely economic standpoint, while paying interest dividends in better health than living in an apartment or block. The town or city which encourages its citizens to build and own their homes is found to be more attractive, more substantial, more prosperous, than one where a large percentage of the residents are renters, moving about from home to home, and who can easily pull up stakes and depart for other scenes.

World's Smallest Seaplane

Brilliant Future Predicted for New Type of Air Machine

The smallest seaplane in the world one of which is designed to form part of the equipment of every submarine in the French Navy, has just been delivered at Bizerte. Named Pinocchio, the pesky little plane is the first of many designs to be constructed.

The machine rises from the water in 5 seconds and in a few minutes has gained a height of 2,000 feet. In three minutes after leaving the water Marcel Riviere had separated the machine into many parts, ready to be packed aboard the submarine.

At a convenient point the submarine can rise to the surface where the machine can be assembled and can be assembled on deck and take the air. A brilliant future is predicted for this new type of air machine for it is believed that it can return to the submarine after reconnoitring and be as speedily hoisted aboard.

OUR WINTER WEATHER

A Trying Time for People With Weak Watery Blood

Canadian winter weather is a trying time for debilitated, run-down people. The close air of the house, lack of out-of-door exercise, the restricted diet of the season, all have their effect on weakened systems. There is always in such cases a danger of severe colds, attacks of influenza, or the still more dreaded pneumonia. There is no other time of year, when a bountiful supply of rich, red blood is so necessary; and the one way to keep the blood rich and pure and free from avoid winter trouble is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If, unfortunately, you have fallen a victim to influenza, or other winter troubles, this same medicine will restore your health and strength. Among those who have proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mrs. Margaret Pearson, R.R. No. 3, Chatham. Mrs. Pearson had passed through a severe attack of influenza and says: "It left me so weak and run-down, that I could scarcely walk. Anaemia set in and I almost seemed as if I would not pull through the winter, as I grew so weak that the least exertion would bring on dizziness. I was under medical treatment, but it did not help me. Then one day my husband brought home a newspaper and read an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and decided to try them. By the time I had used three boxes I felt much better, and continuing the use of the pills it was not long before I felt better than I had been before the influenza attacked me. My rapid recovery surprised my friends, and when asked what had helped me, I would promptly say, "Not my doctor, but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." To me at least, the pills have been worth their weight in gold."

As a precaution against winter ills take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now. Sold by all medicine dealers, or sent by mail at 50c a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Law Of Progress Is Reflected In Age-Old Science Of Surveying And Mapping

The science of surveying is one of the oldest in the world, extending back through the mists of antiquity to the early days along the banks of the Nile and, for all we know, even further. But, although truly venerable it is not yet too old to adapt itself to modern ideas nor to appropriate whatever it may find of service in the onward march of civilization.

The "groma," one of the most ancient of surveying instruments, used for angle measuring in the early Egyptian days, was constructed from the rather rude of datepalm leaves bound together by bottings of date-palm fiber. From this crude beginning it is a far step to some of the highly specialized and efficient instruments in use today, in the evolution of which countless inventions and adaptations have been called upon. Inventions and adaptations that in their principles and application present a diversity almost as wide as it is possible to conceive.

The transit-theodolite, for instance, the modern angle-measuring instrument and the logical successor to the groma, has been gradually evolved taking one idea here, another there, until it has reached its present stage. That this state is by no means perfect as yet is evident from a recent tendency to adapt it in further changes looking toward a lessening of weight, at the same time with an increase in compactness, stability, and accuracy.

The transit-theodolite, however, although a very important instrument in the surveyor, is not the only instrument. Many classes of surveying may be carried on where this instrument is either not needed at all or, if used, play only a minor part. Indeed sometimes instruments are used in surveying that may not be generally thought of as survey instruments.

One of these that might be mentioned is the barometer. This instrument measures the pressure of the atmosphere and is ordinarily thought of in connection with weather forecasting. But differences of atmospheric pressure also occur with differences of elevation. This principle is utilized to determine elevations of points above sea level, a matter of such vital information in topographic mapping.

As another instance, shortly after Confederation, when the great areas of Western Canada began to be opened up, our country was confronted with the necessity of providing maps of the rugged areas of the Rocky mountains. Here the usual methods of mapping were impractical and expensive, and new means had to be devised. In casting about for those the camera was chosen upon and by the application of methods devised by the late Dr. E. G. Deville, surveyor-general, of Canada, methods which in their development were highly technical but in their application quite simple, this work went satisfactorily ahead. There might not, upon casual consideration, appear to be much in connection between the art of taking pictures and that of mapping the country, but the method evolved, namely that of photo-topographic mapping, has also been used in all parts of the world. In this method photographs are taken of the surrounding country from high points affording commanding views and by an inversion of the principles of perspective, these photographs are translated into topographic maps.

The recent application of the aeroplane to the science of surveying is fairly generally known. When man began to fly with a reasonable degree of success, it was not long before the possibilities began to be considered of utilizing the lumbering aeroplane for the stationary instrument used as a support for the surveyor's camera. By no doing the method could be applied to other than mountainous country, a most valuable feature when the extent of territory still unmapped in our country is considered.

Mathematicians attacked the problem and the aerial photographic method of mapping was thus evolved, a method that has proven itself particularly adaptable to Canadian mapping needs. By this method alone the Topographical survey, Department of the Interior, working in conjunction with the Royal Canadian Air Force, and provincial survey officials particularly in Ontario and Quebec, last year covered 60,000 square miles of territory, an area which by other methods would have taken many years' work and tremendous expense.

Third Most Populous Nation

Soviet Russia Now Exceeded Only by China and India

The Soviet Union has become the third most populous nation in the world, being exceeded only by China and India. The latest census shows that it has a population of about 165,000,000.

Within 30 years the population of Russia has increased 30 per cent. The population of the old Russian empire was 132,000,000; but 35 per cent. of that population was separated from Russia when Poland and the Baltic states became independent after the world war.

The greatest increase has been in the cities and towns. Moscow jumped from 1,617,000 in 1897 to more than 2,000,000, and Leningrad from 1,200,000 to 1,600,000. In Tashkent the population has increased 120 per cent. within seven years. Russia is the largest country in the world geographically

Canada's total production of commercial fruit for the season 1926 is approximately at 3,550,000 barrels, valued at $12,317,500, as compared with 3,542,000 barrels, valued at $19,578,702 the finally revised estimate for 1925. The average value per barrel in 1926 is placed at $6.95 as against $5.80 in 1925.

These figures were announced by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The total value of Canada's commercial fruit production in 1926 is $19,578,702, as compared with $12,-228,745 in 1925. The province of Quebec fruits other than apples are not included in the estimate.

Scottish Settlers In West Plan To Establish Carding Mill To Manufacture Harris Tweeds

Sustained progress is evident in the "Clan Donald" farm colony in Northern Alberta established through cooperation between the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Scottish Immigration Aid Society, a few months over one hundred families from the British Isles there have spring. In preparation for the new settlers a house and barn were erected on each of the hundred farms and a well sunk. One hundred horses and three hundred cows were purchased and distributed, as well as the necessary farm machinery. With this auspicious start no time was lost in getting seriously down to work. Ten acres had been broken on each farm before establishment and the area rapidly supplemented, some of the new farmers commencing for fifty acres in the course of the season. In all, some 2,500 acres were broken in the colony, so that a substantial harvest is forecast for the present year.

Some of the new settler families had received a year or two's practical training with Alberta farmers, but others were moved direct on to the colony from their crofts in Northern Scotland and Ireland. Each have many gratifying progress, and while waiting for their first harvest have practised economy in various ways. A number of settlers found work on the C.P.R. grade construction, while over fifty obtained jobs in sleet-threshing during the harvesting season, earning an average of from $5 to $6 per day with an average run of twenty days. A number of new farms have made a success of chicken farming, and some have found lumber cutting profitable. An average of two cuires was raised by each settler, and arrangements were made for the exhaust of all cry cow in the fall. Then, too, that the families were assured of milk for the winter months. Many families have managed to add other income and cattle to those provided at the outset by the Society. Altogether a full measure of success is considered to have attended the inaugural year of the colony and great satisfaction is expressed by the sponsors.

A most interesting development planned in the colony and other parts of Alberta where settlers from the Northern Scottish Islands are settled, is the manufacture of "Harris tweeds."

For which the Hebridean crofters are famous in their native land. This manufacture is a truly rural industry with these people, in that most of the Alberta settlers took out their spinning wheels with them and some their hand looms. On their arrival in Canada they have immediately turned some Harris homespun which has been sold to the Hudson's Bay Company.

What is projected now by the Scottish Immigrant Aid Society is a cottage industry—working in conjunction with a small industrial plant. The use of hand looms on the farms will be further encouraged. Though these will be worked only intermittently, for the main part during the winter months. It is planned to establish a carding mill in the district. Red Deer, the headquarters of the Scottish Immigrant Aid Society, being regarded as the most fitting and appropriate spot. The necessary buildings are already in the possession of the Society and the greater part of the machinery required is being purchased by philanthropic individuals.

The scheme, which has every promise of success, is already in operation and one calculated to advance the best interests of the present colonists and those who will be in the community farm adjunct will be a small herd of sheep which is in line with the policy of always raising commercial products in Western Canada. An excellent market is said to exist for Harris Tweeds Such a cottage industry can be most profitable in addition to the settlement, as keeping the newcomers on the land, providing the entire family with employment, and a skilled subsistability to its revenue.

A gratifying success in its work has attended the settlement operations of the Scottish Immigrant Aid Society Through its instrumentality many splendid families have been moved from all parts of the British Isles and satisfactorily established in Western Canada, where they are making progress towards prosperity. The work is continuing, and in the present season it is expected that many additional settlers, who certainly selected, will be moved from the British Isles and launched out upon Canadian farming careers in the same satisfactory manner

Increase in Wool Clip

Eleven And a Half Million Pounds Marketed in 1926

Final estimates for the wool clip of Canada for the year 1926 place the total at close to eleven and a half million pounds. Of this amount around five million pounds were sold locally, the bulk of the clip in Quebec and certain new settlements in the West. Consequently not much commercial channels. Of the remainder, about 55 per cent. or 3,564,000 pounds was marketed on a graded basis through the medium of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers. This is a substantial increase over 1925, when 2,276,000 pounds were shipped to the co-operative

Exports of Live Stock

Exports of live stock from Alberta for the year 1926, show a considerable increase over those of 1925, according to figures recently issued by the Provincial Department of Agriculture. In 1925 a total of nineteen thousand eight hundred horses and two hundred and eleven thousand, forty hundred head of cattle were exported, compared with fifteen thousand, one hundred horses and two hundred and forty-two thousand head of cattle exported in 1925. The exports were made to other provinces, the United States and to Great Britain.

No Danger of Gasoline Famine

If Oil Fields Motor Fuel Could Be Made Says New Jersey Man

There is little chance of the motorists gas tank going dry, even in the remote future, Thomas H. "But if in all things we are mistaken, I will oil rails in the future to conserve an ample supply," he said. The Liquor Habit

Victims of this habit will be interested to learn that the re-habilitation department of the Salvation Army of London, England, can soon be established in Canada. This treatment which removes all craving for alcohol in a few days is among other prominent people highly endorsed by Lord Ancaster, Lord Armstrong, Sir Arthur Martineau, B.B., M. Edgar Walls, Sir Arthur Wilson, Sir Henry Lunn, Sir Philip Gibbs of Ireland, the Bishop of Winchester, the Bishop of Chelmsford, Free Church Magistrates, Church Institutions, and Press of Great Britain. Particulars regarding the treatment can be obtained from Mr. J. W. Wilson, 328 Strathmore Boulevard, Toronto, Ont.

Shipments of butter from the United States to Greece have jumped in value from $45,000 a year just before the war to about $2,000,000 in the past twelve months.

A Remedy for Earaches.—To have the earache is indeed a sorry matter. The ear is a delicate organ and one easily dealt with, fortunately it is not a doctor. Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil offers a simple remedy. A few drops upon a piece of lint or medicated cotton and inserted in the ear will do much in relieving pain.

In the last 21 months British airliners have flown nearly 2,000,000 miles and carried 25,000 passengers without a single fatal accident (slight injury to some passengers or crew).

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FEBRUARY 28th

SERVING IN AND THROUGH THE CHURCH

Golden Text: We are labourers together with God.—I Corinthians 3:9.

Lesson: Matthew 3:1-12 Acts 4:32-37.

Devotional Reading: Ephesians 4:1-16 21.

Explanations and Comments

I. Responsibilities of Leaders (Matthew 3:1-12 Acts 4:32-37).

"Ye are the salt of the earth," Jesus declared. Salt was used in sacrifices by Jews, Greeks and Romans, and was an emblem of purity and incorruption. Like other foods, salt preserves from corruption; Jesus was not telling His disciples that they were to preserve others from evil by being like them.

Pentecost is to speak the word which bore witness to righteousness and truth and purity, pointed to the deeds which strengthen virtue and kindle hope in men; to fellowship, especially to lend a hand to those in distress; to relish upward faithfully to adore with support and true prayer; to help in efforts which are making to elevate and purify the social life of the world; this is what it means to be salt in good character. (Henry Van Dyke.)

"Dan," continued Jean, "if the salt have lost its savour, wherewith shall it be salted?" Then more bravely: "Dan, dear child, Christians are needed as useless in the King's domain as salt that has become good for nothing and is cast out upon the ground and trodden under foot of men." That title was no mere figure of speech. To Thomasson alone we owe light from external Life.

"Christ was giving a clear and powerful call to duty. His message was not that his disciples should congratulate themselves on being better than other men. He called them to be the world's benefactors, the actually best men in the world, and to make other men better. He declared to everyone a principle, warning, saying nothing as to the result. Were they to be salt? Were they prepared to fail on earth and fail in heaven? Jesus would be faithless and friendless. The same would be true of them."—(Hilda Van Dyke.)

BUNIONS

May Visit Canada

The London Sunday Times learns that although the Prince of Wales and Premier Stanley Baldwin agreed visiting Canada in the present year, it is highly improbable that they will be able to attend the celebrations of the Dominion's 60th birthday on July 1, as their departure for Canada will not take place until the end of July or early in August. Premier Baldwin's plans will largely depend on the political situation then.

Gin Pills Recommended for Immediate Relief

If your back aches with a dull, sore pain, or if you have had backaches, then your kidneys are certainly deficient. You need Gin Pills. They go right to the kidneys and soothe the inflamed tubules. They help to restore the vitality and the properties of the blood stream are again filtered from the poisons. Mrs. J. Reid of Vancouver writes:

"Just a word of thanks for the good Gin Pills have done me. For years I suffered from backache and kidney trouble. I was constantly in bed. Now I am feeling fine and can do my housework with ease. Gin Pills are the universal remedy for backache and kidney trouble and are sold everywhere at 50c. a box, or 6 boxes for $2.50. CHAPTER XXVII Continued

He would have made his speech before and confessed all the mystery which was to be revealed from the open air stage, but he was suddenly conscious of a stillness in the slender bank that stood close to him. He followed Joanna's gaze and saw two figures crossing the terrace much faded the distance.

John, in flannels and blue, his rolling, well set out, bearing in new poise of assurance, looked for a moment with interest at the top of the bronze statue hovering into stone Dunmore. He was a very young man and beautiful in the orchid tones she affected for trouble and guilt. Under dark, drawn brows was evidence that they had come in from a round of golf—over the little Austin fairways that stretched across the valley and if any one had to make other men better. Did she need to receive a preacher, scowling, eating intolerance in the mood? Were they not the only people safe on earth and fit for heaven? Jesus would be faithless and friendless. The same would be true of them."—(Hilda Van Dyke.)

Lady Weymouth

A car, turning in at the Amette gate and rolling up the road to the veranda of the villa, reminded Joanna that Lady Weymouth, Teddy Dunstanleigh's sister, had telephoned early in the morning that she would like to have a come out for a chat. "Something rather personal between you and me, my dear," she had said in her impulsive, staccato way. "You may give me a cup of tea, and a brandy and soda, and when we've had a chat show me over the grounds, if you will. I am all excited by what I hear of the preparations you are making for your big affair."

Brandon, from end when Joanna got up from the bench and insisted that she must go to the house to greet her visitor.

"Let me wave just beginning to get somewhere, weren't we?" he protested.

"I have been too close to you," he said, "to fear that you will be offended with me when I ask you to drop your barriers low enough for me to talk across them—as young Winsome and the stranger fascination for women."

John strolled immediately and all inspired to rise Brandon caught her hand and brought her down beside him again.

"I fancy she is only repeating me," she breathed, her glance probing the deepen at her feet. "It is said that I have stolen all her courtiers, you know! I haven't tried to, but I suppose I have. I've wanted every one to take you from her, it seems. And I've wondered why. Now it is only fair that she should do the thing that to her, must seem treachery."

"It is retaliation, isn't it?" She is doing from you the one man you love best."

She turned her eyes full into his. There was much of bitterness in her tone, he also answered him, and much earnestness, too.

He followed Joanna's gaze and saw John in flannels and blue—with Yvonne at the top of the terrace steps.

"I am not at all sure of that. I don't think I am glad that John came down to the Ritzers, but now that he has come, and I have seen him and talked with him, I am not very deeply concerned about him. You wanted to know just how I feel—that was your real question, well I haven't stayed awake a single hour because Yvonne has taken a fancy to John and he is making a silly fool of himself."

She looked at him for a long time, while Brandon waibred her gaily. Joanna always added something to whatever she was saying about. As he expected it came, suddenly:

"He never did know very much about a girl. It will do him good to learn all that Yvonne can teach him."

India Declares Autonomy

Lord Willingdon Says Conditions in the East are Changing Fast

"If we show a real desire to assist India to get control of her own affairs, and help the Indians to be masters in their own house, I believe India will want to stay with her for many long years," declared Lord Willingdon in an address before the Canadian Club at Ottawa. His Excellency related some reminiscences of his term as viceroy in India for 11 years.

"The most striking I remember" continued the Governor General, "that the East is changing very fast and that India is determined to have more responsibility in regard to the administration of India's affairs and determined to be treated on a basis of equality."

In his 11 years' administration of India, Lord Willingdon had found Indians loyal, very responsive, very friendly and very amenable to the laws of the land.

The Governor-General also expressed his thanks for certain assistance Canada had rendered in the Work of development of India, while he was located at Madras.

HOW TO RELIEVE CHILDREN'S COLDS

Avoid Serious Results by Using Baby's Own Tablets

When a child shows the first symptoms of a cold, such as sneezing, reddening of the eyes, changed or running nose, prompt measures of relief may be taken to prevent serious illness. There always is time on hand some simple, safe and effective remedy for immediate use.

Baby's Own Tablets act quickly, relieve no opiates or narcotics in their tasteless and harmless. Mrs. Joseph LaFleur, Holyoke, Mass., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my children and find them a very satisfactory medicine. When my little boy had a cold I gave him the Tablets at night and he was well next day. I give them to the children for constipation and they always do good. I think Baby's Own Tablets are much easier to give a child than liquid medicine. I recommend the Tablets to all mothers who have small children and believe they should always be kept on hand."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Little Helps For This Week

Rich toward God.—Luke xii 21.

Richest are they
That live for Christ so well,
The longest day
Would scarce suffice to tell
In what wide ways their benefactions fell.

Rich with no very great things, but with the little daily self-denials, the speaking a cheerful word when the heart is weary, the patient, steady performance of duties that come with every returning day;—Hilda things, that are the true riches with which God is well pleased.

Should Pay for Protection

Writing in the London Sunday Observer, Colonel Right Hon. Josiah Wedgwood, Labor Member of Parliament, suggested that the British principle by her protection of Egypt, she should transfer the protection of vital country to India. He said: "I wants Great Britain to insure her external peace, she should pay Britain about $2,000,000 annually.

LOCAL NEWS

The school Literary Society is planning to have a sleigh ride at their next meeting.

Red Business' Comedy Company presenting "The Dust of the Earth," a drama in four acts. Watch for the date.

The regular meeting of the W.M.S. of the United church will be held at the home of Mrs. Kingsley on Friday, February 18, at 3:30 p.m. All ladies of the congregation are cordially invited.

The Women's Institute held their regular monthly meeting in the ladies' room of the Memorial hall on February 10. Mrs. Gibson gave a very interesting description of a canoe trip up the Beaver river made by Mr. and Mrs. Gibson last summer. After the meeting tea, sandwiches and cake were served.

No one is wholly good nor wholly bad; even Philip Lilaryk, awaiting trial now in the goal for the murder of Miss Tomashowski, showed consideration for the taxpayer by committing suicide shortly after midnight Saturday morning. He had candidly admitted the slaying of the Chipman farmer and took his own life rather than wait for his inevitable fate.

Some people get their living easily while others have to work tremendously hard between cradle and grave. One man worked so hard and long on Tuesday he went to sleep on the sidewalk on Government street, he couldn't walk until he reached home. We hope he said his prayers, for it was almost his last endless sleep he settled into. It was almost a miracle that he was found in time, it was between 12:30 and 1 a.m. and a bitterly cold night. The good Samaritan who discovered him hunted up a friend and between them they with difficulty got him home. We trust the incident will be a lesson to him and that he will in future work union hours and cut out the overtime.

CURLING

The final in the mixed bonspiel was played off Monday night by rinks skipped by Ellis Graham and H. Thesen. The latter won out with a score of 7 to 6 and the presentation of the cabinware, while the losers will be mollified with a box of chocolates each. Rinks were Mrs. Stanley, J. Gauf, Miss Olive Walker, Harry Thesen, skip; Mrs. Geo. Barker, H. Holmes, Mrs. Grubb, Ellis Graham, skip.

There was a curler in an unnamed town,
Known near and far, a skip of renown,
He played some bids not yet full grown,
And believe it or not, they held their own.

They did not imagine it could come to pass,
Even childhood they had heard that in bad class,
They trimmed him, however, in a game without blunders,
And this renowned skip now wanders and thunders.

HOCKEY

The Junior hockey team played Good Hope Saturday and defeated them 5—1. It was a slow and rugged game, the combination being relieved only by spells. Hunter Anderson scored the goal for Good Hope and Rod and Abe Allard scored for the Fort. Lloyd Anderson played a good game in goal for the visitors.

Game Lamoureux was host on Sunday evening at a very enjoyable dinner given the members and a few of the supporters of the curling rink team. The dinner was to celebrate the winning of the Bulgeon cup from the Clover Bar team and the runners-up. It from the strength of the Lamont team to take it back home with them after the game last week. Players present were Ray Stanley, (capt.), G. Walker, Donald Ripley, T. Taylor, Geo. Simpson, Pete Rasmus, Donald von Allard, Rod Allard and Ross Taylor. After the dinner toasts were given to The Boss, The Hockey Team, and The Supporters, following which there was a general discussion of hockey and hockey matters.

The commercial fish industry in the province experienced the largest year in its history, according to figures furnished by R. Redd, chief fisheries inspector for the province, who has now made his report to the federal government.

The summer catch was valued at a net amount of $282,912, and the winter catch at $282,587, making a total of $676,649. In addition to this, it is estimated that 1,649,900 lbs. of fish was taken in the domestic catch, estimated value $58,000, anglers' catch was estimated at 367,500 lbs., valued at $67,000, so that the total fish catch of all kinds in the province reached a value of nearly $700,000. Be in town on that date, and convince yourself what such an outfit can do for your Municipality in winter.
With the amount of money that is invested in automobiles in this district, can the ratepayers afford to lay up their cars during the winter months when quick, comfortable transportation is a necessity?

HENNIG MAKES MAIDEN SPEECH IN ASSEMBLY

Following is a copy of Mr. Rudolph Hennig's speech in the Assembly during the debate in reply to the speech from the Throne:

Mr. Speaker—Sir—

In rising to contribute to this debate, I wish to take a little time to lay before you the views and needs of my constituents, as well as I can interpret them. I have the honor to represent the constituency of Victoria in this Assembly. Victoria is a purely agricultural constituency. There are only three small towns within its boundaries. None of these towns can have any factories or industries employing any number of laborers. The interests of the laborers men in these towns are identical with that of the farmers.

The population is composed of approximately 45 per cent. English speaking people and the other 55 per cent. of new Canadians, the great majority of whom are of Ukranian origin. These people who were used to hard work in the old countries came to Canada with the firm purpose in mind of making their homes here. They are an industrious and thrifty lot and are making rapid progress.

The great needs of my constituency are:—More schools and more and better roads and another railroad to serve the North-eastern portion of the constituency. This block of land, lying between the two C.N.R. lines, is some 60 by 40 miles in extent. It is thickly settled and has rich agricultural possibilities. The settlers have been waiting more or less patiently for 25 years for a railroad. Though both the C.N.R. and the C.P.R. have run surveys through this territory nothing has as yet come of them.

The C.P.R. is slowly pushing the Cutknife-Whitford line westward. This line has reached a point north of Vermilion necessitating like 30 miles East of Whitford. How long it will take to reach Whitford and whether it will be built further West are questions to which I have no answer.

That part of Victoria is capable of a great deal of development, which it will no doubt get once a railroad is running through it.

The school problem is a difficult one even in a fairly prosperous constituency like ours. Some of the older Districts have splendid school plants. But some of the newer and more outlying ones find it harder to provide. Unbalanced farms, some of poor quality and some vacant land make financing a rural school district a tough proposition. The new graduated grant gives some relief to the weaker districts. The making of grants cannot solve all the school problems. Poor roads, long distances and adverse weather conditions make for poor attendance, and lessen the efficiency of the school and thereby tend to discourage the teacher to some extent, although the teachers show an admirable spirit under difficulties.

The small town districts have problems of their own. Their taxes are very high. Most of these town schools have a number of non-resident pupils attending high school. These merchant of whom do not board in town, do not pay sufficient to cover their proportion of the cost of operating the school. Yet very often an extra room has to be added on account of these pupils.

There is vast room for improvement in our rural system. Good roads are a vital necessity to success in farming. Many of our farmers are greatly handicapped because they have to haul their produce long distances over poor roads. A considerable number have to haul across the North Saskatchewan river. The approaches to the ferries have up to date not been in a satisfactory state. This means that the loads are cut down by at least one-third. Some of these farmers are as far away from the markets that it takes two days to make a round trip. These men could, under good road conditions, haul out 900 bushels of wheat in twenty days, taking 60 bushels to a load. But because they can only take two-thirds of a normal load down

INCREASE GASOLINE TAX

The provincial gasoline tax will be increased from two cents a gallon to three cents a gallon, it is announced by the provincial government, the additional revenue to be used for provincial road building plans. There will be no change made in the license fees for cars.

There are twenty-six smallpox cases reported in Edmonton.

and up the ferry approaches, it takes a man at least thirty days to do the work which he should do in twenty. This is not only a waste of time, but an added expense as well. I trust that the Government will be able to do something to improve this condition.

The preponderance of opinion throughout Victoria is not so much concerned with the reduction of taxation (though not careless for an increase) as with getting the utmost value in results for the money spent. We realize that we are living in a new country; that we are in need of many improvements and that we cannot get these without spending money.

We wish this money spent judiciously however.

HOCKEY

In their effort to RE the McGeans cup the hockey team from Bruderheim suffered a severe trimming from the local seniors Monday night. The game was fast throughout and as a result of heavy checking the players were kept coming to and from the cooler. The final score was 6—1. For the Fort Roy Stanley got 2, Tom Blythe 2, Walther 1, assisted by Don Smallbeal, Dan Blythe, 1, assisted by Rod Allard.

Wednesday nights have bestowed they desire an opportunity to wrest the cup from the present holders and they will be accommodated either Friday night or Saturday.

The Fort Juniors defeated Partridge Hill by 5—2 in a game played here last Wednesday.

PRAIRE RIVER SHIPMENTS

More than three million, six hundred thousand bushels of grain, most of which is wheat, have been shipped this season from the territory tributary to the Edmonton, Dunvegan and B.C. railway in the Peace River country. This is the heaviest grain shipping season in the history of that railway.

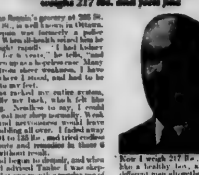
Health Broken—Lost 66 lbs. Now Well, Won Back 82 lbs.

Ottawa merchant, formerly city officer, rundown by kidney trouble. Wasted from 200 to 134 lbs. Tonsilac restored robust health; now weighs 217 lbs. and feels fine



Now I weigh 217 lbs., eat and sleep like a healthy boy, and feel like a different man altogether

Phelan Rennie's grocery at 326 St. Patrick St., is well known in Ottawa. Mr. Rennie was formerly a policeman. When ill-health seized him he lost weight rapidly. "I had kidney trouble for 5 years," he tells, "and my nerves got to a hopeless state. Many times, from sheer weakness, I have fallen where I stood, and had to be helped to my feet.

"Pains racked my entire system, especially my back, which felt like splitting. Needless to say, I could neither eat nor sleep normally. Weak spells and nervousness would leave me trembling all over. I failed away from 200 to 135 lbs., and tried endless treatments and remedies in those 5 years, without result.

"I had begun to despair, and when a friend advised Tonsilac I was sceptical. But one month's regular use of this wonderful medicine convinced me that I was on the road to health. I kept on taking Tonsilac and to my delight and surprise it made me a new man in a surprisingly short time.

Many a man's peak of trouble comes in liquid form.

Total Eclipse of the Sun

Unusual Phenomena to be Witnessed in England on June 29

English astronomers are preparing to view on June 29, the first total eclipse of the sun which has visited England in 200 years and the last one until 1999.

The belt of country in which the eclipse will be total is only 10 miles wide, running from the north of Wales to the west in Hartlepool on the North Sea in the east. So popular is the interest in the unusual event that several railroads will run special trains to various points in the belt.

The total eclipse begins over England at 5.53 a.m., Greenwich mean time, and is visible in its totality from 21.7 seconds in the west to 215 seconds in the east.

Astronomers have point out that with a total eclipse, such as will be seen this year, the corona is visible, which is not the case with partial eclipses.

Several parties of astronomers are planning expeditions to Norway, where the visibility will be better than in England. Three Greenwich astronomers will take two telescopes and the spectro-eclipse to a station in Yorkshire, and other parties will go to both the west and east coast.

Urge Free Port at Ocean Terminal of St. B. Road

The establishment of a free port at the ocean terminal of the Hundson's Bay Railway will be urged by many Progressive members of the House of Commons when the railway takes place. One member has expressed the conviction that if Port Nelson (or Port Churchill—if the terminal is finally established there) were made a free trade port, the cost of construction of Canada's railway to the Northern Seas could be wiped out in a few years and the financial success of the road assured.

Is Considered a Miracle

Body of Rumanian Priest Dead Two Centuries is Well Preserved

A glass casket in which the well preserved body of a priest dead two hundred years has been ordered by the peasants of the district, Bistritz, Rumania. They look upon the preservation of the body around which six wooden coffins have tumbled as a miracle. Doctors have tried to explain to the peasants why the body is in good condition, but they prefer to accept the theory of supernatural.

To pay for the expensive glass casket an admission fee is to be charged of those viewing the body.

New Tomato Grown on Trees

Tomatoes growing on trees like apples were a novelty for the farmers at the first exhibition this year by the Royal Horticultural Society, London. The trees are about four feet high and look like immature orange trees. Each tree bears some seventy little tomatoes, growing so closely together that they seem to form high cones. The tree is reported has a lighter color than the ordinary tomato and its taste is sweeter.

FELT VERY WEAK

Had No Ambition and Had to Rest Frequently

Mrs. J. J. Hrdlik, Tchukumenah, Manitoulin Island, Ont., is one of the many thousands of women who was run-down and bloodless, and who has found health through the use of "Milburn's Pink Pills. She says, "For a number of years I felt very weak and had no ambition. I found it very difficult to do my housework and had to rest frequently. As time passed my condition grew decidedly worse, and my feet and legs were badly swollen. My husband told the doctor of my condition, and he gave me medicine. Then my baby died and the doctor attended me. He said I had scarcely any blood in my body, that it had turned to water. I continued taking his medicine for a time, but did not feel that it was doing me any good. Then I started to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In a short while I felt better, and after taking the pills for a couple of months I felt like a new person. Where my work used to be a drag upon my strength I enjoy doing it now, and I will always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to weak people."

If you will send your name and address to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., they will mail you a little book called "Building Up the Blood," which contains many health hints. You can get the pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Persistent Asthma. A most distressing characteristic of this debilitating disease, is the persistence with which recurring attacks come to sap away strength and leave the sufferer in a state of almost continual exhaustion. No wiser precaution can be taken than that of keeping at hand a supply of Dr. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy, famous as the most potent remedy for eradicating the disease from the tender air passages.

Importance Of Maintaining Moisture In The Indoor Air During The Winter Months

The extreme importance of maintaining sufficient moisture in the indoor air during the heating season has never been fully realized in Canada. Of course, everyone knows in a general way, that the atmosphere of our homes is much too dry in the winter months, but very few realize the extent to which the condition affects our health and comfort, not to mention the increased consumption of fuel and destruction to home furnishings.

In related homes without artificial means of humidification, are particularly liable to develop unhealthy living conditions in winter.

The human nose performs all the duties of a well ordered air conditioning plant in a threefold way, acting as a filter for dust and bacteria, heating the air which enters the lungs and humidifying it to 60 per cent. relative humidity. If not, very dry air is breathed continuously, the nose is called on to furnish large amounts of moisture, resulting in the drying up of mucous membranes and nasal secretions and the subsequent irritation and swelling of the tender membranes of the throat and nose. This frequently causes headaches and dizziness and prepares a receptive field for disease germs.

The New York State Commission, in their investigation of ventilation conditions in the schools of the State, found that they were able to reduce the absence in the school rooms from 74 degrees Fahrenheit to 68 degrees by the proper humidification of the air, with a correct maintenance of comfort. That is, the effective temperature was lowered ten degrees. They also determined that the efficiency of children in such was increased 35 per cent. by the cooler atmosphere. In an industrial investigation the examination proved that excessive heat promotes premature fatigue. Subjects under test, working on addition, were enabled to double their quantity of work in addition to fat rate, did 73 per cent. more work at 68 degrees than at 74 degrees.

The excessively high temperature required for comfort in dry air, wastes considerable heat. Temperatures of 75 degrees to 80 degrees are common in houses with low humidity, whereas only 68 degrees Fahrenheit is necessary for comfort in a properly moistened atmosphere.

In houses, particularly those not insulated, the heat loss of the temperature from 70 degrees Fahrenheit to 50 degrees Fahrenheit is usually difficult and requires heating of from 20 with a subsequent loss of efficiency in the burning of coal. Although the evaporation of water in producing proper humidification requires some heat, a considerable over-all fuel economy is effected owing to the lower temperature required for comfort.

Considerable controversy has arisen between various authorities on the humidity conditions as to the actual amount of fuel saved in this way. Some investigators contend that very little saving is accomplished, while others maintain that economies amounting to 15 per cent. are possible. The general consensus of opinion according to an analysis by the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior, at Ottawa, is that a net saving of from 5 to 10 per cent. of fuel may be made in the average house by maintaining the air in the proper degree.

Vegetable Growing in Far North

Possibilities of Gardening at Fort Vermilion, Alberta

The reports of the experimentalist in charge of the Dominion substations in the far north, just published at Ottawa, are of special interest as showing the possibilities of agriculture in that region. Three varieties of radish grown at Fort Vermilion, Alberta, on April 30 were ready for use there by June. Lettuce, both leaf and cabbage varieties, was ready June 15. They were excellent in quality and remained so until late autumn. Cauliflower is usually a good crop. It is sown under glass about April 24, is transplanted a second time and reaches maturity in another month.

Cabbage and Brussel sprouts were also successful. The same was true of the turnip, beet and carrot. These were harvested in September. Tomatoes grown in box beds April 27 and transplanted June 1, were harvested between August 20 and 25. Earliest of the ripened 100 pounds large in size and of good quality. Dwarf Best, Indian Export, and Lorrians were also of good quality. Golden peaches and May Queen were available July 1. Twelve varieties of beans sown May 6 were generally ready a few days after the middle of July. Especially good and tender pod-producers were the long string, Ebey, Kentucky wonder, broad bean-grown 3½ inches long, Refugee, Improved Valentine, and Black Valentine. Peas sown from April 24 to May 12 were generally ready for use from 24 to 42 days after sowing. Horn Admiral, Thomas Laxton, Prosperity and Telephone were the best varieties.

He (passionately) — I tell you, sir, I am going to make you mad—mad—mad.

Champion Radio Announcer

"It is quite true, I really had 'stage fright,'" said genial George Wright, explaining that when at the close of the radio show in Vancouver he was offered the cup which signalled the fact that he had been elected the most popular broadcasting announcer on the Pacific Coast, he was unable to do more than faintly gasp a half-audible "Thanks." "I found there is a vast difference between talking over the air through a microphone and speaking to a crowd of people present and visible."

Mr. Wright is chief announcer at CNRV, the Canadian National Railways broadcasting station at Vancouver, British Columbia, and the vote which placed him at the head of the list was in progress for some months. From all States of the Union along the Pacific and adjoining territory there was a big poll in favor of Mr. Wright, while scarcely a dissenting vote was cast in so far as British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan were concerned.

CNRV is an outstanding station on the Pacific Coast and its message from Canada is consistently heard from Alaska to Mexico and down well across the great coast.

Improving the Herd

What Can be Accomplished in the Building of a Dairy Herd

An illustration of what can be accomplished in building up a dairy herd is provided in the experience of the Experimental Station at Brandon in Manitoba. In 1921 the average production of the milk herd was 5749 lbs of milk containing 250.22 lbs of fat. In 1925 it had increased to 9,241 lbs. milk, containing almost 400 lbs. of fat.

The increase in production is due, for the most part, to the observance of fundamental principles of management, which are good breeding for the twelve months of the year, regularity in the hours of milking and feeding; the keeping of milk, fat and test records; the continuation of the poor cows and the replacement of the latter either through the rearing of heifers from record sires and dams or through purchase at an opportune time.

Mr. Sir. Marle the superintendent of the station stating in his report that the logical way to get rid of scrub cows is to weigh and test their produce, keep records and turn them out.

Hide Book a Success

Confusion Over Names Brought Fame to British Author

How a book otherwise doubtless far failure, became a success owing to confusion in the public mind, is told by Mrs. E. L. Hill, public librarian Edmonton, who has an autographed letter of R. H. Blackmore, author of "Lorna Doone." Enquiring or calling the book, the English publisher skipped the greater part of the edition to the Antipodes in the hope that it might find a market there. Then came a peculiar coincidence. The Marquis of Lorne married the Princess Louise. The names Lorne and Lorna Doone confronted in the public mind and the rumor went abroad that the Marquis of Lorne was in some way connected with the book. Interest was awakened and the demand for "Lorna Doone" became so great that the shipment had to be brought back

Allowed to Fly Royal Flag

Officers' Church of British Admiralty in St. Martin's, London

With the exception of sailors and ratings, the head known church in the English agrarian world is now allowed to fly the Royal Flag.

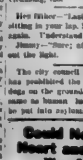
The church is not actually used by royalty, as the parish church, as best Buckingham Palace and St. James's Palace have chapels of their own but the King and Queen do on occasions attend service.

St. Martin's is recognized as the official church of the admiralty and is thus allowed to fly the naval flag at the White Ensign.

The church during the war earned for itself the title of the church of the "Five Queens" because five queens who kept open at night to house stranded soldiers and others. From today the church will be open on the night watchmen may have shelter till morning.

Could Not Sleep Heart and Nerves Were So Bad

Mr. Geo. Mack, Windsor, Ont., writes:—"I suffered with my heart and nerves for many years and could get no relief. I could not sleep at night, I began to have dizzy spells which got so bad I could not walk for my work. I was afraid to go out any place, for any minute I would stagger on my feet, and everything in front of me would turn black and fade away. While I was home such a friend told me to take



I got four boxes and by the time I had used them the pains and misery in my head stopped and I was able to get a good night's rest. Although that was only a few days after I began using Dr. Miles' Nervine before I had used the contents of the bottle I felt like a new person. Dr. Miles' Nervine is a boon to all sleepless people. Sold by druggists, on Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. A box at all dealers or direct on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medicine Co., Elkhart, Indiana.

A Tower of Strength

The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada whose annual meetings have just been held continues to increase its strength from year to year. It passes the billion-dollar mark, and the total business paid or under the year better double the 1911 total, two years ago. The way it has been put before the people of Canada by all companies head and foreign, at the outbreak of war was the insurance boom in the United States, and Canada had to "do or die" per cent over 1912, while that of the Sun Life was 37, a big gain.

Its assets were increased during the past year by over $12,000,000, making the aggregate now over $75,000,000. The Company's net interest on total business in force rose over ten per cent. Its annual payments during the year, the remarkable factor about the past, nineteen million dollars, making the aggregate now over $175

IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENT IN HEALTH PROGRAM

One of the most important developments in the extension of public health services in the history of the province is forecast in the speech from the throne which was read in the legislature on Thursday afternoon.

This is the establishment of a system of travelling clinics for the rural districts, to give attention to expectant children and children of pre-school age. This system will be carried out under conditions arranged with the various school districts, and will provide needed facilities at a minimum of cost. A travelling clinic has been in operation for some years in the pioneer districts of the province, with great success, and the cost of operation has been found to be such that the government feels it can provide such services on a wider scale and at a cost that will be within the reach of all.

OLD FASHIONED DANCE AT CLOVERDALE SCHOOL HOUSE

Last Friday evening, or rather night, the Cloverdale Community Club held a most enjoyable dance in the Cloverdale school house. Over one hundred and twenty people attended. Everybody went. Grandma held the baby, and between times shewed the youngsters that she had forgotten more than they ever knew of a good old fashioned square dance. Happy? We'll say they were. Two fiddles and a banjo, and the music never stopped. Eats for everybody at 12:30 and then on with the dance. While some of the "Town guys" got their wind, (they couldn't hold the pace) Mr. Lamoureux gave a habitant reading, and Mrs. Wood brought down the school with a comic recitation. Dressed as a nigger mammy, she certainly looked the part. Then more music and dancing until about six o'clock, when it was time to get home for the chores.

Just one more night in a lifetime, but a most enjoyable one. In spite of arriving home at ten o'clock next morning, two fellows at least swear they are going again. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Amos Lalonde, Mr. and Mrs. Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Lamoureux, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lamoureux, Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Moreau, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Boufford, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Yanch.

HOCKEY

In a sweet game of hockey played here last Saturday the Edmonton Huskers, juvenile champions of Northern Alberta, defeated the local Juniors 5-2. The goals for the locals were scored by Dan Blythe and Bud Allard.

The Fort Seniors successfully defended a determined attempt to annex the McQueen cup by the Waskatenau team Monday night. The visitors were a rugged and aggressive bunch and made a great fight for the prize, causing the locals to stretch themselves, making one of the finest exhibitions of hockey played here this winter. The superior skating and stick handling of the Fort boys offset the heavy body checking of the visitors and this superiority became more and more apparent as the game progressed. In the last period the

ENTHUSIASM SHOWN AT JASPER HIGHWAY ROUTE MEETING AT LAMONT

There was a remarkably good attendance at a meeting held at Lamont last Tuesday in connection with the proposed highway between Vegreville and Edmonton. The meeting was wholly in favor of the route parallelling the C.N.R right-of-way; and the arguments put forward were that it was easy to build, already well drained, was not hilly, as short as any and shorter than most of the suggested routes, it would cut down mileage in inter-town communication, upkeep less costly and it would take the tourist through splendid, well settled farming country.

Representatives were present from the U.F.A. locals of Scotford, Hilliard, Westoch, Rawale, Star, Crooked Lake, Lac Sheen, Two, Bruderheim, Skaro and Lamont.

R. Hennig, M.L.A., was present to get the views of his constituents and at the request of the meeting will arrange an appointment for Thursday, March 3, with the Minister of Public Works and head a delegation made up of representatives of all U.F.A. locals, Boards of Trade, and town and village councils between Vegreville and Fort Saskatchewan.

CURLING

The story as we heard it is that Harry Thoms, with canny caution, picked a rink which one might safely say was invincible, and then mounted the nearest fence and crowed his fool to the world and surrounding districts. It was to be for an oyster supper. Why not? The victims would pay for their temerity and Harry's opposite? Look 'em over! There was Ernie Pfleiderf, loud, well known as an implement dealer during the time this was an agricultural country; W. Blythe, second, you know him, presents cups to successful lady curlers; Harry Thoms, third,—well, there's only one Harry Thoms; and skip, W. A. Graham. You should be acquainted with Bill Graham; maker his living selling ice cream on the 1st of July.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF CLOVER BAR, NO. 917

The annual meeting of the ratepayers of the Municipal District of Clover Bar, No. 917, was held in the Memorial hall, Fort Saskatchewan, on Saturday, February 19, for the purpose of choosing members pertaining to the affairs of the district and to nominate councillors for Divisions 1, 2 and 3.

The attendance was small, due no doubt to the condition of the roads and the "corny" weather.

Mr. W. F. Williams, Clover Bar, called the meeting to order at 2 p.m.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read by the secretary and adopted on motion of M. Bastien and A. E. Meyer.

The financial statement and annual return were fully dealt with and information regarding same given when requested.

Considerable discussion took place over the location of road work in the winter time. Opinions as to how this should or could be done were very wide and varied, and very little good resulted from the discussion.

Is the Vote Worth Having?

To the people of Canada, and other countries enjoying the rights, privileges and liberties which responsible government confers upon them, fully appreciate the value of these possessions?

Re-calling the long and bitter struggles that took place, first in Great Britain and later in Canada, a well as in practically all countries now under democratic institutions, for the right of the franchise, it would almost seem absurd to think that people valued that which was so dearly won. Inquiry on almost any Canadian citizen and the reply would undoubtedly be: "Of course, I value my rights as citizenship." Actions, however, speak louder than words, and how do thousands of Canadians make answer to this question when deeds rather than words are required?

The Chief Electoral Officer for Canada has recently prepared a statement as to votes cast throughout the Dominion in the general election of last September, showing the total to be 3,775,462. The Dominion census of 1921 gave the population of Canada as 8,788,483. Using round numbers it may be assumed that the population was at least 9,000,000 in 1925. Of these 3,000,000 are apparently under half who by reason of being under 21 years of age or un-naturalized adults, having about 4,500,000 qualified voters. To be quite within the mark, say 4,250,000.

In other words, approximately one million citizens of Canada qualified to vote, or almost 25 per cent. of all voters, took their right to the franchise in such small esteem that they did not take the trouble to go to the polling booths in a general election of world-wide significance, which vitally affected the prosperous and policy of the National Government for the next five years.

Of Canadian showing, while not one to which our people can point with pride, is decidedly better than the United States record, when in the elections of last November, two thirty-four State governors, thirty-five senators, the entire House of Representatives, nearly all the members of state legislatures, and thousands of municipal, county and other officials were elected, only one-third of the qualified voters went to the polls, the two other two-thirds refusing to use their freedom and take upon their shoulders the duties and responsibilities of citizenship.

The people of Great Britain discharge the duties of citizenship better than elsewhere in the Empire, with the exception of Australia. But Australia votes under pressure and compulsion. Although the Commonwealth has equal adult suffrage, such a large proportion of the people refused to use the ballot that compulsory voting was established, and with good results so far as getting the people to the polls is concerned. In the last federal election in Australia and in a more recent national plebiscite, 90 per cent. of the total registered vote was polled.

In fact, however, passing strange that men and women must be compelled under pain of a fine imposed for failure to vote, to discharge the first obligation of their citizenship?

As one publication, commenting on this amazing apathy, on the part of a large section of the people, very truly says, no country can be well governed where only the professional political elements interest themselves in elections. Unfortunately a great percentage of those who refuse to vote have the curious conceit that they are the superior classes; that politics is something beneath them. Such people are, in fact, less worthy citizens, than the professional ward workers in our large cities.

If Canadian citizenship is worth anything, it is worth at least the trouble involved on election day of going to the polls and exercising the franchise which such citizenship confers.

Nearly Hundred Years Old

Experiments Made in 1835 With Electrically Propelled Carp.

Electric propulsion of cars dates as far back as 1835, when Thomas Davenport, of Vermont, and in 1839 Robert Davidson, of Scotland, both ran experimental cars by voltaic batteries carried on the car. It was not, however, until the dynamo electric machine was perfected, so as to produce the cost of current, that any practical system was evolved.

The Pretzman and Glass's Canoe Way, Kingdom's electric tramway, in 1880, was the first line in the United Kingdom which took the current from a conductor.

Incident Worth Mentioning

Union Jack Dropped From Launcher's Mainmast When Launched by Diver

The story of how the gold on the White Star liner Laurentic, sunk by the Germans in the war, was recovered by divers operating from the Admiralty steamer Ranee, now about to be sold, is one of the most thrilling in the history of no salvage. One incident that was thought too trivial to be recorded at the time is worth mentioning now, for the touch of the human tradition it brings into the story. The Laurentic sailed from New York in January, 1917, her strong room filled with gold and silver worth about £5,000,000. She was struck by German torpedoes off Louth Scilly and sank in 120 feet of water. After two years no effort was made to salvage, and then when a diver went down from the Ranee he found, dropping from the Laurentic's mainmast, a faded flag with several rents in it—the Union Jack.

Gives Concert From Airplane

Singer in Machine 4,000 Feet Up Uses New Device

In flight approximately 4,000 feet above the street, John Charles Thomas, concert baritone, sang operatic arias to an audience in Columbus Circle, New York, in the first official broadcast of the kind of the skies. A secret sound producing and amplifying device which makes possible direct vocal communication between aircraft and any one on the ground.

Mr. Thomas sat snugly in a cabin of plane, singing into the device which newly perfected amplifier of the Plane Speaker Corporation of Philadelphia, while his audience stood shivering in the cold below.

Despite the fact that the plane was bucking of a 40-mile breeze, and dodging the din of street traffic, the melodies were heard distinctly by the crowds on the sidewalks.

"Hello, New York! Hello, [illegible] mum the sky in aviation zones. Then to further demonstrate the amplifier, Mr. Thomas while circling above, announced the opening of [illegible].

Leaders in the aircraft industry witnessed the demonstration, Major General John F. O'Ryan, president of the Columbia Air Navigation Committee of New York, one of whose planes was used in the test, said he believed the "future of the ship," would be of great value in commercial aviation.

"With this device instead of planes on our New York-Boston route, and on the proposed New York to Chicago route," he said, "it will be possible to communicate with the towns and cities over which they pass. So "no mail today for Smithtown," or similar spoken messages from the air."

Some Encouraging Signs Show Better Planning of Towns is Now Taking Hold in Canada

Town planning is making slow but certain progress in Canada, according to the report of the committee on town planning of the Dominion Land Surveyors' Association, compiled by D. H. Buttrey, B.L.S.

The committee finds, in reviewing the progress of the year in this world wide movement, that there are some encouraging signs that better planning of towns and cities is entering on in the Dominion. From cost to west it is found that in the larger cities there is an awakening consciousness as to the benefits to be derived. In Montreal the movement is voluntary, an organization having been formed for the development of a plan which can hardly fail to result in the operation of an official city plan sponsored and financed by the city.

In Vancouver action followed the passing of a provincial Town Planning Act. The city promptly appointed a town planning commissioner and consultant and staff to create a comprehensive plan for the city and environs at a cost of $50,000, spread over three years. The appointment, it is [illegible] probably will agree on a regional plan.

Industrial companies who are establishing great enterprises in Canada are keenly alive to the advantages of carefully planned and developed town sites. Mr. Buntley reported. For instance, at Arvida, Que., the Aluminum Company of Canada, is laying out the nucleus of a city for its employees on former raw lands comprising some 4,000 acres. They are proceeding on carefully prepared plans designed for an ultimate population of 40,000. Construction of 270 homes and buildings had already been undertaken in accordance with the plans, and plans include development of roads, sanitary and fire protection and water treatment.

In Western Canada the town planning movement is gathering momentum. Certain of the municipalities around Winnipeg are taking steps toward the formation of town plans under legislation just passed. The city of Edmonton has announced its intention of proceeding similarly. Kitchener, Victoria and Ottawa are other Canadian cities in which definite progress has been made.

The report concludes: "It is suggested that the dominant course for the rapid advancement of town planning in Canada is a matter of education and presentation, and that the necessary enactments will inevitably follow. If in the development of our young Canadian cities and towns we can, by wise planning, avoid the creation of slum and tenement districts, we will be in a far more advanced position than could be secured by any frantic efforts in the future to develop harsh civic improvements in an already congested the expense of the neglected districts."

The Village Blacksmith

Business Was Never Better in This Trade Than It is Today

So says Jas. Bell in the passing of the village blacksmith with his sacred arms and musical anvil, will dry their tears when they learn that the prominence of the modern garage means better times for the latter.

This has now become one of the most important of the Machine Association of Blacksmiths. Horseshoers and Woodworkers, held in Winnipeg.

Although the old grey mare is giving way to the new "tin Lizzie" the blacksmith still finds his brawn and brain heavily employed when. Instead of [illegible] with a mere set of iron shoes, he is called upon to fit a truck on gadget on the tractor and other mechanical repairs.

Business is good in the blacksmith trade, but is difficult to get the rising generation to take it up. Blacksmiths immigrating from Europe must be rolled upon to keep the business going in the next generation, it was said.

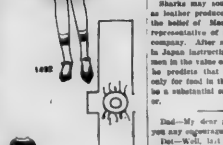
The word "highway" is said to come from the name of the old Roman road which was elevated so much as four feet above the surface to permit good drainage.

Dandy Families for West

Several Hundred to be Brought to Canada in Report

According to reports, arrangements have been completed for the bringing out to the west of several hundred families from the Danzig Free State. This information is given by Rev. R. Schmol, Winnipeg, manager of the Lutheran Immigration Board, who has returned from a trip to Europe. While there he visited German where he interviewed the government officials of that country on emigration. As a result of his interview he expects heavier immigration from that country, this year.

The Lutheran immigration Board connections have been enlarged in Europe, and 15,000 agricultural settlers will be brought to Canada through activities of that organization, according to Mr. Schmol.



Dentist Advises Use of Milk

Says Average Modern Diet Lacking in Calcium and Phosphorous

At the Board of Trade meeting here, Dr Wallace Seccombe, Dean of the Faculty of Dentistry of the University of Toronto, took issue with the suggestion of Dr J Bun Wallace, of England, who has been lecturing throughout Canada that milk should not be continued in the diet beyond two years of age. After the deciduous teeth have erupted Dean Seccombe stated that the average modern diet is generally lacking in the essential elements of calcium and phosphorous and urged that milk be continued in the diet of children to any age. Milk becomes it contains in average carrying more of the vital elements than are contained in any other food.

It was also stated by Dr Seccombe that the teeth of the nation were suffering by over indulgence in sweets and soft foods. Milk is an emollient food but should not be used for washing other articles of diet. The food value of milk is greatly reduced by modern methods. Pasteurization is necessary, and this will assist materially in maintaining dental health.

It is a matter of common observation that country-bred people are more cultivated and interesting than city-bred. Rather have they stores of wisdom which the feverish distractions of town life breed.

For Fattening Cattle

Rape, Kale and Cabbage Make Excellent Pasture for Sheep, Swine and Cattle

Rape, kale and some varieties of cabbage make excellent pasture for sheep, swine and cattle, being particularly valuable for young cattle and fattening steers (ivers in poultry runs, they make a satisfactory free-range food for most kinds of poultry. They occupy a permanent place in the regular farm rotation in many European countries. They are, however, not yet utilized in Canada to the extent that their value warrants and in order to bring them to the attention of farmers the Dominion Experimental Farms Branch has recently issued a pamphlet entitled "Fleshy Annual Pastures" giving information concerning these crops in the hope of bringing about their more general use.

These fleshy annual pastures thrive under a great variety of climate and soil conditions, and they yield surprisingly well even where the summer rainfall is light. How land may be used to advantage for growing them, and on most soils they are frequently more profitable than any other forage crop. The pamphlet, which may be obtained from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, gives general information on the cultivation of these crops and the uses to which they may be put.

Account Book for Farmers

Department of Agriculture Prepares One for General Use

Frequent reference has been made in recent issues of the farm press to the desirability of making an inventory or taking stock of farm products, implements, live stock, etc., during the month of March. The suggestion is a good one, and the Dominion Experimental Farms System has published an extremely simple Farmer's Account Book in which any general pages especially designed to assist the farmer in making such an inventory. To have anything like it he predicts that sharks, once used only for food in the Orient, soon will be a substantial sources of raw leather.

Dad—My dear girl, has he given you any encouragement?

Dot—Well, he might be asked if you and mother were pleasant people to live with

Since the definite destruction by the Imperial Conference of the independent status of the Dominions there has been a good deal of discussion in Canada of the question of national defence. Reports from Ottawa intimate that the principal feature of the estimates for the Department of Defence will be an increase in the appropriation for the air force with the object of building up the branch.

The Citizen Ottawa thinks that the Royal Canadian Naval Air Service should be revived. It speaks of the work which it did during the war in protecting Canada's sea lines of communication and it says:

"Canada should have a minimum number of destroyers, mine-layers, depot ships and auxiliary ships for naval service; but most effective, without great expense, would be the revival of the Royal Canadian Naval Air Service. An efficient air service cannot be hastily conjured up overnight. The whole success of flying depends upon preliminary organization.

The development of civil aviation will furnish the very best kind of reserve for national defence in the development of an air force reserve, the organization of the air force should be to take the administration of civil aviation out of military control. Civil government should find commercial aviation should be administered as are merchant shipping and railways, by civilian officials.

"In Great Britain, where there is a separate Air Ministry, the department of civil aviation is administered as a part from the Royal Air Force —although, of course, there is the almost co-operation in building up an air reserve. It would be well in any economy for Canada to bring civil aviation, shipping, radio telegraphy, and wireless stations under one administrator, in a Department of Communications."

The Citizen suggests that Major-General MacBrien, who has just resigned as chief of staff of the Department of Defence, would be a good man to put in charge of the development of civil aviation. He has qualified as an air-pilot.—Manitoba Free Press

Round Up of Wild Horses

Campaign in British Columbia to Make a Clean-Up of Roving Bands

Hundreds of wild horses that have been roaming the bunch grass and sage brush country and the Cariboo mountains in British Columbia, are to be rounded up and slaughtered by horse hunters engaged by the Provincial Government.

The campaign has been carried on in a desultory fashion for several years, but this year the Government hopes to make a "clean up" of the roving bands that have been eating cow and sheep pasturage and causing depredations among domesticated stock.

It is estimated there are 10,000 wild horses in the province, and most of them descendants of the stock brought into the Cariboo gold country by the hundreds of half a century ago.

According to information the horses must be set spinning in small bands, and then be compressed to [illegible] area. The carcasses are then cut up for the high-priced, fragrant fertilizer, and the hides, hair, bones, hoofs, brush-burns, half-crippled animals whose killing would be an act of kindness.

It has not been decided what will be done with the meat, but if a profitable use can be discovered across the United States border to a point where such material is being used for the manufacture or fertilizer

LESSON V
SHARING THE GOOD NEWS

Golden Text: "It shall be My will Genesis. Acts 1:8.

Lesson: Acts xiii. 2 Corinthians 5:11-20

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 55:1-7

Explanations and Comments

I Sharing the Good News, III Genesis. Acts 1:8. Pre-existing to the heaven the parting-room of Stephen, and the disciples were forced to flee from Jerusalem. Their wives received abroad. They did not think that the Pagans could be of the same kind that received from the beloved alone, and the entire land and the people of the world.

Philip, one of the Seven, who became known as Philip the Evangelist because of his ministry (Acts 21:8), went down to the city of Samaria. The Jews had no dealings with the Samaritans, but Philip knew that commanded (Acts 1:8) leading them to love for him in Samaria. To overcome their prejudice against the Samaritans the unknown was Jesus needed only to go to Samaria and preach to them.

If you are prejudiced against anyone, do him a good deed.

The Samaritans, like the Jews, were looking for the Christ; Philip made known to them the fact that he had already come. Philip probably little realized the greatness of the statement he was later uttering when he said, "I am the Christ." Philip probably did not know to the full the import of his words, but he found the field white unto harvest, the people accepted his proclamations concerning the Kingdom of God and were baptized. There was great joy among them when many with various spirits, the palsied and the lame, healed.

Announcement to RED ROSE TEA Enthusiasts

CENTURIES ago, when tea was first introduced to the English Nobility, the precious leaves—then almost priceless—were packed in sealed lead containers.

For many generations lead continued to be used as a protective package for all fine quality teas. Then the modern metal, Aluminum, was introduced. But during war-time and later, paper bags and paper boxes were largely used and have held sway ever since.

In our 30 years experience putting up Red Rose Tea we have used all these containers and each has some particular merit.

But careful tests over a long period prove that Aluminum is by far the best container that has yet been found, and paper packages of every kind the poorest. When in contact with dampness paper absorbs moisture which soon affects the quality of the tea, and in some instances completely spoils it.

Having found the paper package unreliable and uncertain, we have again adopted the Aluminum package which we used years ago. For we know now that Aluminum can be better depended upon than any other.

Unlike paper, Aluminum does not absorb moisture. It preserves all the original flavor and strength. So now and in the future Red Rose Tea will be packed in the Aluminum package, as it was in years gone by.

Establishes Home for Blind

Former Jewish Immigrant Attached Miss Fanny Bullock Workman

Rachel Needleman, stricken blind while travelling to America as an immigrant 23 years ago, is awaiting the opening April 1 of the Home of the American Jewish Association for the Blind,—his contributions to sightless people of his race.

After being detained at Ellis Island until his father posted a bond against the possibility of his becoming a public charge, Needleman began peddling pepper at the age of 15. With the money saved from newspaper peddling he founded a printing company in 1912. Eleven years later he began planning construction of the home.

His stay while a boy at the Industrial Home for the Blind in Brooklyn, where he would not eat food prepared there, prompted the idea of an orthodox Jewish institution for the sightless.

Expect Cheaper Cars

Canadians are to purchase their motor cars a little cheaper as a result of the 20 per cent. reduction on sales tax rates in the Federal budget. It was computed in automobile circles that following the tax reductions the retail price of the majority of cars will shortly be reduced from about $5 to $15, or approximately the cost of the automobile license. The sales tax on motor cars is charged on the actual cost to the local dealer, or the duty paid value plus freight and excise tax.

MANY BRANCH LINES PROJECTED FOR THE WEST

Ottawa, Hon. Charles A. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals, has given notice of his intention to call motion in Parliament for it appeal at the present session, a program of construction to be expected by the management of the Canadian National Railways and that board ordered to Parliament to be asked to authorize the Canadian National Railways to proceed with the construction, during the next three years of 4,782 miles of railway. The proposals are divided into three groups:

1 Lines which offer economic and operating advantages to the system.

2 Branches for the purposes of general development and colonization of the country, which will control rate reasons to the system.

3 A branch, which will link the Hudson's Bay Railway with the southern lines of the Canadian National Railway system.

The cost of the proposed railway building program will be in the neighborhood of $200,000,000 and the program has been submitted, the main purpose of which is the relief and alleviation of the unemployment in the National system.

Should the program of the railway builder progress will be in the hotel room, an analysis of these figures shows that entire plan, under the extension program of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The railway announcement said that it was hoped desirable to make at same time during the next three years for one or two extra hours, as work of development not built on to the lines.

The Railway executive also has its personal participation at the result obtained from the new lines which Parliament has sanctioned in 1921

Suggest Conference on Old Age Pensions

Matter Was Recently Brought Before Alberta Legislature

Edmonton—That arrangements be made for the introduction at a session by J. Shaw, Liberal leader, that the Dominion should intimate at the present session on old age pension bill and an amendment by A. A. McGillivray, Conservative leader, that the question be discussed at the present session and if thought fit, that a bill be introduced to amend the federal legislation upon this subject has been referred to the Dominion Parliament.

Premier Brownlee addressed the debate with a view to the bringing in of a compromise amendment on which all those opposed to the meeting might agree.

Premier Brownlee thought that even in the federal House decided to adopt a principle of 100 per cent liability for payment of old age pension nobody would say seriously that the legislation.

If a compromise were held, he suggested, it might be possible in case the federal government refused to accept the 100 per cent liability, that it would undertake to pay five per cent, of it and he pointed out that the Ottawa House might lower the pension age to 65, which would better Alberta's share of the burden to pay 15 per cent a year

To Protect Shareholders

Shareholders of Saskatchewan Co-Operative Elevator Co. to Benefit

Regina Shareholders of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company will receive $2,000,000 in cash 1931-32 there for which purpose the directors have voted to bring to the vendors, in order to company pass the Legislature in its present form. In other words, a shareholder holding 100 shares of the these shares will receive $2,115.60 for them on the pro rata payment of dividends guaranteed by the Dominion government.

Shares issued in succeeding years will be worth proportionately less, the last shares being worth $27.57 under the provisions of the bill. The difference is accounted for by the fact that the shares issued in recent years are paid up in varying amounts ranging from $12.50 for the 1911-12 issue to $47.50 for the last one, such bonuses accounting for the difference in the paid up value.

"Speculators" who planned to make a "clean up" on the shares will be out of luck if the bill can prevent it. Premier Gardiner declared making it clear that the government desired to protect not only the deserving elevator, but the actual bonafide shareholder. He pointed out that United Grain Growers Limited paid out $1,000,000 to thousands of shareholders remaining in the country.

BRITAIN SENDS STRONG NOTE TO RUSSIAN SOVIETS

London The diplomatic relations between the British Empire and the Soviet Union were severed today as a result of the Arcos raids in which the Soviet Government is charged with violating the trade agreement between the two countries. The Soviet diplomatic mission has completed arrangements for the withdrawal of the members of the mission from the country.

The note, addressed to M. Rosengolz, Soviet representative in London, is the strongest of the communications between Britain and Russia since the trade agreement was signed March, 1921, and is one of the most out-spoken diplomatic documents ever issued from the British capital.

The members of the Soviet delegation were arrested several days after the Arcos headquarters had been searched and the other Soviet offices in London, and the head quarters of a Russian company in Manchester. Documents found in the offices of the Soviet representatives are charged by the British government to have revealed a widespread plot against the British Empire.

The first issue raised on the Anglo-Russian horizon came in 1924 with the famous Zinoviev letter which was one of the causes of the downfall of the Macdonald Labor government.

Moscow gold a million sterling, if it reaches it, to the British miners to either last week, which the London Government considered a violation of the trade agreement between the two countries. Russia has denied the charge and has declared that the Arcos raid was unwarranted. Russia has also declared that the Arcos raid was unwarranted.

Grain Shipped Cheapest Route

Western Growers Have no Preference as to Ports

Halifax M. Moon, member of the Board of Grain Commissioners, and a delegation of Western grain men who inspected the elevator facilities of the Maritime ports last year, returned to Montreal over the grain through Halifax can be as cheaply as by any other route, and from some points cheaper.

Mr. Moon contended western grain growers and shippers had no preference as to ports. They were pri marily interested in economy and facilities. Saint John and Portland ranked all the same to them.

Grain would follow the cheapest route and he saw no discrimination he pointed out. United States grain was shipped through the ports of Portland, which would seem indeed to be rail rates available.

ANGLO-AMERICAN AMITY STRESSED BY HON. MASSEY

New York.—To strengthen the bonds of sympathy between His Majesty's subject Dominion and the American and people of your great Republic."

The Hon. Vincent Massey summed up his mission to the United States in a speech before the Pilgrims' Society here. It was his first public address in the United States since he assumed office as Canada's minister to Washington.

Mr. Massey paid tribute to the friendliness of Washington extended by President Coolidge, the members of his cabinet and the citizens of the capital generally. He assured his hearers that Hon. W. S. Phillips, newly appointed minister from the United States to Canada, would meet a genuine welcome awaiting him in Ottawa. Lower the lights; please while us tell you. The crime was committed last Friday night. At the last end but one the score was 16—2 in favor of the timid souls, and if that is not clear enough we will say the shellacers had scored ten while the timid 2 it was about this time the game was delayed. Henry Thomas was sitting.

He was eventually found—he had fallen into a couch in the lounge and the game proceeded to its bitter end, and which read 16—6. Just another of life's tragedies — Henry paid for the system.

Supper was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Graham and greatly enjoyed by—well nearly all.

LOCAL NEWS

A Sargent snow plow, propelled by a Fordson tractor equipped with Traxon crawler attachment, successfully proved in a large number of interested people this afternoon that it was well fitted to do the work for which it was built. These machines, made by a company that has been building snow equipment for over 50 years in the East, are especially designed to keep roads open for traffic after heavy storms and drifts. The complete outfit weighs about three tons, and under above conditions will have a clear road, satisfactory for motor traffic, 14 feet wide.

The test given the plow this afternoon was a heavy one. The plow was put into the snow on the convection line east of the Fort by the Williamson farm. This was impossible for cars. The plow cleared a space wide enough, and with a firm enough bottom, to allow one car to travel some distance. Slipping off the bankpart, it got into deep snow, and for some time did a considerable amount of manoeuvering to obtain headway again. It finally found out on to the road and completed the journey to the railroad tracks. Turning, it returned to the Fort, and opened the road to a good width.

The best demonstration of the afternoon was from the elevators to the Lamb west on the Edmonton trail. This road was impassable for cars and drifted to a considerable depth. The Sargent plow negotiated this mostly in intermediate gear, dropping into low only at several closely packed spots, enabling it to spread the road for two cars, and left a very creditable job.

Those present were Satchfield by Universal Motor Cars, Limited, of Calgary, and are handled by James Graham of the Fort, through whose agencies the demonstration was made. The day is not far distant when the Municipalities will have to take care of the roads in winter, and this afternoon's performance demonstrated that with a Sargent plow, operated from the commencement of winter, there should be no reason why farmers and their wives could not have the use of their cars to come to town in the winter as well as in the summertime.

"No, you mustn't." Joanna agreed Neither of all I Teddy would rather have hi- final st ower from me, than disliked through his sister. I know. And, I love you. I'll know quite well what a lonesome life mine would be. Perhaps he'll get it. Perhaps but shall we wait through the grounds? I think you said you like to see something of the perpetrators I'm cooking. While we are about it I hope you'll favour me with your presence in my pavilion theatre. I'm staging a little play there that I know you'll love."

The, steering Joana on the grounds. It was as if they had forgotten their time to the ex- tation Ball. Dotty Wilson, ecstatic again, and enthused anew at each fortunate of the entire thrill, peeped be each preparation made by the ex- waiters on the Amelia lawns. As the pettiest pastimes also was sympathetic with the mystery Joanna served some of the plans which were to have their climax there.

"I shall have Teddy sit close to me to pretend to be a thriver destroy the pagan temple shall unfold," she threatened. "I shall want him to be very close to you," Joanna agreed. And Lady Betty looked at her quickly. There was something unsaid in the calm of the Golden Girl.

CHAPTER XXIX

Memories Again

If the visit of Lady Wey month left its impress upon Joanna, only Maddy Kenilworth and Teddy Thurlestone sensed it. Neither of them knew of the appeal to the Golden Girl by the sister of one of them, but both, in their separate regard of her, were conscious of a subtle but insistent change in her.

John might have realized it, too, but his was not a s nutive observation. And, as the days passed, Joanna found drawn closer and closer to her—if alone. That Yvonne was absorbed, and no wonder, in the fascination of the young architect whose name had so suddenly become known around the world, was apparent to all that lay circle which worships, like glittering devotees of a Lucullan cult around the shrine where all is gold that glitters.

As lieutenants had reported to her, Sen Kenilworth and Brandon had relented, and as even Lady Weymouth might have said, those who watched were quick in recall, it had been you since that time the brilliant, always dazzling Yvonne Courtant decided to strike back, there would be a crash. The crash, they predicted was on its way. And the victim would leave would be the Golden Girl.

If there had been restraints fixed by Joanna for her bewildering rival, they seemed suddenly to vanish. Whatever walls she had built around her scruples instead, fit seemed, and so those who watched concluded, Teddy Thurlestone was frankly surrendered, hook-hunk with the calmness of the older man, gave no sign of whatever might have been his reflections, but Joanna found him more constantly at her side.

There was some marvelling at the persistence of the bond which held Yvonne and Joanna together. Between them there seemed to have arisen nothing: As always they were inseparable, whether at the luncheon, in the gambling rooms, at Prince Michael's, the Opera or at the fashionable gatherings among the villas. There had been a deep interest in the vaguely rumored romance between the young and wealthy American girl and the promising young architect whose dream in stone was coming true. It was believed by some that Joanna was surrendering him too quietly not to have a design in reserve. Others pointed merrily to Kenilworth, Brandon and Burminster and remarked that the field of her choices, and of her variations, was wide.

Perhaps Martha, who, at times, and in the exercise of the bits and gold and scarlet bandeau, lapsed from the imperturbance that should hedge in a humble maid, and put her arms around the girl who slept in the big bed, might have added something to any discussion of her mistress. Particularly after that mistress had sat up in the bed, knees drawn up and chin resting on them, silent and almost pensive, through all the hours after she came in until dawn. What Martha would have liked to have related, to something however that she couldn't understand, was that when Joanna finally stretched out for a two hours' sleep, she remarked, apropos of nothing:

"There's a lot of things in the world that don't matter."

John watched with her through the grounds when the workmen, with renewed feverish activities, were putting their finishing touches to the fairy-like structures. The night of the fete was close at hand. Here and there across the grounds miniature domes and spires were being gilded. Their shining surfaces caught the glints of the sun and reflected them with fitful iridescent red over the blue Mediterranean hue.

"It means something of that tint in the atmosphere," Joanna observed "One of the Monte Carlo men who lives the year round probably would make a prediction of some sort. Every one of them is a weather expert."

There would fall a shadow of the fairy in the air to one of the matters, but in their absorption of the impressive details of the making of this theatre grounds, they ignored the omen for the time.

As was her custom of late Joanna acknowledged no intrusion between John and herself. After that first day, the day of the carnival, when her heart was ready to leap to his, but was restrained, she had been what their life current hoped dictated that he should be. At times he put his head down and held her close to him, and these were moments between them. At other times was as kind and comely Teddy Joanna knew, was watching with solicitous fear.

The first weeks of rest, which had been a calendar of no idle occasions for him. The Prince of Monaco, interested always in boats and progress that are of his element had honored him with a reception and feast and presented him to that distinguished group of scholars and artists and writers of other professions, who gather around him from many parts of the world. It is their tribute to the Prince who is dead, the father of the present ruler of the little principality. These ceremonies completed, Joanna and John gratified the social ambitions of the establishment. The compliment him upon the daring of a projected monument to the liminality of the inspiration for deeds of valor that soldiers perform on the battlefield. They were interested in the spectacular and in good time the young architect asked to deliver an address, and did, with triumph to himself.

Just this day, Joanna knew none of these commands into the calendar of her new whose names were great, had been cancelled; not abruptly, or suddenly, but by architect. It could only be interpreted as a reminder that even a great purpose and a high ambition could not withstand the magnet attraction of certain standards. John had become too much a frequenter of the roulette rooms. And there was too great an interest generally in pointing him out as the new devotee of the beautiful Yvonne Courant, and she who would be not to sacrifice deeply at the altars of her sorceress. The distinguished young visitor from Atlantis had become one of the boy of moths, even if a brilliant one and those who distribute honors are sometimes conservative.

The girl was walked through the Amelia grounds, and him would have the thrilling of the fete—but he would give her no opportunity. While they stood on the Triumph steps and watched the distribution of badges of honorous, rose- and salmon, already being brought from their Mon-sauce gardens, Joanna remarked:

"You haven't complimented me up on all of this. Dawn it's remind you, somehow, of the evenings we spent planning the time when we would be able to build together, a house that would rank hardly more than my pavilion over there."

Pains Across Kidneys For Two Years

Unable to Work

"Gin Pills—Wonderful Remedy."

We receive thousands of letters yearly from grateful users of Gin Pills, who have been relieved of suffering from kidney and bladder trouble. When Nature fails to do her proper work of eliminating harmful waste through the kidneys, bladder and bowels, a remedy must be found. Many people have found Gin Pills to be this remedy. Among them, James Johnson of Bridgeburg, Ont. He writes:

"I was troubled with pains across the kidneys for two years. I was unable to do any work. I read about Gin Pills and got a box right away from my druggist. My sincere thanks are due you for your wonderful remedy, which has done so much for me."

Says Canada Has Paid U.S. Compliment in Its Choice of Minister to Washington

The Washington Star, commenting editorially on the new Canadian ministry, says:

"The Canadian government has paid a distinct compliment to the United States in the choice of its first minister to Washington. Few diplomats have come to Washington so well equipped with a knowledge of the problems which will arise and an understanding of the viewpoint of the American government and people. The star suggests that "a huge task confronts the new minister in the great Lakes St. Lawrence deep waterway alone and there are other questions such as water rights and sanitation to keep him busy, with the ever present problem of smuggling both ways across the border thrown in for good measure."

Little Helps For This Week

For none of us liveth to himself—Romans xiv. 7.

I live for those who love me,
For those who know me true,
For the heaven that smiles above me
And awaits my spirit too
For the cause that lacks assistance
For the wrongs that need assistance,
For the future in the distance,
For the good that I can do.

Influence is an inescapable—from character as the fragrance is from the flower, or the shadow from the substance. Every one that lives, therefore, lives not merely unto himself, but has a subtle influence always radiating from him that produces some effect on others. On the rocks beneath us you will find the impress of the tiniest insect as well as that of the largest leviathan; and so in the strain of society, each man has his own place to fill, and will leave his own mark behind for blessing or for curse.

The hose is run into the filled room and all the smoke is drawn out. It has proven especially successful in fighting stubborn basement fires, where there is much smoke but little fire.

In their attempt to re-capture the McQueen trophy from the Fort last Saturday night the Lamont boys put up a game struggle but lacked the ability of the local boys. They were able to make the game an interesting one to watch, but at no time could they be classed as dangerous opponents. Three greatest opportunity to even matters occurred in the third period when with four goals against them, with all to gain and nothing to lose, they succeeded in executing effective tactics of bunching all their players except the goalie around the Fort goal. They managed to keep one goal by this method and almost have got more, as at one time there were only four Fort players on the ice to prevent them. However, when the final ball rang the score stood at 6—1, and the cup will remain in the Fort and placed in juxpaody by some visiting team. (Note—For juxpaody refer to map of Northern Alberta, east of Lamont.)

The usual line-up upheld the honor of the Fort and those obtaining the goals were Don Myrh, B. Bud Allard, Roy Stuckey, Tom Blythe.

The Fort Juniors and Lamont Jun-iors tangled on the local ice Monday in a game to decide the rightful defender of the Archer cup.

The ice surface was covered with small humps, making it difficult to carry the puck or play combination, but despite this many sparkling rushes were carried up by players on both teams.

The first period was scoreless with the Lamont having a heavy defense and the Fort pressing the play.

In the second period the Fort boy got the puck in the Lamont territory and Tommy Blythe on a pass from Bud Allard slipped a fast shot past Buchanan, the Lamont goalie. This proved to be the winning counter of the game as the Fort boys played a spearhead defence which was never in danger for the rest of the game.

Irwin Hutton scored the last goal of the game in the middle of the third period on a bouncing shot from near centre ice.

IMPORTANCE OF REGISTERED SEED

Alberta farmers are urged by the Government to obtain registered seed wherever possible, for their grain crops. The importance of using the best quality of seed obtainable is emphasized in statements made by the Minister of Agriculture for the province, the officials of the seed departments, and of the Seed Growers' association.

A striking illustration of the value of good seed has been obtained in an experiment which the University has been conducting during the past three seasons. Samples of seed wheat from the University were sent to various places in the province from south to north. The harvested seed was returned and graded, and the samples run at least one grade better than the average samples coming from the same districts. "Why can't all farmers grow wheat like this?" has been asked. The answer is "So they could, easily, if they would use as good seed."

TO ATTEND POOL CONFERENCE

Alberta will have a representative at the big international conference of wheat pools to be held at Kansas City, Mo., on May 5 next, in the person of Lew Hutchison of Duhamel, a director of the Alberta pool.

SHEEP INDUSTRY

Many farmers in Alberta are now running small flocks of sheep on their farms. The fact that the day of the small farm flock has arrived is indicated by the fact that the Southern Alberta Wool Growers' association now has more than 350 members, in the place of some 60 members five years ago. There is plenty of room for expansion in the sheep industry on the basis of the small farm flock idea, however, for Canada, as yet, is producing here-with 8,000,000 dollars' worth of wool, while it imports some 46,000,000 dollars' worth of woolen goods. Farmers who desire to start farm flocks are advised to write to the Alberta Department of Agriculture at Edmonton for pamphlets.

POOL NEWS

During the month of February 169 Alberta farmers joined the Wheat Pool, bringing in a total of over 11,- 500 acres. The total membership is now 32,540.

Broomhall, the British grain authority, cables that the Canadian Pool is selling wheat in Britain at a premium of from 1c to 1fc above prices for Argentine and Australian wheat.

Branch Lines in the West

The next few years will witness great activity in branch line railway construction in Western Canada judging by the Canadian National Railways programme covering the next three years, recently outlined in Parliament by Hon. Charles A. Dunning, Minister of Railways, coupled with the intimation that has been given that the Canadian Pacific also plans extensive branch building in the West, although, at the time of writing, the details of their programme have not been made public.

Canada is well equipped with main lines of railway, as we all recognized to fact that the statement is frequently made that the Dominion was over built in this respect. Three main lines run east and west, carrying the products of the West to Ontario, Quebec, the Atlantic and the Pacific coast, and bringing to the prairies the manufactured goods of the east, and the fruit fish, lumber of British Columbia, as well as the imports coming through our respect cities.

But in order to make these long main lines profitable from an operating standpoint, there must be a veritable network of branch lines to feed them. It is in the West that these feeders are mostly needed, and where the possibilities for securing new and larger traffic is most promising.

There is another duty to the West in the railway situation as it now exists, and that is in the matter of lines running north and south connecting the several east and west main lines. Branch line construction in movement years has been planned so as to not only provide feeders to the main lines, but thereby a terminal lining up of industries, the latter being about con necting lines running in a generally north and south direction.

Branch line construction in the West must, in the future, have still another basic objective in mind. The Hudson Bay Railway is being pushed to completion, and by the end of the year steel will almost if not quite reach to the Bay terminal. By the West, this railway is regarded as a main line, a direct Western route to tidewater and the markets of Europe. In this route is to be what its advocates claim for it, then in the not too distant future millions of bushels of Western grain will move north which must now find an outlet either to the Atlantic or the Pacific.

Our existing network of main and branch lines must be developed with direct connection with the Hudson Bay Railway, its service requires this, and the people demand it in order that they may enjoy maximum benefits which the new outlet should provide.

As the southern terminus of the Hudson Bay Railway is in Saskatchewan, it naturally follows that the initial work of providing direct connection with it, must be done in that Province through the building of certain branches which will have the effect of tapping the Peace with the Bay road. The building of such lines are included in the C.N.R. programme recently announced. It would be a mistake, however, to regard these as purely Saskatchewan branches. They are just as important and as essential to Manitoba and Alberta as they are to the Province in which they must naturally be built.

The construction of these connecting branches may also prove an important factor in effecting a complete change in the transportation status and development in this whole western country. Looking any northern outlet to the sea, those products of Western Canada which do not go east to the Atlantic or west to the Pacific, are forced to go south, that is to the United States, to Minneapolis, Chicago, and thence to Buffalo or New York.

With the opening of the Hudson Bay outlet, and the connecting of our existing railway systems with the road to the north, not only will our own western products find a shorter outlet, but lines as of Canada shipping to the south, products of the northwestern states will become of those direct connections and shorter haul, move northward through Canada, providing additional traffic for our railways, and adding to the volume of business over the Hudson Bay Railway.

The appropriation of over $5,000,000 for construction work on the Hudson Bay Railway, and of an even larger sum to be expended by the Canadian National in the next three years on branch lines in Saskatchewan to connect existing lines with the Bay road, and to provide direct connection for Manitoba, Southern Saskatchewan, and the north western states with the Bay, marks a new era in railway transportation in the West and in the development of the whole prairie section of the Dominion.

Indians Are Good Farmers

Indians of Prairie Provinces Produced One Million Bushels of Grain Last Year

The Indians of the three Prairie provinces — Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta last season produced in round figures one million bushels of grain, of which about half, or 540,000 bushels, was wheat, according to a recent Government report. There are about 35,000 Indians in the area in question and the land reserved for their use includes some of the most fertile soil in the Prairie. They had 27,000 acres under cultivation in 1926. They own almost 27,000 head of cattle and 25,000 horses of a good type.

COSTIVE BOWELS, HEADACHE, COLDS TAKE "CASCARETS"

No Headache, Sour Stomach, Bad Cold or Constipation by morning

Get a 10-cent box now. Furred Tongue, bad Colds, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and biliousness are due to poisons from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a will barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, bad breath, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fogs, everything that is horrible and nauseating. Cascarets work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

A new Canadian bird, the "turken," has made his appearance. It is a cross between a turkey and a Rhode Island hen, and was first brought to public attention at the Edmonton poultry show. Must Be Good Dodger

Pigmies of New Guinea Undergo Severe Test for Permission to Marry

If you were a pigmy and lived in New Guinea, you would have little trouble and a couple of months could establish yourself as a full-fledged adult. This requires you to get a string of beads, kill a wallaby and dodge a spear. Then you are considered old enough to marry.

The wallaby is a species of kangaroo, and dodging the spear is the hardest part of the ordeal. The pigmies are very clever at it, and the spears are thrown with such force that they carried it out. There are many of the pigmies who have the record of never having been hit by a spear. Once a pigmy has been hit by a wallaby he is known as a "dead man" and after a certain period of time, if he has not killed another wallaby, he is considered dead and his body buried in the ground.

She writes: "In the Fall of 1918 I was taken down with 'flu' and when I got better I found to have serious pains in the back and kidneys, it would drive me double. I could not walk and without a cane not with pain. I tried everything I read about your kind. Kidney Pills and thought three days I would be well but I was disappointed. I spent a lot of money with medicine from the doctor, but it did me no any good.

At last a friend told me to me and after using a couple of bottles I was not the same woman. I felt as well as ever I had been in perfect health, and after a few more boxes I was in perfect health. I am pleased to recommend them to all troubled with heart trouble."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MARCH 14

MAKING THE WORLD CHRISTIAN

Golden Text: Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations. Matthew 28:19.

Lesson Matthew 28:16-20. Acts 1:6-8.

Devotional Reading Isaiah 60:1-3.

Explanations and Comments

I. The Commission to Make the World Christian, Matthew 28:16-20. This interview of the disciples with their Risen Lord took place in Galilee, upon the mountain whose name had appointed. Where they were to go was unexplained. Many times previously had Jesus appointed meetings with them, but disciples who had disbelieved the reports of the resurrection. Some of the eleven, too, had doubted before they actually saw Jesus. Some told them of the universal dominion of all authority in heaven and on earth" and then gave them his commission to the little world which parsley a reality. "Go ye therefore and make disciples of all the nations." They were to go as sovereign ambassadors bearing the King's message. The Acts tells us that they carried it out. There we have the record of many disciples, in fact all except Judas, the traitor, and John, who remained in Jerusalem, and Peter, who was in Samaria and at last in a circle that embraced the known world from the Imperial city of Rome. "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the age." Jesus was not to be left behind when he went to heaven. He was to be present everywhere in the world in his influence. "Always" means always. "The end of the age" means the end of time.

II. The Commission to Make the World Christian, Acts 1:6-8. Jesus' last interview with his disciples before his ascension. Their question was natural enough. They had been with Jesus for three years and had come to believe that he was the Messiah. They had given up their occupations to follow him. They had been disappointed in the failure of the people to receive him as the Messiah. They had been disappointed in the failure of the people to receive him as the Messiah. They had been disappointed in the failure of the people to receive him as the Messiah

The Chipman hockey team made no unsuccessful attempt to regain the McQueen cup last Thursday. They were defeated by 9 goals to nil in a game full of action and incident and a delight to witness. Chipman started the game with all the dash and energy they could command, their evident ambition being to draw first blood. The Fort boys, however, had different notions, and their hemp remained unsullied by rubber throughout the whole game.

The locals tallied two in the first period but they were offside. They obtained two good ones in the second period and one in the third. These three were all by individual effort and each consisted of a clever and spectacular piece of work. In their turn Ilen Blythe, Tommy Blythe and Roy Stuckey received the cheers of the crowd for their solos.

A game arranged for Saturday between Bremner and the Fort Juniors was postponed on account of the condition of the ice.

C. E. A. Pocock, B.A., minister of the First United church, Fort Saskatchewan. The ceremony was witnessed by relatives of the contracting parties, and the young couple were attended by Miss Ann D. Bowsfield of Edmonton and Mr Dave Buchanan, brother of the groom. After the ceremony the wedding breakfast was served to those present, and at the close Mr. Pocock proposed the toast to the bride and groom, to which the groom suitably replied. The many friends of the young couple join in wishing them many years of health, happiness and prosperity.

Welcome the Newcomer

The immigration season is fast opening and, judging from all reports and present prospects, Canada is due to receive a larger influx of settlers than in any year since the period between 1908 and the outbreak of the war. This increasing stream of people Canada owes a credit from a number of factors. In the first place conditions in Europe are more favorable than the have been since the upheaval caused by the war, and people who have long been anxious to emigrate are better able to do so. Canada, too, has somewhat relaxed the restrictions imposed on immigration following the war and when full details like all others was faced with the problem of readjustment and the re-establishment in civilian life and supplying some of the hundreds of thousands of Canadian volunteers who had been diverted to war activities and industries. Until our domestic problems of unemployment and rehabilitation had been solved it was generally considered undesirable to throw any large numbers of new people to assist the business

The economic and financial situation in Canada has likewise enormously improved emphasized in more general, great development enterprises are under way, railway and building construction is increasing, trade and commerce is steadily and rapidly expanding.

Agriculture has enjoyed several fairly prosperous years, and, whatever may be the trouble either yet to be overcome, they are being faced and solved, with the result that the Canadian farmer is today in a much better and more hopeful position than is his fellow agriculturist in the United States. The Canadian farmer through organization and co-operation has overcome fully met problems which still confront the United States farmer, and solutions to which he looks to the constituted authorities in people.

The new roads, the Western Parks, the steady reduction in taxation, Federal, Provincial and Municipal, decreasing railway deficits, increased railway branch line construction, all are helpful factors in the economic situation, leading to confidence in Canada and encouraging to the thousands of emigrants now persisting substantial reasons why they can succeed in this country.

But as has been stated in this column on more than one occasion, agricultural development is much more important than quantity in humanitarian Canada was a more people, no one disputes that fact. But, above all, Canada, future growth, prosperity and sound national development surrounds the vast immigration possible upon the establishment of the right people, people resulting in permanent home and good citizens.

To do this the public must be doubled and, governments, railways, and organizations as many kinds are doing north and can do more, but, in the final analysis, human pal and school bodies and the individual neighbors of those newcomers must exert the most powerful and helpful influence. Every rural municipal council, every rural school trustee board, should in itself have a small local colonization board, alert and ready to make welcome each and every incoming settler, regardless of his race, creed or circumstances in life.

Present settlers should make it a part of their duties of citizenship to extend a hearty welcome to their new neighbors, to offer such advice as may be necessary, and give a helping hand in these difficult days of settling. These newcomers, if thus encouraged, will become permanent residents. As such they will help to develop the district and the Province. They will bear their share of the tax burden, and these lighten it for all. Their presence will mean better roads, better schools, and the possibility of modern conveniences now considered out of the question because of cost to the present sparse and scattered population.

The eyes of the world, and especially of Great Britain and the rest of the Empire, will be focussed on Canada in this year of its diamond jubilee. Tens of thousands of people will come to make their future homes in this Dominion. Their success in the great adventure means everything to them, but it will also mean much to the future of all Canada. No Canadian of today can render greater service to the country than by doing all that lies in his or her power to make immigrants in the land of their adoption successful by the conversion of the newcomers, through wise and practical colonization, into permanent settlers and honorable citizens the greatest asset of any country, and the only abiding foundation of national greatness in the truest meaning of the term.

Liner for Jungle Aviary

For a jungle aviary from Khartoum through Central Africa to Kisumu in the Kenya colony, a distance of 1,500 miles, a big triple cover air liner is being built in England. It will be based on the flying boat built for the Air Ministry which proved to be the fastest in existence, owing to the presence of wires, which and swamps along the route, it will be possible by using seaplanes to alight at almost any point.

Explanation in Simple

Talking fathers women from than it does men, a Flemish scientist says in a dry objective way without an article into the controversy as to whether the female is more talkative than the male. The scientist explains his statement by saying that the greater the length of the vocal cords, the more energy is required to produce a sound; re cond, that the vocal cords of women are shorter than those of men.

Urges End of Wars

British Envoy to Washington Pleads for Anglo-Saxon Unity

The son of unity I want to see grow up among these allied speaking people, is a unity of heart and under standing," said Sir Esme Howard British ambassador in Washington in a speech on Anglo-saxon unity, delivered before the Trenton Canadian Club at Washington. "I would like it to be an accepted fact," he added in the mind of every man woman and child in all English speaking countries that some day that war would be like a dust between brothers—a thing to be forgotten, impious, not to be even thought of."

"If we have to spend large sums on armaments let us put later on. Let us at least do so without referring to the armaments of the other side only considering our own needs. Let us not look to the enemy for our standard of measurement. There can be no unity of heart or of purpose if we are going to begin eyeing each other's armaments with every time the other builds a new ship or devises a new engine of destruction."

Speaking of the late war, Ambassador Esme remarked his honesty that Great Britain could not ignore the responsibilities she took upon herself to preserve Anglo-Saxon unity.

CONDITIONS THAT CALL FOR A TONIC

Symptoms That the Blood Is Thin Should Not be Neglected

Weak, lacking in strength, nervous and sometimes sleepless, poor appetite, digestion disturbed these are the symptoms of a great majority of people who have been brought down by the use of Dr Williams' Pink Pills for Pale Women. Of this medicine in cases of this kind is proved by the statement of Mrs. W. Herbert, King ston, Ont., who says: "Following a severe cold I was left in a run down, nervous condition. I had pains in the back and limbs and could scarcely move about. I did not sleep well at night and was despondent and did not care to be disturbed by any one. My friends urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and can truthfully say that after the use of six boxes the change in my condition was nothing short of marvellous. The pains vanished I slept well, had a good appetite, and in every way felt well and strong. I also gave the pills to my daughter who was in an anaemic condition and feeling quite miserable, and I, by experience, can truly say that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a splendid health builder for young girls." You may help some other weak person."

Dr Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be mailed at 50 cents a box by The Dr Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. A little book, "Building Up the Blood," which explains useful health hints, will be sent free on request.

Canadian Farmer Tells His Experience

"Lee" Booth, widely known Ontario farmer, and a sick man for 20 years, suffered daily, only half alive. Now strong, robust, vigorous, credits new found health to Tanlac

Though popularly known as "Lee" Mr. Booth's correct name is Lewis George. He resides at 274 Bridge Brockville. For the past twenty years he has enjoyed a wide circle of friends throughout Dundas and Leeds, but a few years ago, stricken by a mysterious illness which baffled the skill of the best physicians, he was confined to his home for months.

"My case seemed to be beyond the help of medicine," he said recently. "I suffered terrible headaches, dizzy spells and had no appetite at all. I didn't seem to have a friend on earth who thought I'd ever get well. I was a pitiful sight, indeed, with rheumatism and nerves and I remember one time I stepped that kept me in bed for six months.

"My case got to be the talk of the whole town. I was pronounced incurable and I myself felt that I was a hopeless victim of fate. My weight was down to 135 pounds which I still retain, and I knew nearly 2 months ago that my days were numbered. I never have an ache. It's the dry substances I'd like you to know what Tanlac has done for me. I owe it to Lee Booth, or to none and no one. I'll tell it."

If your health is broken down or you are a victim of nervousness, you owe it to yourself to get Tanlac at once. Tanlac is now sold in Fort Saskatchewan by the Hub Drug Co., and in Edmonton by Hudson's Bay Co. Tanlac is sold in Strathcona by Ross Drug Co., and in Sherwood Park by Mr. Mitchell. Cancer

After nearly years of practical experience and research, the late Dr. F. W. Parks has discovered cancer specific, discovered in 1912, that cancer is caused by deficiency of potassium chloride in the body and if such deficiency is remedied, cancer ceases in advanced cases, and retrograde before his death this cancer specific was administered to thousands of sufferers with startling results. Many specialists in cancer have brought purified drugs and Canada. He points out that brings and the United States provides a market of 150,000,000 people to whom the offer of Canadian opportunity can be made. But the promise will be very slow if the investor settling at that opportunity is not carried on in every second and reasonable way over the next five years. Mr. Bone suggested that a sum of $100,000 should be placed in the Federal budget every year for the next three years to be spent specially in telling the people of Great Britain and the United States about Canada during the next three years, her golden opportunity and certain future. That, he said, would be good salesmanship. Possibly mention of a sum like $100,000 may seem ridiculous to many people. But when one considers the immense sums appropriated by commercial concerns for publicity purposes that have only a small fraction of the wares Canada has to offer, the suggestion assumes another aspect. Judiciously planned and expended, advertising is really an investment with much greater certainty of profit than can be assumed in the case of less extensive and varied marketable offerings

Alberta Sees Possibilities of Supplying Sufficient Sugar for Western Market

The possibility of Alberta becoming the domestic producer of sugar for the entire Prairie Provinces was suggested by T. O. Wood, district manager of the Canadian Sugar Factories at Raymond, who stated there was room for at least eight or ten more factories with a capacity of 1,000 tons of beets per day. Producing sugar for the entire population would mean the cultivation of about 100,000 acres of irrigated land which would supply the enercies of 8,000 to 10,000 farmers and provide farm labor for approximately 50,000 persons. The one factory in operation has already absorbed about 500 European immigrants as rural workers on the crop.

Publicity As the Basic Factor In Development of Markets for Natural Products of Canada

Publicity as the basic factor in commercial salesmanship in receiving an increasingly large measure of attention at this time. The movement is not confined to this continent, where the art of advertising was first cultivated. It has spread to Great Britain and the countries of Europe and before long the world is likely to see a rivalry in that direction that cannot but exert a most beneficial effect. Addressing the annual convention of the Fruit Growers' Association of Ontario and the Ontario Poultry Fruit Growers' Association at Hamilton, when presenting the report of the work of the Canadian Horticultural Council he had prepared, Mr. H. H. Lake, of Montreal, stressed the importance of an organized campaign of advertising. Voicing the opinion that the Canadian apple was the finest in the world, he pointed out that although advertising the fruit abroad would enhance the public to eat a baked apple instead of a grape-fruit for breakfast, instead of sending our money out to foreign countries, Canada should be by their own products. This is sound advice, and the way to give it practical effect is by utilizing in every possible direction the publicity methods that have proved their ability to create demands and profitable business enterprises.

Earlier in the year Mr. J. Allan Ross, Canadian trade commissioner in Hong Kong, Chinese, a commercial example of a concern built up and sustained through extensive advertising of a product of defined quality, declared in Toronto that he had not people to boast with greater sentiment pitches than Canada. He pointed out that brings and the United States provides a market of 150,000,000 people to whom the offer of Canadian opportunity can be made. But the promise will be very slow if the investor settling at that opportunity is not carried on in every second and reasonable way over the next five years. Combatting the Weed Pest

Aggressive Campaign by Farmers Would Soon Bring About Thankworthy Change

The world's greatest Teacher, in making applications of truth, referred to the flowers of the field. "Those they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin." In Western Canada, its beautiful native flowers are being rapidly eliminated by cultivated fields, and much of the virgin beauty of the prairie is gone forever. In their place we have waving fields of grain, which, while not appealing so much to the aesthetic, are none the less supply his daily wants.

In these vast fields, which are so much admired, there is a serious menace showing itself more and more each year. This is the weed pest. The farmer wants to get busy. Con sider how the crops of many pledge by their persistency it certainly looks as though there was considerable room ahead for the farmer if he hopes to combat t weed pest. Useful plants deplete the soil fast enough without having it done by noxious, which are more hardy, and grow and boast, at least so far as is known at present

What a short-sighted policy it looks to see so much of our valuable fields taken up by useless weeds of various kinds. What a splendid opportunity can be vastly improved and the next he is entirely up to the farmers themselves. If they but realize that their interests together and formulate a live aggressive campaign, a year or so would see a marvellous change. When we realize what good crops can be grown on land overrun with weeds, the loss in yield, putting it low and through the land carrying capacity, which in the end the farmers are decked for, simply good interest would be earned if the weeds were put forth. Better to get busy at once for each year you toil not in this matter, the stronger and more firmly an entrenched become the weeds. Toronto mists and others may tell our farmers about these things, but the farmers are the only ones who are able to apply the remedy.

Government Action Is Urged To Protect the High Standard Of Canadian Seed Wheat

Western Buy for China

Two Hundred Tons of Alberta Shipped to the Orient

Two hundred tons of alfalfa hay were shipped recently from the Leth bridge, Alberta district for China — the first shipment of Canadian hay to that country so far as is known. The hay was moved to the Pacific coast in a special C.P.R. through freight of 30 cars and was loaded at Vancouver on the Blue Lines Tradevarus for Hong Kong.

The order for the large shipment was received by W. C. Hamilton, manager of the Southern Alberta Co-operative Association, from the British government agricultural department, London. It is thought that possibly the hurried order was brought about by the war in China and the concentration of British emergency troops in the disturbed area.

Only No. 1 well baled hay was sold in the hope that the shipment will be the opening of a large trade with the Far East.

Diversified Farming

Alberta Farmers Getting Away From Straight Wheat Growing

Alberta, formerly almost 100 per cent. straight wheat farming country has changed radically in this respect in the last fifteen years, and although the total wheat yield in the province in 1926 was 112,000,000 bushels, this represented only 45 per cent of the value of the agricultural products, which totalled $248,000,000, the greatest in the history of Alberta Fodder crops are climbing rapidly in the percentage table of values, being now 21 per cent., while dairy products are now 11½ per cent

Would Limit Acreage of Wheat

Action to Amend the Inspection Grades Act, to prevent the grade of Canadian wheat, has been taken by the agricultural committee of the House of Commons, which recommended that the act be amended to give the Minister of Agriculture the right to refuse a license for the sale of new varieties of wheat for seed purposes until the quality of the new variety has been passed on.

A resolution passed by the committee recommends that the Minister be given the right to refuse applications for distribution of new varieties of seed to a board, consisting of the seed commissioner, the Dominion cerealist, a representative from the Canadian Seed Growers' Association, a representative of the provincial seed board of the province in which the application originated, and a representative of the wheat pool.

It was also urged that the Minister have power to withdraw any license already granted for a new variety of wheat, upon recommendation of the board mentioned.

Hon. W. R. Motherwell approves the resolution and natured the committee that legislation would be prepared covering it.

E. J. Garland, New River, thought that agriculturists were in danger of being supplanted and that every person buying seed wheat should be protected, but it should not be made almost impossible for the new experiment with the growth of new varieties of wheat

Hon. C. F. Public, Victoria, B.C. said that the high standard of Canadian wheat should be maintained at the utmost means. Every freedom should be given to farmers to try to develop new varieties, but that experiment not be allowed the "quack" farmer to damage the reputation throughout the country without first proving the value of the variety.

Big Trade With Russia

Soviet Republic Places Heavy Orders For Canadian Agricultural Machinery

Orders for agricultural implements placed in Canada by the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics this year to date are already twice as large as those placed with Canadian firms for the whole of 1926. According to figures supplied by the U.S.S.R. Trade Delegation in Canada, orders have been booked here in the first six weeks of the present year to cut $1,500 acres per day for a three-day working basis, requiring 3,000 horses, will be required to draw these machines. Binder twine bought by the delegation, in the period mentioned, runs to 1,000 tons, or one-fifth of Canada's total exports, to all countries in 1926. Incidentally, the delegation points out that while, before the revolution only two tractors were in use in what was then known as the Russian Empire there are now being operated in the same territory

Tomato as a Fruit

That old question regarding the status of the tomato, which has been stirring up quite for years, has finally been settled by Order-in-Council of the Dominion Government. Henceforth the tomato is to be termed a fruit, in so far as Dominion Department of Agriculture is concerned, according to a statement by Fruit Commissioner Melander at the Ontario Fruit Growers' Convention in Hamilton.

Many Homestead Entries

Yet further increases in homestead filings in Western Canada are already reported for 1927. The number of homesteads filed in the month of January was 943, as compared with 276 in January, 1926, and increase of 67 Filings in Manitoba were 56, against 37; in Saskatchewan 186, as against 143; in Alberta 115, against 100, and in British Columbia 6 against 4.

Women of Canada Pay Striking Tribute to Aluminum ——the Modern Metal

FROM Windsor, Ontario, to Hudson's Bay, from Halifax to the Rockies, RED ROSE TEA within the last few weeks has scored an extraordinary increase in sales.

It is because we have stopped using paper packages, and are again packing this finest of teas in the old, familiar Aluminum package of years go.

The reception it has been given demonstrates beyond all doubt that housewives of Canada recognize Aluminum as the perfect container.

For more than thirty years we have been experimenting with packages — trying lead, paper and Aluminum — seeking always a material that would protect and be worthy of Red Rose quality.

But it was only after Red Rose has been offered to the public in all these packages—first lead, then Aluminum, then paper—that the great advantages of Aluminum were proven.

Aluminum keeps out moisture, preserves the flavor and protects the quality. Paper packages, on the contrary, absorb moisture which occasionally impairs the quality.

So now and in the future RED ROSE TEA will be packed in the Aluminum package, as it was in years gone by.

Loss in Asbestos Production

Canada still leads the world in asbestos production. In the year 1926 the Dominion's output was 246,000 out of a world's total of 310,000 tons according to the latest computation Rhodesia furnished 54,000 tons and Russia and Cyprus 20,000.

On any given day there are no 15,000 cases, counting by the value of about over 2,000 tons and the carnage borne, no less than £700,000,000 worth of trade under the British flag.

THE CHRISTIAN'S HOPE

Golden Text: In his father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you, for I go to prepare a place for you.—John 14:2.

Lesson: John 14:1-3, 27; 1 Corinthians 2:9, 10; John 2:1, 2.

Devotional Reading: Revelation 21:1-7.

Explanations and Comments

I. The Promise of Christ. John 14 :1. Let not your heart trouble: believe in God, believe also in Me."

"Was the Master himself who said it

To the sorrowful little band,
Facing an hour of darkness
That they could not understand?

"In my Father's house are many mansions," thus Jesus comforted them. Our word "mansion" would definitely merely a place of shelter and accordingly the margin of the Revised Version has the word "abiding places."

In speaking of his own death, Jesus said, "I go away." "I go to the Father." So Paul said, "The time of my departure is at hand." They were travellers, resting forth on a journey to a better country. So Christ would have us think, not that we are going to die, but that we are going to set forth on a journey that ends at our Father's house.

"If it were not so, I would have told you." In the minute of all people there is a belief in a future life. This belief, Jesus's words tell us, is true, for otherwise he would have distinguished the minds of his followers.

"I thank thee, O Father, that there is a voice within me which contradicts the silence of death."—George Matheson.

Would Amend British North America Act

J. S. Woodsworth Suggests Commit tee be Appointed to Change Constitution

Ottawa.—A resolution to be moved by J. S. Woodsworth "to consider what amendments might be made to the British North American Act" was received with favor by the delegates of constabulary would enable us more adequately to cope with the complicated problems which now confront Canada." The proposal will be moved in the House of Commons by J. S. Woodsworth, Labor, Winnipeg North Centre.

Mr. Woodsworth gave as reasons for his proposals:

A—The constitutional development of the last 50 years.

B—The dissatisfaction of certain provinces.

C—The changed conditions in industries, commerce and finance not contemplated at the time of Confederation.

In proposing his resolution Mr Woodsworth declared Canada had no way of changing its own constitution, and in this regard it was inferior to South Africa, Australia and the Motherland. He spoke of a "very great personal feeling" the West that there would be an inevitable break of confederation with perhaps cooperation with the other parts of Canada on some other basis.

CHINA RESENTS INTERFERENCE OF RUSSIAN SOVIETS

Shanghai The drive of the Canadian for the all-out overthrow and the attendant threat on Shanghai are more hindered than ever by the possibility of armed resistance between the Peking Government and Moscow, growing out of the arrest of Madame Borodin, wife of the adviser to the Cantonese Government, and three Soviet couriers.

Chinese authorities declare these have been incredible indications that large numbers of Russian war material, including submarines and submarine chasers have been sent from Vladivostok to Canton to step up activities among the workers. Every precaution already has been taken to prevent an influx of these agitators into Shanghai. Thirteen Peking police are now on duty at the railway station.

It is charged here that the Soviet steamer Dmitrii Lemin, on which Madame Borodin and the couriers were ordered by a squad of white Russians attached to the army of Chiang Tsung Chang, had been carrying propaganda literature aboard and only a few pounds of tea.

While the military situation between the Cantonese and the Nationalist forces is developing steadily, the question of propaganda is troubling the powers considerably, since it is interlocking with the war preparations of troops.

Urges New Treaty Practice

British Foreign Secretary Asks Negotiation Between Heads of States

Geneva.—At the end of the last Imperial Conference was consulted in the League of Nations Council when Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, asked the League to abolish the practice of negotiating treaties between heads of states.

He explained that his statement was made out of respect to the British and Dominion governments. It did not mean that the Dominions would no longer be represented at the League, but would be represented by their own delegates.

Sir Austen said that the Dominions would be their participation at the League of Nations as far as they were concerned, but if the treaties were signed by the British Empire delegation the Dominions would be bound by them.

Arthur Henderson, British delegate to the League of Nations, said that the Imperial Conference had considered the question and decided that the Dominions should be represented at the League by their own delegates.

Think Britain Favors War Craft Limitations

Officials at Washington Believe in Ultimate Success of Plan

Washington.—Japan and Yokohama advises clearly indicate that Great Britain and Japan will accept the Coolidge proposal for a conference with the United States at Geneva this summer on auxiliary war craft limitation are taken by officials here to mean that such a project ultimately will be brought about.

While there has not been much doubt as to the Japanese attitude toward such an arrangement, it is believed in the past generally has been against any limitation of anti-submarine craft as long as her continental interests, pressed to limit her naval construction and submarine bases looked to Great Britain to prevent the greatest obstacle in the way of a three power parley with France and Italy also developing naval construction, submarines and torpedo boats.

Public opinion throughout Great Britain has interpreted the recent visit of officials here as designed to ascertain British acceptance of any plan for naval limitation.

Geneva despatches declared the additional information that Great Britain would insist on linking the three power parley with France and Italy to a preceding parley on limitation in cruisers, submarines and torpedo boats.

He lands this known in a brief message received by the Uruguayan minister through the Italian consul secretary, and the League to abolish the practice of negotiating treaties between heads of states.

He explained this life statement was made out of respect to the British and Dominion governments. It did not mean that the Dominions would no longer be represented at the League, but would be represented by their own delegates.

Tokio.—Thousands of refugees in Central Japan, shivering, hungry and in need of medical aid, struggling to bring order out of the chaos created by the earthquake, which already is known to have taken a toll of more than 2,000 lives.

The Home Office added that the late casualties showed 2,875 persons were killed and 3,411 injured. Two Makers of Canada

SIR WILLIAM VAN HORNE — LORD STRATHCONA

Among the Canadian books that have come to be recognized as standard works a high place is taken in the series known as "The Makers of Canada." They were first published by George N. Morang, of Toronto, in 1904, and comprised twenty volumes covering Canadian history from Champlain to Macdonald and from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Each period and historical figure dictated was dealt with by a scholar and writer particularly conversant with his subject, the result being to gather into the confined space of a few volumes a comprehensive view of Canadian history.

With the more than twenty years that have passed since the series was first published there has been a great amount of research and discovery in the history of this country, and episodes and characters of past days are now much more clearly seen than they previously were. Thus the Oxford Press of Toronto, into whose possession the plates of these books have passed, very wisely decided to issue a new and revised edition of the series. This has been produced under the able editorship of W. L. Grant, M.A., LL.D., who has succeeded in greatly adding to the historical value of the work. Each volume has been carefully gone over and revised, and in some cases whole books have been re-written in the light of newly discovered facts.

Perhaps the most important improvement in the series is the addition of a volume on the lives and work of Lord Strathcona and Sir William Van Horne. It was obviously imperative that Western Canada should receive more attention than was possible when the series first appeared, and no better way of doing it could be devised than in presenting a faithful account of the life work of the two men who, more than anyone else, had to do with the foundation of the Canadian West. In John McNaughton's life of Strathcona and Walter Vaughan's life of Van Horne were the ideal books for the purpose. They are, of themselves, a rich storehouse of information concerning the founding and building of the West. The romance that built the Canadian Pacific, the railroad that made Confederation an actual fact. His work was and still is an epic of Canadian history and he, like Strathcona, rightly belongs to that company of giants who may properly be termed "Makers of Canada."

All Roads Lead to Banff

Grand Chestnut march on finish headed by Mountie. Upper inset: Mary Caen, Queen of the Carnival pushing it going. Lower: Queen Mary and attendants on the Queen of the Carnival.

The annual Winter Carnival at Banff, which was suspended recently, was marked by the fact that the visitors at this mountain resort played a prominent part in all the sports to a much greater extent than in former years. It was acclaimed as the finest in the history of Banff.

For weeks the town gradually put on her carnival garb, and on the opening day the streets presented a festive appearance. One of the most impressive ceremonies in connection with the carnival was the resignation from the Queenship of the carnival by Miss Mary Caen of Calgary. Stoney Indians in their picturesque trial costumes began a hunt for the new Queen, who was finally found in a gaily bedecked teepee. Miss Emily Mason, of Calgary, was chosen for the position of Queen for the coming year. The Stoney Indians featured throughout the 7-day carnival and were a source of delight to the visitors.

The annual Calgary-Banff dog derby, staged during the middle of the festivities, was won this year by Warren Cordwell, driving for Charles Trede, of Ashton, Idaho. The purse was one of the hardest known in history. Cordingly's team of huskies ended the race almost exhausted. His lead dog broke down and was carried in the finish by the driver on the sled. Jim Mills, of Banff, who was picked as winner of the race, was also a hero. His dogs were attached by town dogs at the outskirts of Calgary and fought one of the fiercest battles in the history of northern trails. Mills and his dogs were badly bitten but they stuck to the trail despite the fact that bones were lost in repairing torn harness. He crossed the line and was given a rousing reception. The Strongheart Trophy, donated by the Trimble-Moffitt Moving Picture Company, was the trophy for which the race was run.

Ski-joring, skating both figure and speed, skijumping, and every type of winter sport featured the carnival. Visitors took keen delight in the excellent tobogran slide that has been recently erected, away up on Sulphur mountain. It is the most picturesque slide of its kind in the Dominion. The start can be easily reached by motor car by following the road leading to the upper Hot Springs. The whole slide is of about 19 per cent. grade, but long stretches reach a 25 per cent. grade. The course of the slide is illuminated and the sport is indulged in at all hours of the night or day.

"That I wouldn't do," he declared promptly. "It you have any other reason than a sudden desire to seek fresh adventures without interruptions, I don't want to know it. I am jealous of my wife!"

"Then you shall be flattered," she returned coldly. "I am in the mood for one. Some day she's got to be told—so it, between you and me, Rodd, I'm—I love you."

He was mad—not in anger—but another one of her sly stepped with her eyes, and held also half bent down to him. She did not stir, nor put up a hand; it was just the indescribable sensitive in her eyes.

"No, not just now," she said, before clapping into the utmost of their provocative. "I can't—I couldn't be fair. But tonight, perhaps, or tomorrow night or when the moment arrives. But no soon as we can. I want to know I'm the only one—"

"Listen you! Are you playing with me?"

"No, Rodd. I've never played. Not since my name came. Someday I want to play. After we've had our battle, perhaps. What shall we do first? Let's go through the motions of some place. Why no up La Turbie?"

"Tonight?"

"Tonight. That's what I must hurry home to change for. I shall want to look very alluring."

He straightened and looked down at her coolly for a moment. She did not flinch under his gaze, nor did her light lashes. He turned away and looked out of the window. It was already darkening outside, and the lights of Monte Carlo were vague-ish points.

Blue stopped with her eyes, and held him half bent down to her.

"If we drive carefully we can make it," he concluded. "I'll take the wheel myself. You won't be afraid to trust yourself with me, shall you?"

"That's what I want to find out, Roddy. So many people are skeptical of me. I want to know if they're right or wrong."

He laughed. "I shan't ask you to stay beyond the hour," he declared. "I'll need some time alone to try and figure you out. What's happened? Something has, I am certain."

"Nothing," she answered him. "Nothing, that is, that wasn't expected."

A servant notified them that Madelonelle's mount had been brought to the door before either of them realized that the hour had flown. She had induced Kenilworth to tell her some of the histories of the many reins which were strewn about the room in which the their tea had been served, and she was enthusiastic about them.

When she went out to her horse she found that the groom also had brought a mount. Kenilworth nodded his approval. Joanna begged to be allowed to ride back to Annette alone, declaring her faith in the lights along the sea boulevard and her horse's instinct, but Kenilworth was firm.

"I should take you along myself," he explained, "but I shall want a look at the car. It's a stiff climb to La Turbie. I always want to be satisfied about my brakes."

At Villa Annette, Joanna found Dresdon awaiting her. "I have invited myself to dine," he explained, "and no one seems to object. Perhaps you will go along for an hour or two at the Casino, afterwards. There won't be a crowd and we can drop in for an act at the theatre. Yvonne came to me and asked me to persuade you to go. She is terribly upset about something, and I think she wants to talk to you."

Joanna looked at him with a slow smile. "I'm ready to La Turbie now, Rodd. He'd often wanted me to go up with him and now I've promised."

Surely she did not wish for the inevitable protest against climbing the narrow, winding, and dust venture up the steep paths to the mountain to the isolated resort above La Turbie village, but tripped on up the stairs. Brandon looked after her. If an woman were careless and seldom went up La Turbie to dine or dance at the famous roadhouse atop the hill, unless in a car. The carpet of the hidden rendezvous along the coast, it was, in some respects, also the most forbidding. She always went up La Turbie but one did not, customarily, talk about it. After he had stood for a time in deep reflection, Brandon went into the Annette verandah, and peered out into the damp fog. Acquiescence as he was to the Riviera he embraced the feel of it to his nostrils and his fingers He appeared to gain from his conclusions some definite satisfaction.

He summoned a servant and inquired if Mademoiselle Conant was still occupied in her boudoir. The maid reported that her mistress was, and would not be down for some little time. "You can tell her," he order ed, "that I shall not be staying to dine, if she won't mind."

A half hour later, when he had dismissed the Annette car which had taken him back to Monte Carlo, he himself summoned his valet and demanded that a suit of heavy tweeds be laid out for him. When the man had complied his master ordered:

"Go at once to the garage of the Italian in the boulevard du Midi and ask for Antoine. If he is not at home find out where he can be reached immediately. When you have him say that I want him to drive me as soon as he can be ready up the mountain. If he objects to the hour, tell him the higher the fee the heavier his purse will be, and that much more for his mess. Be sure, however, that it is to me personally that he makes his report."

ST. PATRICK'S CONCERT ABUSES LARGE CROWD

There was a large attendance at the St. Patrick's concert held in the Eden Palace theatre last Wednesday evening. Arranged by the Ladies' Altar Society, the programme was an enjoyable one and was carried out without hitch or delay.

The two plays, "Mrs. O'Brien's Birthday Cake," and "Pat's Matrimonial Adventure," were the main features of the evening. There was much scope for the talents of those taking part in these sketches and it may be truthfully said they all acquitted themselves creditably.

The orchestra, under the leadership Mr. Gardner, the patter and music of the "trashy bootleggers" were all enjoyed, but the star turn in our opinion was the monologue by Mrs. Woods. Mrs. Woods "mammy" dialect was the best we have heard for a long time and the weak applause at its conclusion was, we suspect, an error on the part of the audience, who, imagining her voice with her songs and dances.

HOCKEY

The "Navy" hockey team of Edmonton defeated the locals in a supposedly friendly game by 7—4 last Friday. The game was very rough, much to its detriment from a spectator's point of view. The visitors were skilful players and there seemed to be no necessity for them to use their superior weight on every possible occasion and to resort to dirty tactics as they at times did. One individual named "Archie" made himself unpopular with the crowd and in his actions at times made some of the spectators wonky.

Two goals were scored by each team in the first and second periods. In the third the visitors piled on three more while the locals drew a blank.

At the week end a return game was played at Edmonton and resulted in a tie, 3—3. By all accounts this game was even rougher than the first. Pete Karras was accidentally injured and had to receive medical attention.

"The Dust of the Earth," a four act drama presented here last Thursday and Friday played to capacity houses. Both Friday evening the S.R.O. sign was hung out.

The noiseless was alternately moved to laughter and tears by the realistic presentation of the characters in their various roles.

This play presents an interesting plot wound into every line of the play, featuring two charming love stories. Nell, the heroine, and her story was the x-ference from the moment the curtain rose. The play is bristful of surprise, plot and fun, the parts are well balanced and admirably filled.

The audience were unanimous in voting it the best ever.

The "Viking" Combination Mill will separate Wild and Tame oats from Wheat or Barley, also Wild Oats from Tame Oats, TO YOUR ENTIRE SATISFACTION.
The mill has a scalper that removes and separates all coarse material. The blast cleans out all the dirt, and the corrugated rolls separate all fine and small berries, leaving large thick berries, the correct size for seed.
This machine will make separations that others cannot. For instance, long bearded barley will slide over a flat sieve with the oats. When this grain is passed through the corrugated rolls, it makes a beautiful separation of long bearded barley from wild oats
I have these machines on my floor at attractive prices.

British vs. Foreign Born

The subject of immigration to Canada is, it is gratifying to note, engaging the attention of the people at the fountain to an ever increasing extent. A very real interest is being aroused, and this interest is not confined to Canada but is born in evidence in the British Isles. This growing interest is occasioned, not only because of a realization of the fact that only to Canada's national requirements is a larger population but because it is becoming increasingly clear that in the present and succeeding years Canada will be the means of the surplus population of older and more congested land.

Much of the discussion around this subject is as to the effect of this larger infusion of population upon the future character, ideals and national view point of the Canadian people. First, are expressed in some quarters, that non-English speaking peoples will swamp the native Canadians and the British-born, with a resultant gradual weakening of the ties binding Canada to the Empire and the possible introduction of customs and ideals not wholly acceptable to those of British descent. It has been argued that Canada should restrict immigration to men and women of British descent.

While it will be generally admitted that greater encouragement should be given to British immigration than to immigration of other races, it is apt, and a grave mistake that people strongly urging this view almost indulge in mis-statements in their references to the present composition of Canada's population, more particularly the racial classification, of the people of the Western prairie provinces.

Speaking before the Canadian Club of Vancouver recently Mayor Webb of Winnipeg is credited with making the statement that fifty-five per cent. of the people of the prairie provinces were non-British. It would be interesting to have Mr. Webb submit some proof in support of such a statement, because the official census figures do not support him.

At a meeting of the Women's British Immigration League held in Saskatoon a few weeks ago, the even more astounding statement was made that "after a careful study of statistics" it was established that Saskatchewan's population was 75 per cent. foreign born and only 25 per cent. British, and a Saskatoon paper headed its report of this League meeting with a two-column display declaring "Province's Population is 75 per cent. of Foreign Extraction."

In view of the circulation of such misleading statements from so-at might well be accepted as authoritative sources, it is well that the actual facts should be given wide publicity.

According to the census of 1921 the population of the three prairie provinces was 1,956,882, and was officially classified as follows:

	Born in Canada	Born in other British Possessions	Born in U.S.A.	Born Elsewhere
Manitoba	387,716	113,111	21,841	87,414
Saskatchewan	457,852	100,257	17,317	111,796
Alberta	313,990	99,292	99,673	74,995
Total	1,160,608	312,661	200,160	273,412

In other words, out of a total population of 1,956,882, no less than 1,473,269 were British born, while in Canada as in Great Britain and other British countries. That is, 81+ better than 75 per cent were British born as compared with less than 25 per cent non-British a contrast to Mayor Webb's figures of 55 per cent. non British and only 45 per cent. British.

The figures used in Saskatchewan relative to Saskatchewan should just be reversed—75 per cent. born under the British flag and only 25 per cent. under all other flags being the correct classification.

It is a well known fact that thousands of our people classified as born in the United States are the children of Canadians who emigrated in the western middle sixties in the eighties, while other thousands are of British descent.

Canada is British and British to stay. The Anglo-Saxon has demonstrated his ability to assimilate other people as no other race has done, and here in the West we know that most of our non British people have a high regard for democratic British institutions, a real appreciation of British liberty, and a deep respect for British law. They are glad to have their children educated in regard to these things, and in a generation or two it will be well nigh impossible to distinguish them from those of British descent, except for the surnames they bear.

British people themselves are the result of an intermingling of races, and in the melting pot of Canada there is every reason to believe that the Canadian people of the future will be one of the finest, sturdiest, most moral and intelligent races in the world.

Strange Performance Staged in Moscow

Remarkable Parody Was Given Remainder of Haunted Days

Moscow witnessed one of the strangest theatrical performances in history recently. The curtain in a prison mess and absorbed with chains and handcuffs and with chained hands. Soon actors parodied the attempts of the capital guarded by staunch prison warders carrying knouts and swords. The purpose of this grim proceeding was to show the present pedestrian public how political offenders were punished in Czarist days and signal how the tenth anniversary of liberation from imperial jails of professional revolutionists.

Each "convict" wore on his back a large sign of dishonor, which in pre-revolutionary days was accepted as a symbol of degradation and opprobrium. The entire company proceeded to the Meyerhold theatre where they staged the tenth anniversary of prison life for the emperors.

MAKE CARE OF BABIES EASIER

Stomach disturbances and constipation are responsible for much of the peevishness of babies, and young children. When the baby is cross or irritable the mother should not resort to over-feeding soothing mixtures to correct the trouble, for in the majority of cases these are absolutely unfair to the child into an unnatural sleep. What is needed is a little laxative that will sweeten the stomach and regulate the bowels. Such a remedy is found in Baby's Own Tablets. They are easy to take and guaranteed to be entirely free from opiate or narcotic medicine. Concerning them, Mrs. Jos. Tousaint, Ste. Sophie, Que., writes: "I would like all mothers to know that I feel there is no medicine like Baby's Own Tablets. I always keep a box in the house and their prompt use saves me from many a doctor's bill in health." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

More Use Being Made of Postal Reduction Than Was Anticipated

When penny postage was inaugurated through the mails last fall it had year it was estimated by the minister that the loss in revenue from the reduction in the former three cent rate would be approximately five million dollars.

It is stated that, while there has been little increase in the volume of business letters, the return to penny postage has quite appreciable stimulated the use of the rural districts, and that as a result the decrease in revenue will be, not five millions, as estimated, but about two and a half millions.

The department will show a considerable deficit for the current year, but not nearly so great a deficit as expected.

Princess Fond of Jazz

Though jazz is not popular with the senior members of the royal family, the junior branch enjoy it. The Prince is a skilful and enthusiastic trap-drummer, and Prince George is a virtuoso on the same very modern instrument. Prince Henry, however, has more classical tastes and eschews the negroid melodies for opera and symphonies.

"Worth its weight in gold" Says Ottawa Matron

Mme. Beatrice Charlebois could not hold pen to write. Nerves completely shattered, health ruined. Now alert, vigorous and strong, she gives praise to Tanlac

The testimony embod which she passed through before Tanlac came to her permanent relief, has recently descended to Mme Beatrice Charlebois, of 252 River St., Ottawa.

"What I endured in that time would not be told," she said. "I was weak I could hardly walk. My appetite was poor and my stomach gave me endless trouble. Gas and pains would bring on fainting spells.

"My nerves were so completely shattered that I jumped in fright every time the doorbell rang. My hand trembled so that it could not hold the pen to write my name. Night after night I've gone without sleep, too nervous to lie still for even a few moments. Even my stomach refusing two meals for me.

"I tried all kinds of remedies in those two years, but can honestly say Tanlac gave me my first real relief. It built me up so that I've gained 11 lbs., eat and sleep fine and have nerves as calm and steady as ever. Tanlac is worth its weight in gold."

Build up your health on Tanlac, Canada's own tonic made from roots, herbs and barks. Your druggist has it. Over 35 million bottles sold.

Manitoba Lady Tells of Benefits Received From Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mrs. J. D. Scottie, in a Few Words Gives Reason Why Dodd's Kidney Pills Are So Popular.

Minnedosa, Man. (Special)—"My kidneys were very bad and I felt so much that I did not want to do anything but sit around. I thought I would try Dodd's Kidney Pills, which I did, and they helped me very much. After taking two boxes I began to feel well again, and now my kidneys are fine."

What Mrs. Beattie states is all that has ever been claimed for Dodd's Kidney Pills—that they are good for sick kidneys. The road to good health lies through the kidneys and they are kept strong and well, all the impurities are strained out of the blood. If they are weak and out of order the impurities stay in the blood and disease is the sure result.

Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys in good condition to do their work of cleaning and purifying the blood.

Work, nervous, run down women should give Dodd's Kidney Pills a trial at once.

Program of Construction Work In Saskatchewan Proposed By The Canadian National Railway

The programme of construction work on the Canadian National Railways in Saskatchewan is to be completed by August, 1926, and now having the consideration of Parliament, comprises the following items:

Weyburn to Radville, 23.7 miles:—Two objects, the railway management states, would be attained by the construction of this line; first, relief would be given to the farmers along the route in respect to their wagon haul to market; and second, the communities Radville, Bengough, and Wilkes branch, would be brought into more direct rail communication with the distributing centre of Weyburn, their rail distance to Weyburn being reduced by 152 miles. The route to Moose Jaw would be 10 miles shorter and to Regina, 22 miles shorter. The line would run through a well settled grain-growing district and one in which mixed farming is increasing. The road haul of the farmers is now approximately from 15 miles in the centre of the area, and the farmers are looking forward to the development of delaying if their road haul is relieved.

Willowbrook North-Westerly, 23 miles—This is a development and colonization branch in the mid-west between the Prince Albert district on the west of Willowbrook, lying between the Yorkton branch of the C.P.R. and the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Eventually it is planned to extend this line through the unserved area between the existing railroads. With the completion of the Beaver Hills forest reserve, the area is well populated and good crops are generally obtained. It is felt that the shortening of the road haul to the farmers will offer encouragement for further settlement and development.

Biggin to near Pennant, 100 miles:—This line in the north eastern part of the province would open up a large area of good agricultural land and give railway transportation to the Soldiers' Settlement south of Pennant. It would provide a shorter and better through route for traffic from the Meilfort and Prince Albert districts to Winnipeg and the head of the lakes. There is ample precipitation for crop raising and mixed farming in the area. The proposed new mileage would also form part of the link between Hudson Bay Junction and the line of the Canadian National in Southern Manitoba.

Preeceville, Northerly, 19 miles:—The purpose of this line is to open up and give rail communication to an important section of the Carrot River country. The territory on both sides of the Carrot River, as far east as Range 9, has a very good character of soil and is now being cleared off. This is one of the best grain growing districts in the West, having ample rainfall each year. There is considerable settlement and this will be greatly encouraged by better railway facilities.

Shellbrook (or near Parkside), Westerly, 21 miles:—For a considerable time the people living in this district to be traversed by the proposed line have been in need of railway facilities. There already is good settlement and development, there being a high proportion of excellent agricultural land for grain growing and mixed farming. This branch which, in the opinion of the Railway, would be justified by the cutting down of the wagon haul of the settlers and the opening up of more land, eventually would be extended to tie in with the Turtleford-Radford line.

Turtleford, S.E., Mile 67, to between Ilafford and Richard, 25.6 miles:—This line would shorten the haul to the Railway management states, is miles shorter and to Regina, 22 miles shorter. The line would run through a well settled grain-growing district and one in which mixed farming is increasing. The road haul of the farmers is now approximately from 15 miles in the centre of the area, and the farmers are looking forward to the development of delaying if their road haul is relieved.

Willowbrook North-Westerly, 23 miles—This is a development and colonization branch in the mid-west between the Prince Albert district on the west of Willowbrook, lying between the Yorkton branch of the C.P.R. and the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Eventually it is planned to extend this line through the unserved area between the existing railroads. With the completion of the Beaver Hills forest reserve, the area is well populated and good crops are generally obtained. It is felt that the shortening of the road haul to the farmers will offer encouragement for further settlement and development.

Biggin to near Pennant, 100 miles:—This line in the north eastern part of the province would open up a large area of good agricultural land and give railway transportation to the Soldiers' Settlement south of Pennant. It would provide a shorter and better through route for traffic from the Meilfort and Prince Albert districts to Winnipeg and the head of the lakes. There is ample precipitation for crop raising and mixed farming in the area. The proposed new mileage would also form part of the link between Hudson Bay Junction and the line of the Canadian National in Southern Manitoba.

Preeceville, Northerly, 19 miles:—The purpose of this line is to open up and give rail communication to an important section of the Carrot River country. The territory on both sides of the Carrot River, as far east as Range 9, has a very good character of soil and is now being cleared off. This is one of the best grain growing districts in the West, having ample rainfall each year. There is considerable settlement and this will be greatly encouraged by better railway facilities.

Spruce Lake (Goose) — Westerly, 23.1 miles:—This proposed line to run westerly from Spruce Lake is a colonization and development branch which is intended later to link up with the line running southerly from Elk Point, Alberta. Considering the topographical difficulties this branch will, as far as is possible, meet the requirements for railway relief to the districts of Paradise Hill, Tangle Rapids and Fort Pitt. In the district named there are good settlements with considerable development and this development will be very much increased when the transportation which at present is difficult, is improved.

Hudson Bay Junction-Southerly to meet proposed Sturgis, Pecaune Line, 32 miles:—This branch is proposed to link the Hudson Bay Railway with the south lines of the National System. The branch is included in the 1926 programme at the instance of the Department of Railways for the proper operation of railway traffic on the Hudson Bay Railway on the assumption that such traffic will be offering before the period of three years has elapsed, the construction of the line having been based upon the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway and of the ocean terminal to a point where through traffic could be handled.

Four traffic to and from points on the Canadian Northern Railways south of Canora. With this link Melfort Jay Junction to Sturgis built, the route distance to be Hudson Bay would be reduced by 150 miles than by existing lines. It is calculated that 100 trains (of 50 cars each) yearly of this distance would be saved. The traffic would justify the annual cost.

Is Canadian Better Farmer?

Washington Paper Refers to Those Successful Competition With American Agriculturists

"Is the Canadian a better farmer than his fellow agriculturists on the United States?" asks the Washington Post. The Washington Post asks this question in regard to the passage through Congress of the Fordney Tariff Bill which the President has vetoed.

The newspaper finds it "difficult to understand how the Canadian farmer can compete with his American cousin in the wheat market on this side of the line against the duty of 30 cents per bushel." For the Canadian farmer does compete in this market, the Post says, and causes "serious heads of lament of wheat for milling, re-export and domestic use.

"It can not be claimed," the Post goes on, "that the Canadian farmer has any advantages over the agriculturist in the United States. The climate of the Canadian wheat region differs very little, if at all, from the climate of the American wheat belt, especially the spring wheat region. Yet the Canadian grower has not asked his government to finance his operations.

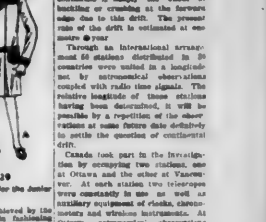
Wild Ducks for Lord Byng's Estate

Lord Byng of Vimy will soon have his estate, Thorpe Hall, Essex, England, stocked with wild ducks from the Canadian prairies. Having expressed a desire to stock his estate, he graciously accepted a gift of twenty live wild ducks from the Provincial Government of Manitoba. The Canadian Pacific Express Company handled the shipment through Montreal recently and delivered the ducks at St. John where they sailed on the Canadian Pacific liner "Montreal" for England. The above photograph shows the ducks in their crate at the Express yards. The ducks seemed to regard their strange surroundings calmly but they did not take very kindly to human interference. They ignored any friendly overtures even when accompanied by food. They were caught when quite young in the sloughs of Manitoba and have been kept for some time in the city park at Winnipeg.

Canadian Scientists Investigate Theory That This Continent Is Drifting Towards West



A Smart Daytime Dress for the Junior Miss

A striking effect is achieved by the use of two materials in fashioning the smart and practical dress as in View A. The skirt has inverted plaits at front and back and is joined to a yoke. There is a convertible collar, long tight fitting sleeves finished with cuffs, patch pockets and a trim belt. View B is the same dress made of one material, having the cuffs on the short sleeves and edge of the yoke simply bound. No. 1425 is in sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 12 requires 2¾ yards 32-inch material for short sleeves, free 2¾ yards for puffers.

The designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book are advance styles for the home dressmaker, and the woman or girl who desires to wear garments dependable for taste, simplicity and economy will find her desires fulfilled in our patterns. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

Improved Table Corn

Three Varieties of Sweet Corn Suitable for Western Cultivation

Three varieties of sweet corn, Pickaninny, Banting and Early Malakoff, produced by Mr. MacDougall, Dominion of the Experimental Farms, give great promise, particularly for the cooler parts of the country. Pickaninny is rather dwarf in habit, bearing its ears close to the ground. When ripened the kernels are white with a slight purplish tinge, broad, moderately deep, very tender and extremely sweet. As the corn matures the kernels change to a purplish black, in which condition they are still tender and sweet. Banting, also dwarf in habit, was produced from a cross between Pickaninny and Howe's Alberta Pilot. Its habit of growth is much like Pickaninny. The kernels when ready for harvesting are an attractive golden-yellow colour, broad, moderately deep, quite sweet and tender. Early Malakoff grows to a height of about five and a half feet, bears medium to large ears usually bearing twelve rows of kernels which are very sweet. This is very long a very desirable table corn. The report of the Dominion Horticulturist for 1926 shows distribution of the robe of three varieties in fair size.

A satisfactory meeting of the Fort Saskatchewan Horticultural society was held in the town hall Monday evening at which several matters of interest were discussed. Plans were made for the planting of trees on Dennis avenue and negotiations commenced with the C.N.R. for the beautifying of the plot of ground between the tennis courts and the station platform.

Plans were also discussed regarding a nursery for the society's own use and a piece of land will be obtained from the town for the purpose for the reception of cuttings, seedlings, etc., which will later be transplanted where the society considers best. In this way a constant source of supply of trees will be available to the society at a minimum cost.

From seeding to selling in grain growing you make money by owning and using a
"Viking" Fanning Mill
The "Viking" Combination Mill will separate Wild and Tame oats from Wheat or Barley, also Wild Oats from Tame Oats, TO YOUR ENTIRE SATISFACTION.
The mill has a scalper that removes and separates all coarse material. The blast cleans out all the dirt, and the corrugated rolls separate all fine and small berries, leaving large thick barries, the correct size for seed.
This machine will make separations that others cannot. For instance, long bearded barley will slide over a flat sieve with the oats. When this grain is passed through the corrugated rolls, it makes a beautiful separation of long bearded barley from wild oats
I have these machines on my floor at attractive prices.
Can you afford to sow uncleaned grain?

Co-Operation

Since the year 1861 when a small group of farmers under the leadership of W. H. Mechenwell, now Dominion Minister of Agriculture, met in the town of Indian Head and organized the Territorial Grain Growers' Association, the plan of applying the principles of co-operation to the problem of producing profits in the West has found favour in many lands with both people and governments until today it has come to be recognized as the most effective means of righting many wrongs and removing grievances from which the great army of producers suffered.

At the beginning of the present century people were inclined to look to Government Ownership as the only way out of the economic difficulties with which they were confronted. The most serious problems were in relation to the marketing of grain, and the first great achievement of the Territorial Grain Growers' Association was securing the passage of the Canada Grain Act, with its bonding platform feature, which led to the effective of breaking the old elevator monopoly.

That in itself was not sufficient, and an agitation was begun for Government owned and operated grain elevators. This was given a trial in Manitoba, but was rejected in Saskatchewan in favor of a system of co-operative elevators, owned and operated by the farmers themselves through a joint stock company backed with financial guarantees by the Government. The Government owned system in Manitoba was not a success, and the elevators there were soon leased to a farmers' organization. The Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Co. was a huge success and in a comparatively few years became the greatest grain handling concern in the world.

From this outward co-operation became a word to conjure with throughout Western Canada. Co-operative creameries, co-operative stockyards, co-operative hail insurance, co-operative wool growers' associations, quickly followed. The Grain Growers' Association was duplicated in Manitoba and Alberta and moved to Ontario. Their forces were then united in the Canada Council of Agriculture. Co-operation brought unity and unity the producers of the West found strength.

There yet remained one great weakness in the economic condition of the West. The increasingly large grain crops of the country were dumped on the market at one time, glutting it, breaking prices lower a profitable level in the harvest season. The seemingly impossible task of making the farmers in one great co-operative enterprise to handle all their wheat and to market it in an orderly and scientific manner was undertaken through the organization of Wheat Pools. It succeeded, and the Provincial Pools organized one central selling agency. The results in common have been today, and, the whole pools have been followed by Co-operative Cattle pools, Egg and Poultry pools, Live Stock pools, Dairy pools.

Truly enormous as have been the material gains to the producers of the West through this general acceptance of the principles of co-operation, rousing, as it has, in many orderly marketing, more orderly financing, in greater investment all round, it is not altogether value of the gains made to us; that even more significant and permanent effects have resulted.

The underlying principles of co-operation is that the strong shall help the weak, and that in the union of all will greater strength will be found. No member of a united pool, however large his resources, regardless of the size of his crop, irrespective of his financial strength, will realize the top price for his grain, usually not, no member however poor he may be, or small the quantity of his crop to market, will be forced to sell at a price less than strong and weak, rich or poor in resources, each and every member will receive the average price. In other words, some make sacrifice for the good of the many. But, in the long run, even those who seemingly do sacrifice something are the gainers because through control of the aggregate large volume of the many small producers the pool brings strength and profit to all.

Whether it is fully realized or not by even the most enthusiastic pool advocate, the best reasons that in the development of the spirit of co-operation, and in the application of co-operative principles in the everyday business of the farm, a great work of good citizenship is being performed, and an educational one equal of outstanding importance is being fostered.

Tens of thousands of men and women banded together to achieve purely material benefit find it necessary to shut all differences of race, of creed, of political habit, and to disregard varying conditions in life. They find that compromises necessary; that there must be a spirit of give and take. They make the happy discovery of each other's good qualities, living in an atmosphere of co-operation for material gains, they become kindly and tolerant of the idea. It begins to color their thought and permeate their activities throughout a most simple itself in municipal and school district administration. It influences church affairs, it becomes a habit, an environment affecting all community life and activities. In a word, it reflects itself in world-wide citizenship.

And the best is of today is being brought out in this atmosphere of co-operation. It is influencing the whole thought and outlook of the great body of the people, broadening their sympathies, teaching them to work together for the common good instead of at cross purposes, developing a new sense and a finer blood of citizenship.

Pennsylvania Doctor Has Announced Discovery of Valuable Serum

The span of human life may be prolonged 25 years or more by a new discovery announced called Metaphos, according to Dr. Gaston Sanguinetti, Holder, professor of chemistry and of the University of Pennsylvania. The announcement of the discovery is the result of medical experiments of the past 20 years.

Dr. Sanguinetti, who was born and educated in Italy, has been engaged in the making of the discovery for the past 20 years. He said that Metaphos is a powerful antiseptic and the most powerful stimulant compound in the body. He said he hopes to develop Metaphos as a possible cure for tuberculosis, influenza and many other diseases.

Alberta is the Corn Belt

The Province of Alberta is definitely in the corn belt of North America, says a report from the Provincial Government. Although a few years ago it was producing very little corn, this has now come to be a notable item in the agricultural production. Last year more than $1,000,000 worth was produced, mainly in the southern part, and the corn exhibits were favorably commented on at various good grain fairs.

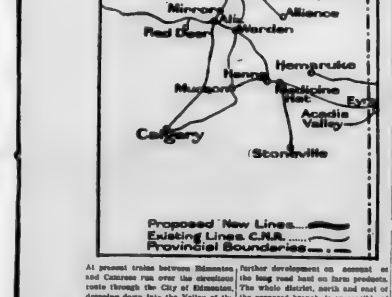
New C. N. R. Branch Lines Proposed This Year For Alberta Would Open Up New Territory

The Minister of Railways to this Session asking Parliament, on behalf of the Canadian National Railways, for authority to construct sixty-eight miles of new lines within the Province of Alberta. The first of these lines is a cut-off between Brosseau and Clover Bar, just south of Edmonton. This cut-off, eleven miles in length, will make possible shorter and faster routing of freight between Edmonton and Camrose and points beyond further development on account of the long road haul on farm products. The whole district, north and east of the proposed branch, is susceptible of agricultural development, with the exception of a relatively small percentage of sandy country. The proposed line is ample for grain growing and mixed farming.

The second of the colonization and development lines proposed is from Ashmont to Bonnyville a distance of thirty-eight miles. Along this line, as proposed, there is much good land some highly developed, but for the most part only partially developed. Beyond Bonnyville, east and north and as far as the Cold Lake district there are areas settled and partly developed. Lack of railway communication is, however, hampering



At present trains between Edmonton and Camrose run over the circuitous route through the City of Edmonton, dropping down into the Valley of the North Saskatchewan River and crossing the river on the low-level high-way bridge to climb again on a very steep gradient out of the river valley to the top of the bank—passenger trains then backing into the South Edmonton yards.

Passenger trains now take 45 minutes to go from Edmonton station to South Edmonton station. Freight trains are limited to very light loads, mostly on account of the heavy grades. The new line will connect the city with the present line of the Canadian National Railways at a point about two miles to the east of Strathcona. Access to the south side of the river is thus afforded to settlers in the district, and there is a considerable area of good land on the south side of the river which will be tributary to the new line. It has been anticipated that this line would be extended to meet the branch proposed to run from Sylvan Lake, Saskatchewan, in a westerly direction but the joining up of these two lines is not required at the present stage of development and traffic routing. It is felt that the new line is justified by the opening of road beds to the settlers and the condition of development work in the area served.

Viscount Grey Analyses The British Character and Tells How The Empire Has Been Built Up

"If you look at the map you will see how extraordinarily small the British Isles are, yet an influence has been exercised by them in the world's history quite out of proportion to the size of the country, and an authority has been built up of an extent and character which is unprecedented and unparalleled," said Viscount Grey in a recent public address.

"It is due, I think, to three things to the island to the climate, and to the race. The fact that we are an island has enabled the race to develop its own character and qualities in a way it could not have done had it been part of the Continent.

"It has meant that the door is open to the world has been specially easy to speak, but there has been no entrance for other people from outside in Londoners. The climate is such that it is never so cold or [illegible] able as to make labor impossible or unconscionable.

"Then the race comes from a very plucky stock. Danes, Saxons and Normans were the finest pioneers in Europe. They were the adventurous spirits, the most energetic, the most enterprising, and the most courageous. They colonized here because it was the adventure of the time to come here, and being here they found themselves where they could develop in unimpeded.

"It is natural that people who are pioneers should have a great respect for individual liberty, and that stands out in our history as one of the great characteristics of the race. That itself could never have established the English race to do much in the world. It would have resulted in chaos but there was another thing in the British character which corrected what would otherwise have been the great defect of that quality.

"They became permeated with the sense that order was necessary. The Englishman has a great instinct almost an intolerance of arbitrary authority and whereas in other parts of the Continent kings might establish an arbitrary authority, the English people would not stand it. But it was not enough to overthrow the arbitrary authority of a king. It was necessary that some other sense should take its place. We are not exempt from the universal law of human nature, and no individual, and still more no class, is to be trusted with power over other classes.

"Some power is distributed throughout every class in the country, what is the future going to be? Hitherto, with any one class has been master, or, the remedy has been to invest the class below it with power to prevent that. I trust now that power is distributed, that if any one class, even if it be the most numerous class, attempts to use that power solely for its own interests at the expense of the other, it will find there is a common sense in the nation which will prevent the abuse of power."

"The sense of order has made the English race equally conscious that if it will not tolerate arbitrary authority it must at least have its partial authority to produce order. The remedy for the sense of individual liberty, the more essential it is that we should be penetrated with a sense of order

"All good qualities have their defects, and one of the defects of the independence of individual character has been that we have not been a very teachable people. But every defect has its compensations and the very fact that we have been a nation of amateurs rather than experts has tended to develop resourcefulness and individual initiative, and this has been some compensation for our lack of disciplined study of science.

"We have also been essentially a practical people, and one essential feature of a practical people is that they do one thing at a time and they do not undertake anything for their own gain unless they feel it is within the compass of their power to achieve and having done that one thing they make it a starting point for the next and so have consistently of action. That has been the British Empire has been built up

"When once the British race is confronted with a difficulty it requires to be an large between what is right and what is wrong, there is in spirit of compromise which is entirely wise and entirely characteristic of the race. That itself could never have established the English race to do much in the world. It would have resulted in chaos but there was another thing in the character which corrected what would otherwise have been the great defect of that quality

"They became permeated with the sense that order was necessary. The Englishman has a great instinct almost an intolerance of arbitrary authority and whereas in other parts of the Continent kings might establish an arbitrary authority, the English people would not stand it. But it was not enough to overthrow the arbitrary authority of a king. It was necessary that some other sense should take its place. We are not exempt from the universal law of human nature, and no individual, and still more no class, is to be trusted with power over other classes.

"Some power is distributed throughout every class in the country, what is the future going to be? Hitherto, with any one class has been master, or, the remedy has been to invest the class below it with power to prevent that. I trust now that power is distributed, that if any one class, even if it be the most numerous class, attempts to use that power solely for its own interests at the expense of the other, it will find there is a common sense in the nation which will prevent the abuse of power."

Remarkable Skating Feat

This stunt was put on at the Banff Springs Hotel Rink during the recent Winter Carnival there and excited much comment. It is pretty hard to say whether the spectators enjoyed the spectacle more than the actual performers of it, but certainly the former had not to work so hard, since it was mostly easy to look at. The Banff Carnival was a great success this year and is now a fixture for good. With the opening of the new wing of the hotel and the inauguration of a winter season hardly less popular than the summer one, there can be no doubt but that Banff will be the Queen of the western amusement resorts in the near future

The African Chaperone

Among many Africa and Asiatic peoples girls are betrothed in infancy and kept hidden until ready for marriage. They were taken to the warriors, an elderly woman being selected to see that they were not approached by any man. When the girls reached a certain age they were permitted to "come out" into the sun and be married. Survivals of the custom are seen in our chaperon, the coming-of-age party and "sealed out" line society.

Plan to Eliminate Fog

Airplanes to be Used Over Lake Michigan for This Purpose

Flying branches of the army and navy are greatly interested in experiments shortly to be made in Chicago to determine whether the fog over burning Lake Michigan can be eliminated by static electricity sent from aeroplanes.

Barrows will have an important bearing on the project for a $7,000,000 airport on the lake front there is how the fog can be eliminated or greatly lightened, operation of the proposed airport would be much handicapped about one-third of the year.

Both the army and navy have conducted experiments along this line in the past with considerable success. Solution of the problem will be of great value to aviation in general.

There is nothing remotely like Miller's Worm Powders, and the dose no bigger—it takes no more, and only a few children will refuse them. In some cases they cause vomiting through their action in an irritating manner, but this is only a confirmation of their chemical power. It is a question that they are harmful. They can be thoroughly depended upon to clear worms from the system.

Using More Canadian Wheat

The other figure was too muffled to be recognized.

They reached the plateau at the top of the mountain at last, and drew up before the clubhouse. Its cheerful lights, glowing an unnatural red, made faint shadows in the open yard. Strains of modern music floated through closed doors, inviting newcomers to make the most of whatever sort of romance had brought them there.

"We'll leave the car near the road," Kenilworth announced. "We may have to make a dash for it if the mist becomes too thick."

Joanna slipped to the ground and stood close to the car. Kenilworth stood beside her while he drew off his overcoat, re olling his dominos or shining white satin. It is a fiction at the mountaintop clubhouse that one must mask, so that all who go there may be spared of their anonymity.

The demand was mostly for heavy draught horses, Percherons, Clydesdales and the like, for carters and for lumbering purposes, coming chiefly from Alberta and Saskatchewan, and some from the middle west.

Consequent upon an agreement reached at a general conference of Canadian and United States telegraph companies the Canadian Pacific Telegraphs have announced that code words will be accepted at all their offices in future for day and night letters. OBITUARY

Another old timer and veteran of the Royal North-West Mounted Police passed away at Lamont last Wednesday in the person of Peter Coutts, at the age of 72 years. Burial took place on Sunday at the Fort Saskatchewan cemetery, Rev. C. H. A. Pequegnat taking charge.

The late Peter Coutts was born in the Shetland Isles and at the age of fourteen became a sailor. At about nineteen years of age he was employed by the Hudson's Bay Company at Fort Churchill, on Hudson's Bay. A few years later, 1873, he joined the R.N.W.M.P. at Lower Fort Garry and came west to Edmonton with a contingent of that organization in the spring of 1874, arriving in June after about four months of trekking. He took part in the Riel rebellion and was a member of the mounted police for twenty years and during that time had the well earned reputation of being a thoroughly efficient officer. One of his best known exploits was the capture of a criminal after a whole year's search in the northern wilds, out off entirely from communication with civilization.

Josephburg

Rev. J. Hoffman returned last Saturday from B.C., where he has been on mission business.

R. Hemsley is home again, the Legislative session having concluded last Saturday.

A surprise party gathered at the school residence to celebrate a birthday last Thursday, with great enjoyment to all concerned.

Mr. G. Dene, who has had a severe illness, is now getting around again, to the satisfaction of his neighbors.

HIGHWAY EXPENDITURES

Alberta will spend $8,400,000 on highways and bridges this year according to a statement made by Hon. O. L. McPherson, minister of public works. This will include $1,000,000 on main highways, $850,000 on main hot roads, the balance being on maintenance, and on construction and maintenance of bridges.

WEDDING

WESTOVER—GREVES

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Greves, Bothe, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday evening, March 30, at 5 o'clock, when their eldest daughter, Irene Beatrice, was united in marriage to Mr. Leslie Willis Westover, son of Mrs. E. Shirley, of Fort Saskatchewan, and the late Mr. Westover.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. G. Goddard, of Strathcona, beneath an arch of pink and white streamers and wedding bells. The bridal party entered the living room to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Mrs. Melvin Greves.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely frock of shell pink georgette, heavily beaded in silver and gold, and a band of gold leaves in her hair. Her shower bouquet was of cybelia roses.

Miss Marcia Greves, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. She was gowned in green and silver cloth taffeta, in mid-Victorian style with silver shoes to match and carried pale pink carnations.

Mr. Stanley Greves supported the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony a buffet lunch was served when only the relatives and intimate friends of the bride and bridegroom were present. The table was attractively centred with the wedding cake and streamers of pink and white were festooned from the ceiling and caught at the corners of the table.

Mrs. Greves, mother of the bride, wore a becoming gown of ecrue satin back crepe.

The bridegroom's gift to the bridesmaid was a white gold bracelet; to the pianist a silver mesh bag; and the best man a signet ring.

Mr. and Mrs. Westover left for Pacific coast cities where their honeymoon will be spent. Mrs. Westover wore for travelling a green ensemble with smart green hat and a fitch neck scarf.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Westover will make their home at Redtech.

Too Late!

With the memory of the theatre holocaust in the rich scene scenes of little children were the victims still fresh in their minds the citizens of Montreal are passing through another tragedy in the epidemic of typhoid fever which at the time of writing, has afflicted over 1,500 people and resulted in over forty deaths.

The talking of proper precautions and the perfection of necessary safeguards would have saved the people of Montreal from the horrors of the theatre fire, and in the measure, the present typhoid epidemic could easily have been prevented.

It is the same old story over and over again of locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen and one is sometimes inclined to question whether human beings are after all, so much superior in intelligence to animals. In the case of animals it is quite safe that once bitten they are twice shy, but humans go on repeating the same blunder time after time and pay large penalties in serious suffering and loss.

Following the Montreal theatre fire an investigation was made into every theatre and hall of public assembly in the city in Montreal to know they were in a condition safeguarding the lives of those attending them. Practically all of them were found deficient in some respects, some were condemned and closed up. It should not have required a great catastrophe and the loss of many lives to lead civic officials to discharge a duty which should be record duty their attention all the time.

And now, when it is too late, investigation has established that the typhoid outbreak in the result of impure milk supplied to citizen time some little another and he has to face a trial for murder or manslaughter. In Montreal one thousand and more are lying on sick beds in homes and hospitals fighting for life, and many than two score are dead, all the result of criminal negligence

In the case of this typhoid outbreak there is double neglect on the part of the health authorities. In the first place it was their simple duty to safeguard the health of all citizens through the assurance of a supply of pure milk. That is one of the duties of a civic health department, and for the discharge of which they are paid salaries out of the taxes of the ratepayers. In the second place, medical science has placed in their hands the means of preventing typhoid, or rendering people immune from its ravages. Now that the deplorable is raging energetic steps are being taken to inoculate tens of thousands of citizens, when, in the case of many, it is everlastingly too late.

Not unlike, but fewer emergency measures are many times as much in effort and money as the day to day carrying on of the all important work would rest in the regular work of health administration. Why is it that municipal councils insist they cannot afford to expend money to protect the health and lives of their people, and they expend many times the required amount in a frantic endeavor to overcome the evil which through their shortsightedness has resulted?

And let not other places adopt a "holier than thou" attitude toward Montreal; rather let them examine their own municipal sanitation and be well established fact that smallpox, diphtheria and typhoid fever can be absolutely prevented and banished from our midst. The frightful disease can be rendered as extinct as the dodo, lepers or yellow fever but they continue to stalk through the land claiming their thousands of victims every year. Why? Because of what amounts to criminal negligence on the part of health officials and people generally.

Our Western prairie provinces pride themselves in their work for the prevention of health, but they still have a long way to travel in the direction of the eradication of preventable disease. There is much educational work yet to be done, and it is also only to be hoped that provincial health departments, municipal councils and health officers, all doctors, and every organization interested in the health, happiness and well being of the people will throw themselves more fervently into the campaign now in progress at many points under the "Seymour Plan" for the wiping out of preventable disease. The community which does not engage in this warfare stamps itself as hopelessly backward, and indifferent to the best interests and highest welfare of its people.

Canada's certain destiny is to be one of the great peoples of the world a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations but live and independent in its relationship, Viscount Willingdon declared in an address before the Canadian Club at Victoria.

British Doctors Urge International Code

World Reserve Language Difficulties on Wireless Consultations Said

An international medical code is shortly to provide the necessary means for consultation in time of sickness between ships at sea having on board no medical man, and doctors on shore, it was announced at the meeting of the British Medical Association.

Recent developments have made it necessary, it was stated, that there should be a universal code for the use of wireless operators. Many languages are used in wireless messages, and there is frequently difficulty in understanding the exact nature of the symptoms described by the patient. Sometimes, also, the operator has to act on his own responsibility in the case of sickness on board ship, and it is important that he should be able to describe the symptoms correctly.

The code will, it is anticipated, be made public in a manual containing the subject, and will probably consist of about 200 pages.

Newsprint From Wheat Straw May Compete With Wood As New Process Is Developed

What material may be exported to supplement wood in the event of the world consumption of newsprint attaining anything resembling the per capita use of this commodity in the United States, asks the Natural Resources Intelligence Service, Department of the Interior, Ottawa. Will it be organic grass which has been used extensively in the past and is still being used? Will it be bamboo, which has been used to some extent? Or will it be straw? If the latter then Canada with its vast cereal growing areas possesses great and permanent potential supplies. Straw material is looked upon as having great possibilities and recently a company was formed at Edmonton for the purpose of manufacturing paper from this commodity. If the mill succeeds it would justify a considerable and possibly a remarkable industrial development in the Canadian wheat fields.

Recent developments along similar lines in Italy may be of interest to Canadian agriculturists and capital into, points out the Natural Resources Service. Dr. Angelo Mattia, director of the Istituto Sperimentale Cellulosa e Carta di Torre Pellice, and Dr. Nicola Parravano, professor of chemistry at the University of Rome, have been experimenting with straw for some years, and have succeeded in producing a straw which will fulfill all the technical requirements of satisfactory newsprint paper has been the subject of intense research on the part of Italian industrial chemists for a number of years. The problem is now thought successfully solved and straw pulp is being produced on an industrial scale in the plants of the Società Elettrochimica Pomilio in Naples and in those of the Società Italiana di Elettrochimica at Dunsi.

The latter mill was built on a daily productive capacity of 20 tons, is now turning out approximately 18 tons of pulp a day for the paper factory. The Pomilio process has the further advantage of utilizing the chlorine by-product in the production of hydrochloric acid, which is a well developed Italian industry.

The problem of production costs has also been successfully solved, and the cost of production of newsprint paper containing approximately 80 per cent straw is claimed to be about 22 per cent. less than ordinary newsprint paper, whose current price is about $75 a short ton.

Experiments have found paper with an 80 per cent straw and 20 per cent wood content suitable for printing purposes. Samples of the editions received show the paper to be of good quality and excellent color, but somewhat harder in finish and less absorbent to ink than the newsprint in general use in the United States and Canada. The paper is also slightly less opaque, and the printed sheet does not appear to have the clearness characteristic of American newspapers.

Meanwhile Canada maintains her position of the world leading country in the exports of both wood pulp and wheat, and her pulpwood and cereal-growing resources are so outstanding as to justify the opinion that she will remain the predominant factor in newsprint supplies no matter whether the final honors go either to spruce or to wheat straw.

Spreading Potatoes

This Method Results in Forwarding the Crop About Seven Days

Tests at the Invermere, B.C., experimental station indicate that potatoes can profitably be planted at any time between May 1st and June 15. After the latter date the result is poor. It was also proven that spreading forwarded the crop seven days. Early Member spreaded planted May 15 was ready August 3rd, non-spreaded planted the same date was ready August 16. The yield of spreaded was 23½ tons per acre and of non-spreaded 20½ tons. With Wee Mangregor the result's as regards time of readiness were the same, but the non-spreaded yielded slightly better, the record being spreaded 27½ tons, non-spreaded 28½ tons. Spreading was effected by planting the tubers in a worm dimly lighted building three weeks prior to planting. Strong sturdy sprouts about half an inch long were the result.

Alaskan Reindeer

More Than Half a Million Roaming the Northern Tundra

Reindeer, originally introduced into Northern Alaska to ward off starvation of the Eskimo, today presents a problem which is commanding serious attention of Government officials and private citizens alike.

The herd of 1,500 imported into the territory by the 10 years prior to 1902, has multiplied so rapidly that it is estimated that more than half a million are roaming the tundra. On the present basis of increase, within 10 years, it is expected the number will approximate 5 millions. The situation that can be grasped is readily, say Government experts.

The problem of what to do with the vast multiplying herds is one for which no satisfactory solution has yet been found. Marketing the meat in the United States has been under taken, but difficulty has been encountered in popularizing it as a food. Not that it is less palatable than beef or mutton, but the public is not educated to the idea of eating reindeer meat. Through the British Foreign Office, Sir Reginald Hugh Talbot, has secured the help of the Anti-slavery Society in England to dispose of the Alaskan capital for poor children and free slaves.

Time Ball No Longer Needed

Greenwich Time Is Now Picked Up by Wireless

For two generations the Signal Tower at Deal has given the time of day to passing ships by the dropping of its Time Ball. Now the tower is to be closed and the ball will drop no more.

No one seems to know the reason for the change, but in the old days it was need for seamphore and flag signalling to the ships lying in the roads between the shore and the Goodwin Sands. It was the last of a chain of signalling stations, from the Admiralty in Whitehall.

With the coming of the telegraph the chain was no longer needed, and, about 1842 the tower was put to a new use. It was built with a number of holes, lining them the an electric current from Greenwich, would release this large ball, a hollow drum six feet across, at the moment the clocks of London were striking one. Outside the tower was found in the valuable for many years afterwards by mariners.

Now, in the Wireless Age, it seems less startling to us that Greenwich time can be picked up anywhere. Wireless has put the time ball out of business, and the Signalling Tower is pensioned off, its work done.

It's The Ball with a worked by hand, but the days are near the long, and it is also the older current reliable—it is fall was dropped at 1 o'clock and it is another cushion, and six other special springs. All that has now to be done for the last time, for the last record to work precisely.

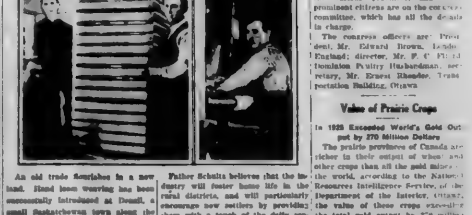
Old Trade Flourishes in New Land



An old trade flourishes in a new land. Hand loom weaving has been successfully introduced at Dundi, a small settlement town about 40 miles of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The keen enthusiasm in hand loom weaving at Dundi, and the general interest throughout Saskatchewan can be traced to the energy of Rev. Father John Schultz, and came as the result of his recent visit to Great Britain, France, Germany, Belgium, Switzerland and Italy. He investigated hand weaving in each country, studied the art himself, and on his return installed the looms.

Father Schultz believes that the industry will foster home life in the rural districts, and will particularly encourage new settlers by providing them with a touch of the daily routine to which they were accustomed prior to their arrival in this country. Weaving is regarded as the modern around which other farm activities will prosper. This activity creates a demand for sheep raising, and home and flax growing. Another feature, and one highly regarded, is that weaving may be undertaken by members of farm families unable to carry on with the heavier duties of rural life.

First Dominion Day

Events of 1867 Are Recalled by Toronto Cab Driver

While preparations are going forward to make the celebration of Canada's 60th birthday, next July 1, a memorable event, 51 year old Charlie Abbott, probably Toronto's oldest cab driver, recalls the doings of the first Dominion Day—1867

On that momentous day Mr. Abbott's cab had been engaged by Alderman John Carr, chairman of the Toronto Fireworks Committee. Mr. Abbott still retains vivid recollections of the modest fireworks display Toronto's Park that closed Dominion Day.

A feature of Toronto's celebration of the first Dominion Day, Mr. Abbott recalls, was the military review of the Royal Artillery and Body Guard.

Model Farm Men From British Isles Come to Canada

Among immigrants landing at Halifax recently were 25 young men who had been trained on a model farm in the British Isles to prepare them for agricultural life in Canada.

Each of the men had been given ten pounds to use them through the first few days in the dominion. It is their intention to buy farms for the land and come to the other side of the sea at Halifax to be ready to be hired to dispense the crowd. While the crowd had departed, the party really was relieved when the British government enabled the necessary arrangements to be made to get them to make this thing withdrawn again into the Canadian Pacific Railway to take them to their destination.

Books was not always going about doing good. He could not, on many days, have come across a man dying in worthless and worthless. No doubt was after a man getting poor, getting thirsty and the value which enabled him and inspired Him to do good. Many times in the course of doing departures, inadding upon an interval of two minutes between them in order to avoid a crowd. He went to the house and found the dead body of his friend Lazarus, and, at the feast signal from the starter, the big car slid away.

In the smaller car Kenilworth remarked grimly: "It'll be a test of nerve but we'll make it if anyone can." The girl seemed to detect a note of dejection in his tone. She slipped her hand under his arm. "I'm sorry, Roddy," she said. "You were wonderful, and I am convinced enough to think you meant all that not said. But you did't accept me, so off he feel as I thought you might. I suppose there must be something old-fashioned about me after all. Your aims are awfully constructing, my dear, but I couldn't have the feeling that the theme would just have to come on the top. I know you think I've treated you rotten, but I couldn't help it. I feel better, for it, now. The one in my self, anyway."

"I don't know," he said, "but who... you're not the right idea at that. Before this minute I almost asked you to marry me, and that's awfully unlike my principles."

"I'm glad you didn't," she return ed. "I'm afraid I might have given you the chance."

Explanations and Comments

I. Peter Sees the Power of Jesus, verses 22-27.—After the feeding of the Five Thousand the disciples were perplexed with the desire of the multitude to make Jesus king, and were glad to leave the spot until he could dismiss them. While the crowd had departed, Joanna really was relieved when the British government enabled the necessary arrangements to be made to get them to make this thing withdrawn again into the Canadian Pacific Railway to take them to their destination.

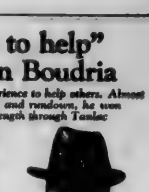
"I want to help" says Allen Boudria

Tells facts from own experience to help others. Almost wild with pain, weak and rundown, he won new health and strength through Tanlac

Allen Boudria, engineer, of 422 st. Patrick St., in one of Ottawa's best known citizens. Mr. Patterson in following the facts of my experience, he said: "I suffered terribly from indigestion for about two years and I did.

"For five years I was a sufferer. My whole system seemed out of gear, but I was always troubled most. Even a drink of cold water would cause my stomach to bloat and swell alarmingly. Gas would pervade me from sleeping at night so that I had to get up and walk the floor for hours. Yet my stomach pains nearly drove me wild. I'm not exaggerating, either, when I say I doubled over unable to straighten up.

My friend Mr. Lagrese told me how Tanlac had helped him out of similar trouble, and I soon noticed 9 bottles in all. It just made me over. I feel 20 years younger than I am and weigh 216 lbs. My appetite and sleep are both fine. I eat what I like and enjoy like a logs. Tanlac and nothing else is like it for me."



Tanlac is sold by druggists everywhere. Over 35 million bottles sold.

Mystery of the Towers

Built in England During the War But Were Never Used

The mystery of the huge towers, built on the south coast of England during the war and never used, has been cleared up.

The towers, 95 feet high and built of a coat of approximately 25,000 each, were to be the forerunners of many similar ones for the defence of the English Channel.

They were to be towed out to sea and strung together across the Straits of Dover linked together at distances of a few hundred yards with nets and heavily fortified with guns. In the top of each a powerful searchlight was to be placed.

The armature, however made it unnecessary to continue the scheme and the towers were an issued off Shoeburyness for some years. One has been broken up and the other is used as a lighthouse off Gosport.

According to Sir W. Arbuthnot Lane noted British surgeon, tale-bearing or gossip are more able to fight against disease than dark haired girls.

Not Always a Good Rule

The idea that a man is as old as his birthdays is one that is fast disappearing. There are too many, and most men beyond the psalmist's span of life, to cash a principle fittingly, since are none so to judge a man as a woman. Many men of like years are also of like intellect and judgment, while many men and women never reach that stage.

It is suggested that perhaps he compulsorily retired when they have reached the age of seventy-five years. That does not seem to be a good rule. A judge, particularly may have attained a wide acknowledge in his service which would be missed on the bench

The worms that infest children from their birth are of two kinds—worms that find lodgement in the stomach and those that are found in the intestines. The latter are the most destructive as they cling to the walls of the intestines and if not interfered with work under there Miller's Worm Powders to dislodge both kinds and while expelling them from the system serve to repair the damage they have caused.

Little Helps For This Week

If ye love Me, keep My commandments—John xiv. 15

Do as thou wouldst be done unto: Love God, and love thy neighbor, watch and pray

These are the words and works of life, this do, and live; who doth not this doth lost and dieth eternally.

—Henry Vaughan.

When a man is told that the whole of religion and morality is summed up in the two commandments, to love God and to love our neighbor, he is ready to cry, like Carlyle in Goldsmith, that the first night of the sea, "is this the mighty ocean? Is this all?" Yet, all the same, just how small a part of do your eyes survey! Only trust yourself to it, launch out upon it call abroad over it, you will find it has no end; it will carry you round the world

The streets of the town are naturally in a vile state following the spring thaw, but they have been worse. The design scheme of last year has helped some and if the dry weather comes the wet spots will soon dry up. These epithets are mild in comparison to some which have been used in describing it and though honest language is invariably used in this regard it fails to dry up the mud.

ASSESSED VALUE OF LANDS

The total assessed value of all lands in Alberta for the purposes of the supplementary revenue tax collected by the government, was five hundred and five millions of dollars in 1926, states the report of the Department of Municipal Affairs. Of this amount the assessed value of property in the cities was seventy-seven millions, eight hundred thousand dollars; in the towns it is two hundred and forty-seven and sixty-one thousand dollars; and in the villages it was four millions, eight hundred and seventy-one thousand dollars. The assessment of rural lands totalled $417,540,600. The report states that the finances of the rural municipalities have been greatly improved in the past year.

1926 MOTOR LICENSES

Easter Message

Flitting it is, that at a time when there are so many resurrections in the realm of nature, the Christian church should, from year to year, sing in a spondel way, its anthems of joy, because the gloom of death is taken away through the risen Christ.

There will still be those who choose not to accept this great truth on which the Christian roots his hope for the larger life to come. Nevertheless, if the resurrection be a fiction we have lost the supreme motive of life and, when all other claims are heard, our centre of truest joy. Without an assurance of immortality, in other inducement or inspiration in this life would be to any cause adequate to cause us to fight on most nobly and well.

Someone has said: "We do not believe immortality because we have proved it, but we forever try to prove it, because we believe it."

May you have the highest and best joy as you join with your friends in worship in your church at this Easter time.

E. J. HODGINS.

RED CROSS SOCIETY EXPLAINS LAPSING OF SUBSCRIPTIONS

Following is a letter received by The Record with a request it be published:

Miss Backhouse,
Secretary-Treas. Red Cross Society,
Fort Saskatchewan, Alberta.

Dear Miss Backhouse:-

Your letter of April 5th received together with list of new officers for 1927.

I am very sorry indeed that a number of people in your district have been annoyed by letters asking for subscriptions which they had already paid.

May I point out that the money from Fort Saskatchewan did not come into this office until January, 1927. Meanwhile the subscriptions to the magazines had lapsed. These magazines are sent out from Toronto, and it was the duty of this office to give people due notice of the fact that the subscriptions had lapsed. We are very sorry indeed that occasionally this sort of thing is bound to happen when subscriptions are over due.

There is no disposition in this office whatever to interfere in your local affairs, but you understand the magazine is issued from Toronto Head Office and which is included in the membership fee of $1.00 to the Red Cross Society, free of further charge, and it is a matter which has to be checked up through this office. Probably a great many of the Fort Saskatchewan subscriptions were handed in in October or November, in which event two or three months has elapsed before we could possibly know that the subscriptions had been renewed owing to the fact that the money was still held in Fort Saskatchewan.

We are very grateful indeed for all the assistance that has come to the Red Cross Society from Fort Saskatchewan district, and I trust that no small irritation of the kind will make any difference in the kindly relationship which has always existed between us.

We are forwarding to you the total amount received from the Fort Saskatchewan district, together with the names of those who paid direct.

Faithfully yours,
E. A. CORBETT,
Red Cross Commissioner,
Alberta Division.

Contributions from Fort Saskatchewan $260.00

Secretary Yorkville Red Cross, Agricola (Sent in through Fort Saskatchewan Branch) ..... $ 26.00

There follows a list of subscribers so long as your own which we have neither space or time to include.—Ed.

Celebrating Canada's Jubilee

The celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of Confederation should be well and fittingly observed in all cities, throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, and no community however small should fail to take advantage of this interesting date to review the progress of the country and to encourage it in the future—in all respects—by the adoption of plans which will produce worth while service to Canada and make it a still better land in which to live and a real power to stand among the nations of the world.

A strong national committee has been created to give general direction to this celebration in its large national aspects, and Provincial committees are to be powers of formation in each of the nine provinces. The national committee will, of course, be vice-regal in character and it is proposed that in each of the provincial committees there should be selected at least one of the principal citizens in the province. THE ONLY MEDICINE

Is What Thousands of Mothers Say of Baby's Own Tablets

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she will use nothing else. Experience teaches her that they are without an equal for relieving baby of any of the many minor ailments which afflict them at one time or another. The Tablets never fail to be of benefit they can not possibly do harm as they are guaranteed to be free from all baby soothing drugs.

Concerning Baby's Own Tablets Mrs. Russell Hill, Norwood, Ont., says: "I think always have a good word to say for Baby's Own Tablets. I have given them to our baby girl in her first days the only medicine she has ever had and I am proud to say that she took several prize at our baby show. She is eleven months old and weighs 22 pounds. No mother whose child is peevish or ailing will make a mistake in giving Baby's Own Tablets."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or direct by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Newspaper of Today

Aims to Present to Readers Important Events of Community

The newspaper to today aims to be a mirror of the important events in the community in which it is published, and of the world at large. It does not follow that the unusual, the unexpected, the surprising are not news. The light and airy trifle, the strange and fantastic have their proper and important place in the newspaper. In pages of this they frighten, but newspapers that explain the oddities of life to the neglect of the great matters of state are merely running side shows to real journalism. Well edited journalism is one of the great out forces in modern today. Brant Independent.

Attractive Style Tendencies Distinguish This Daytime Frock

Shirrings are a favorite trimming in new mode, and are topping many of the draperies on frocks of soft fabrics, as in the model developed in flowered taffeta. The bodice is tucked at the shoulders, and the top of the long full sleeves extend into the neck, forming, as it were, a yoke effect. The dress slips on over the head, and has a contrasting collar that may be worn closed to the neck, or open as pictured. The foundation of the frock is straight, the circular panels being shirred to the portsets, which in turn are set into the skirt to narrow hips ties at the back. No. 1228 is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 bust requires 5¼ yards 36-inch; or 3¾ yards 54-inch material. Price 20 cents.

Every woman's desire is to achieve that subtle air of distinction that only draws favorable comment from the observing public. The designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book are calculated to the heart of the style centres and will help you to acquire that much desired air of individuality. Canadians Heavy Tea Drinkers

Dominion Stands Fourth Among Nations of World in That Respect

Each Canadian drinks more than pounds of tea per year, or practically three times the quantity consumed by the average in the United States with just a little more than one-tenths of a pound per capita. Next three names in the order of drinkers of tea are Canada with 26 million lbs. Reliable statistics are available for China and Russia. Both these countries consume a large amount of tea but the per capita is very small. A great deal more tea would be used on this continent if it were possible to reduce the duty restored. EASTER

Easter comes at a glad season of the year. The Revived Lord, in token of commemorative of the resurrection of Jesus Christ and as a memorial to the deep sorrowfulness by the death of the Master upon the cross.

It is hailed with great acclaim in all the Christian churches of the world. In Greek and Latin and in the languages derived from these, Easter was known as "Pascha," "Pasch," "Paques," "Pascua," "Pasqua," from the Chaldee word, "Pascha," the equivalent of the Hebrew "Pesach." The "Destroying Angel's" act is recalled by the last name in "passing over" the houses of the Hebrews when he smote the Egyptians, as recorded in the twelvth chapter of Exodus.

This year Easter falls on April 17. The way by which Easter is determined is that of the first Sunday after the paschal moon, or full moon, fourth day of the calendar moon, or the full moon which happens next after March 21; and if the full moon happens on a Sunday, then Easter day is the first Sunday following.

Let pests sing their little songs
And gaily smite the lyre;
Give me the man who whistles while
He's putting on a tire.

A delegation attended to request the Council to open up the Haslan Lake Ditch in order that the roadway across the lake would be safe for traffic.

In view of the complaints made by the delegation it was decided to engage the services of Mr. Dore to take levels of the ditch in order to ascertain the reasons why the water would not drain away.

A large delegation from Point-aux-Pins attended to urge the Council to take immediate action for the opening up of a roadway along the North Wask side of River Lots 15, 17, 19 and 21 and connect with the North and South road East of section 35-54-23. The Council promised consideration of the request.

The secretary was instructed to call for tenders for the pulling of the big grubber during the coming season. Tenders to be in not later than Friday, May 14.

Mr. W. J. Norton, New York, writes: "Sick headache, indigestion and constipation have troubled me for years. I tried everything but I can truthfully say your CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS is the best laxative I have ever used. I find that they are small easy to take and their action does not pain me. They keep me regular and I want to tell you how I appreciate this great little medicine, due to my experience in laboratory, work that laxatives containing Mercury, Calomel and other poisonous drugs are injurious.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are sugar coated, small, easy to swallow, and everyone in the family can take them in perfect confidence as they are a doctor's own formula.

Two minutes downstairs were to be passed at the phonograph in the new home. Hardly had the last record ceased thundering through, than began a petition for every pair of which there were those that justified the claim: "Just once more." Then some very quiet tune, one with the most sacred associations called on and early mildness dropped to be heard feverishly. Soon a public waltz ushered in a rapidfire session which lasted deep on a hair about three. Which in her excitement he had to insist upon the already taxed musicians' part. "Please, one played in the hands, the next time mostly. It is of small value. I have hidden diamonds that I will give you. My pocket is a treasure of my husband."

The evil fellow gave her, flattered, and helped her to her feet. Then he turned with a music open at page to take between his it would not distract the girl that tuning was the cunning lady of something she should not forget the bandit said Joanna who was standing near claimed quietly at the moment valiant fellow whose breath was eager with excitement and whose hands were green and unhandy. Then she looked at the girl, and considered a bottle.

The betrayed who appeared to be the leader of the robbing company, the one whose voice was purloining stuff stepped into the middle of the floor and announced:

"We are used and to interfere with such plans as the newlyweds and now dishes have made our little return to the more comfortable threshold of their home below, but there are circumstances which will not be avoided. It becomes a necessity to invite the gentlemen to remain within the hospitable of the locked barn which we have borrowed for the evening. The ladies will be trimmed to the club house, where they may be so happy as to find other partners for the merry dance of the waning night. You will be required with the new way, doubtlessly. When the ladies are depleted at the club house we shall leave you Newlyers the gallow will find we will disappeared by the time you gentlemen ease your whiskers and find your way to the cities below.

The men against the wall uttered and cause, but became menaced them. Some of the women blanched at the prospect of their duties of the night becoming visible reported its hits for the spot-conditions of not

"I have only arrived," Brandon said, his words suave but breathingly ironic. "I'm happy to find you alone."

With the reappearance of the bold up victims, straggled and suffering from their various reflections upon brownings, as they surely would be, heroines of a widely told about night in La Tabac pende-o-klaus broke out among the revelers who had elected to remain and who, by that time had made serious inroads upon their host's store of champagne. The sense of the reception of those who had thought it necessary to leave the house to return to their places by now, by those who heeded not conscience, was that such one of the rob bers' victims had, by the unexpected circumstance, become "one of us."

Joanna sat apart from the ribald scene that immediately shaped itself. She made no pretense of restoring her mask to her face by now all masks were openly discarded. Even the mask that protruded the club house knob had been dropped, and the revelry was unbridled.

BABY CROSS ALL THE TIME

Eczema on Face and Body. Cuticura Heals.

"My baby's face and body were covered with eczema. It broke out in blisters and sore eruptions, and he could not sleep on account of the irritation. I had to keep mittens on his hands to keep him from scratching. He was cross all the time, and his clothing aggravated the breaking out.

I tried other remedies but they did not help him. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in a few days I could see a change, and in about a month he was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Kate Davidson, Flat Lake, Alta.

It is not only good for the children when taken with cold and croup, and for the mature who suffer from pains and aches, but there are directions for its use on each bottle. There should always be a bottle of it in the house.

Working on "Silent" Planes

France Perfecting Machines That Cannot be Heard

Silent aeroplanes, painted the color of night, which can neither be heard or seen after dark, will soon be a practical accomplishment of the French, it also, seems, it is reliably stated.

Several other nations have been working along the same lines, but France has not so extended. Eleven French experiments with new and devil silencers have demonstrated that the plane equipped with them could not be heard at a distance of "one foot from the ground. Within a very few absolutely silent planes will be in service for French Aviation Service, according to the same reports.

The laboratory has also been working for many months on the question of the color of plane and the experts have decided upon a new dark paint which has the effect of so completely blending the plane into the night atmosphere as to make it invisible even within a few hundred feet of the land or sea.

With the so called disappearing paint and silent engines, the death dealing qualities of the aeroplane will be increased enormously in the opinion of aeronautical experts. They cite as an example a night attack by several hundred armored planes, including bombers, upon an enemy city or position

The enemy anti-aircraft defences would be immediately placed at a great disadvantage, for about the only means of detection left would be searchlights.

During the World War the peculiar sound of approaching German planes, which to many people seemed to say the words "I will," acted as a sufficient warning to permit the French defending air forces to get into action

Once a School Teacher—Later a Famous Physician

A young man who was brought up on a farm in Western Pennsylvania qualified for district school teacher. Further pursuing his studies and teaching, he managed to save enough money to put him through medical college. He became a specialist disease in the new oil section of Pennsylvania, and often rode horse-back through the woods to reach and relieve those who were seriously ill He was a student of nature, knew and really recognized many of the medicinal plants growing in the woods.

Finally he moved to Buffalo, N.Y., where he launched his favorite remedies, and, in a short time, they were sold by every druggist in the land. Today, the name of this man, the late Dr. R. V. Pierce, is known throughout the world. His Golden Medical Discovery is the best known general tonic for building up strength, restoring impaired tissues and enriching the blood. More than fifty million bottles have been sold in the U. S. If your druggist does not sell it, in liquid or tablets, you can obtain a trial pkg. of the tablets by sending 10c to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ont.

Catapult Aeroplanes

Have Been Successfully Launched From Deck of Ships

To save time, it is suggested that Atlantic liners approaching their ports should discharge small aeroplanes in mail with absolutely urgent mails and parcels, or in private cases even passengers. It has already been proved that aeroplanes can be launched from the smallest decks of ships by the catapult system.

It has been shown that aeroplanes with no bracing below on board can be propelled on to objects thirty miles distant, and it is expected that this range will shortly be increased to one hundred miles.

GOVERNOR GENERAL AND PARTY ARE GUESTS OF LOCAL CANADIAN CLUB

For the second time within two years Fort Saskatchewan has been favored with a visit from the Governor-General of the Dominion. Lord Byng was the guest of the townspeople on August 18, 1925, and today their Excellencies Lord and Lady Willingdon were the guests of honor and after introductions were conducted by the Fort Saskatchewan Canadian club. Also included in the party, which motored from Edmonton, were Lieut. Gov. Egbert, Miss Egbert, Premier Brownlee, Mrs. Brownlee, Mayor Berry, Mrs. Berry, Mrs. Perren Baker, J. E. Lowery and members of the Vice-regal party.

They arrived at the Memorial hall about noon and were greeted by the Boy Scouts, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Lamoureux. After a very informal inspection by His Excellency, he was presented with an Illuminated address by Arthur Adams, on behalf of the boys.

Their Excellencies were then welcomed by the official representatives of the town and the Canadian club and conducted to the platform where addresses of welcome were presented by Mayor Berry, on behalf of the town, and by President Lowery, on behalf of the club.

Lord Willingdon was in splendid form and had the audience highly amused as he related the poor success he had had in his attempts to master Canadian winter sports, he having spent so many years in government official positions in far Eastern parts of the Empire. He expressed his appreciation of being the first guest of the Fort Canadian club and promised to return at a later date to obtain a better impression of the country, as

EFFECT OF COD LIVER OIL UPON CHICKS

Investigation has shown that, in cases where both calcium and phosphorus are present in the ration in sufficient quantities, but where these minerals have not been properly utilized in bone formation, a deficiency of vitamine D, as it is called, is the controlling factor. Sources of vitamine 'D' are milk, liver, fresh green foods and cod liver oil. It is most concentrated in cod liver oil.

Considerable experimental work on the use of cod liver oil as a source of this vitamine and as a cure for rickets has been conducted by the Poultry Division of the Central Experimental Farm, but the investigation is as yet in its infancy. During 1924, in an experiment comparing different vitamine foods for brooder chicks, a pen receiving crude cod liver oil as a vitamine supplement made the greatest gains throughout the test and was the only pen in which there was no indication of rickets or leg-weakness. Fifteen chicks from this experiment, suffering from leg-weakness in such an extent that they were unable to walk, and one of which was practically unable to move, were fed cod liver oil at the rate of one teaspoonful per bird the first day and the same amount per five birds from that day on. Eleven days after the commencement of treatment all chicks, except the one previously mentioned, could run around normally, while by the fourteenth day even that one was completely cured. The chicks were then put on a standard ration and there was no sign of rickets over a period of four months. During 1925 the experiment was repeated. The pen receiving refined cod liver oil made the greatest gains and signs of rickets again were present only in chicks not receiving the oil. During 1926 fourteen chicks, suffering from leg-weakness in varying stages of severity, were used as candidates and gaining weight after seven days of treatment with refined cod liver oil.

A BALANCE WHEEL

This is a peculiar world. One man is saving money to build a house, and another is trying to sell his car from then it cost him to build it. One man is spending all he can make in taking a girl to the show and to dances and sending her flowers, while a neighbor is using what money he has to getting a divorce. One man escapes all of the diseases that flesh is heir to, but gets killed in an accident; another escapes with only a scratch and dies of whooping cough. One man stands off his creditors and goes bravelling, while another stays at home and pays his debts. One man makes a nuisance of himself to his neighbors by trying to borrow this paper while another subscribes for it and his troubles are ended. Truly it is a strange world.

Do right and fear no man, don't write and fear no woman.

Where Canada Leads the World

Canada exports more wheat than any other country in the world. It produces more of its world - supply in nickel. Within the last two years it has passed first United States in the production of newsprint and is now the greatest exporter in the world. Instead lost - such as those are bewildering common knowledge amongst Canadians - but it is doubtful if we and they fully appreciate the extent to which we in the Dominion is holding a position of first importance among the trading nations of the world.

The Jubilee year of Confederation is a good time to take stock of our national achievement - how long we should become beautiful as a people, but with an encouragement and an incentive to still greater things. It has been charged that Canadians suffer from an inferiority complex, that we are more inclined to belittle our country and its possibilities than to boast of them; and, as a consequence we are apt to entertain doubts and be fearful of the future instead of displaying confidence and courage.

It is a good thing, therefore, to sometimes get a glimpse of ourselves as others see us. There is inspiration in such a picture as the following:

The National Foreign Trades Council of New York, in a recent state ment, says Canada has led all nations in her use of external trade - since 1912 with an increase of 83 per cent as compared with Australia's 15 per cent, and 24 per cent for the United States.

The League of Nations Bureau recently issued a report showing that Canada per capita wealth had grown from $1100 in 1905 to $2,006 in 1920, a record unequalled by any other nation. In Canada

The National Bureau o Research of the United States recently published the results of 11 years trading showing that Canada had enjoyed more prosperity than any other nation.

During the years covered by these statements, the Western Provinces of Canada have been transformed from being a vast area, with a sparse population and a meagre production, into a community of over two millions people and with an agricultural production of such magnitude as to even prompt the attention to the whole world, and constituting a factor to be reckoned with in all the world markets.

The development of the West has had its effect on the east, Canada as a whole recognized, but Western people possibly do not fully appreciate the rapid growth and development which has taken place in the older provinces in the east. Manufacturing production in Canada has grown from $775 millions of dollars in 1901 to 1,211 millions in 1922, and in a space of manufactured products expanded in the same time by 2,729 per cent. Today Canada exports some millions of dollars worth of manufactured goods more than she imports - a complete reversal of the situation as recently as five years ago.

Canadian manufacturers are beginning to point from the lessons of the past. They realize that the people of Canada as a whole will not stand for protective tariffs, on high that they are prohibitive and that the tendency is in the direction of lower rather than higher tariffs. They too know they must rely on something more than a protective tariff to ensure success and make profits. As a result they have scrapped most obsolete machinery, have adopted improved manufacturing methods, have not only established the home market better through the giving of real service, but they have aggressively entered foreign markets and have built up a worth While export trade All these steps are no longer in one basket.

They are beginning to appreciate the wisdom and strength of a Canadian policy of negotiating trade treaties with other countries and to recognize and accept the fact that international trade cannot be all one-sided that in a word if Canada is to sell largely to other countries she must in turn, buy in those markets Canada's mountains, and manufactures are also, to an increasing extent, investing in the development of the natural resources of the Dominion instead of relying on the importation of raw and semi-manufactured materials whilst the Dominion itself can supply.

It is because of a growing recognition and application of the o truths that Canada is today leading the world in the growth and development of its external trade

Empire Mining Congress

Delegates From All Parts of the World to Meet in Montreal

Nearly seven hundred delegates have registered at the Montreal head quarters for the second Triennial Empire Mining Congress which is to be held in Canada, August 22 to September 2 next Great Britain is sending 300 delegates of both sexes to the Congress and I intend there about 100, India, the Federated Malay States, Rhodesia, most of the different countries that make up the Continent of Africa, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, and all the principal Provinces will be represented. The Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy is the convening body for the Congress.

North Convention

Arrangements are already under way for the Northern Canada Convention to be held in Winnipeg next year. Previous conventions have attracted from 1,000 to 1,500 delegates and preliminary estimates of the attendance at the approaching convention place it at 2,000.

If a man had as many vices as he has virtues, he would wonder if some other one wouldn't have suited him better.

Canada Offers To Newcomers A Splendid Opportunity To Achieve a State of Independence

Canada's offer to the people of Europe, and in fact to potential newcomers in any part of the world, is an opportunity to achieve independence on her lands. The Dominion does not claim that success is to be won in her domain with any the less effort than elsewhere, but does maintain that the goal of absolute independence is within the reach of every individual stretching out unflinchingly vigorously after it. Canada has always been known as a land of homeseekers, and just to what extent this is true and the Dominion faithful her promise, is illustrated in statistical material which has been compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

In contrast to nearly every other part of the world, followers of Canada's first industry of agriculture pursue their calling to a very large extent on farms of their own. The Dominion is one of the few countries in the world which follow in the wake of an agricultural population with a large proportion of renters. Of all the farms in Canada at the time of the 1921 census, numbering 711,599, 618,190 were owned outright by those who lived upon them. This represents 86.5 per cent. of the total farming population. The percentage of farm owners is high in each of the provinces, being as follows:—Prince Edward Island, 95.6 per cent.; Nova Scotia, 96.1 per cent.; New Brunswick, 96.1 per cent.; Quebec, 94.9 per cent.; Ontario, 85.2 per cent.; Manitoba, 82 per cent.; Saskatchewan, 77.6 per cent.; Alberta, 74.6 per cent.; British Columbia, 64.3 per cent. In comparison with the above figures the percentage of farms operated by owners in the United States was only 56.6 of the total in 1920, and the proportion shows a decline each decade.

It is not only upon farms that Canada's home owners are found, but 61.91 per cent. of all homes in the Dominion are owned by their inhabitants, and only 41.09 rented. Among rural dwellers the percentage of home owners is 76.56, and among urban dwellers, 46.66. The percentage of home ownership is highest in Prince Edward Island, where it stands at 86.73 per cent., and lowest in Quebec, where it is 61.71 per cent. The percentages in the other provinces are as follows:—Saskatchewan, 78.60 per cent.; Alberta, 69.27 per cent.; Nova Scotia, 66.36 per cent.; New Brunswick, 65.36 per cent.; Manitoba, 64.77 per cent.; Ontario 63.25 per cent.; British Columbia, 54.14 per cent.

The substantial proportion of home owners among the farmers of Canada is to be expected in a consideration of the facility of land tenure in Canada during early years, and encouragement given towards farm establishment. It would be yet considerably larger did it include the large number who are gradually paying for their holdings on terms extended over a number of years and who are virtually farm owners. But the figures of home owners among the urban populations are also gratifying, indicating that so large a proportion has its roots so definitely sunk. The home owner, the family man with such a stake in the country, is one who is there to stay, not to wave with the vacillation of prosperity.

Bees Invaluable to Farmers

People Should Be Taught Not to Destroy Them

It is a good thing at this season of the year to remind young people not to destroy the insectiverous birds which are the farmer's friends and invaluable services to the farmer and the world at large. In many parts of the country insects have caused grievous damage for some years, both to the forests and the harvests. We should therefore, pay all the more attention to the preservation of the birds which aid in the destruction of the insects which attack our crops and growing timber.

The demonstrations will be conducted by two members of the Agricultural Engineering department of the University.

According to present arrangements the provincial plowing match will be held from June 19 to about June 22.

Where matches are held one-half of the prize money awarded is given by the government in the form of a grant. The limit set by the government is $50 for each match

How Game Bird for Canada

"Cock of the Wood" Will Make Its Appearance if Ottawa Accepts Ambassador's Offer

Canada may have a new game bird if an offer which Governor-in-Council has before it is accepted by the Government of Bermuda, who visited in Ottawa in the course of a Canadian tour, made to the Federal authorities is accepted. "Cock of the Wood" handling may take its place along with duck and deer and partridge shooting as the fall and winter sport for many Canadians, when at last the new game bird has been allowed to increase and still some.

Mr. Van der Bellen in behalf of his Government offers to present a number of Bermudan "Cock of the Wood" to Canada with the idea that this bird will find Canadian climatic and other conditions to its liking, and increase and multiply here. The "cock of the wood" is the largest member of the grouse family in the Bermuda Islands, and has been introduced there with much success.

Mr. Van der Bellen is looking after the price question, and includes either for farming, the first assistance in the matter of which will be given by the Canadian Government.

Planning Big Musical Event at Winnipeg

Will be World's Largest if Enterprise is Launched

What will probably be the most extensive musical event in the world will be established in Northern Manitoba. American interests with capital amounting to $300,000 have been "cricked" in the province of Saskatchewan by the Canadian Government.

Like Winnipeg with the object of selecting suitable sites upon which options would be secured, the land leased or purchased and the enterprise launched. It has not yet been definitely established that the business will be done on with, but it is decided to go ahead production of many thousands of rat pelts per year would be per hable if a market could be found for the carcasses rat farming is a large scale would be less popular. Rat meat is said to be as good as rabbit, and some profess to have a liking for it, but it is doubtful if consumers of rat meat will ever reach large proportions.

Unfortunately a man's epitaph comes along too late in the game for him to live up to it.

Experimenters Prove Music Played at Milking Time Increased Yield

The astonishing observation that music makes cows and goats give increased quantities of milk is reported by two German physiologists, Drs. Nobert and Koch, says Dr E. E. Free's Week's Science (New York) as follows:

It is not necessary to keep the cows or other animals in a musical environment of the concert room. All that the experimenters did was to arrange that music be played in the stable during the milking. The invariable result was that the animals being milked yielded more milk with music than without it. There is no record of the effect upon what kinds of music; of whether jazz or classical opera possess the highest milk-elicitive properties. The observations was not entirely unexpected, for it has long been believed by sensible students of the way in which milk is produced by the milk-giving animals that new vots stimuli have pronounced effects on the process Although cows are not commonly imagined to possess highly strung nervous systems. It is known that things tending to excite them may interfere seriously with the yield of milk. On the other hand, it is probable that surroundings which calm the nerves and prevent fear or excitement are favorable to milk production. Although Dr. Nobert and Dr. Koch genuine no practical application of their discovery to the dairy industry, it is probable that some enterprising farmer will try the effects of soothing time radio programs or of phonograph comments on his milk-yielding stock.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

PETER AT THE TRANSFIGURATION

Golden Text: "Thou came a voice out of the cloud This is my beloved son, hear to Him Mark 9:7

Lesson Mark 9:2 10, 2 Peter 1:16 18

Devotional Lesson: Isaiah 53:1-12

Explanations and Comments

I. Peter Witnesses the Transfiguration of Jesus Mark 9:2-8. Six days after the events in the incidents of the Caesarea Philippi Jesus went with him his three favorite disciples, Peter, James and John (the three were with him in the mountain under in the daughter of Jairus, the widow of Nain, and on the occasion he raised and anointed him at Bethany). He was transformed in both them blind the disciples knew per- sonal and intimate during that week. Did that mysterious announcement of the Master's coming suffering and death seem to them so utterly inapplicable for Him whom the Lord declared to be Christ that they were even falter- ing in their faith? On the Mount the glory came and then the Jesus that, however the mystery was to be explained, their Master was the person of God. The Transfiguration with its symbolism of glory, and holy, and prophet for robe cards and sunrise.

Jesus was transfigured. The fashion of his countenance was altered, so Luke (Luke 9:29). His face did shine as the sun, says Matthew (Matt. 17:2). It was not a splendor that fell on His face from without, and flashed it up, the glory came from within. Even the face of Moses came after he had been communing with God on the Mount, and after long years in prison (Luke 22:61) Jesus would be visible to Peter and a new light would shine from His face, his whole aspect would be changed. John (1 Peter, in his acute biography speaks of the transfigura- tion with which he and his brother would make the beautiful light that shone in their face to be appeared at the time of newborn when he had been talking with God.

"Take the Transfiguration to be a great lesson in prayer and I hope that more may more it should enter into my life. It is difficult. It will not be accomplished without a strenuous effort to shake ourselves free of the clinging material things, but it is worth far more than all the effort we can make. We do not live as if this world were all, and often as if there were no God, and I believe that the constant habit would alter that, if we would introduce as a larger life. It would and change our christian character but it might change our spirit."

Jersey Cattle and Sugar Beets Make a Good Combination

Sugar beets and Jersey cattle is the combination that W. T. Passey, successful mixed farmer of Magrath, Alberta, looks upon as a better investment than oil stocks. On his 60 acre irrigated farm he has a herd of dozen purebred Jersey cows, three of which are milking and pethes $1.54 of milk and cream into the pail every day. This is the net price as it is called for by the canneries.

A half section of land in the Magrath district has been sold at 60 an acre the highest price so far paid in that area for years. The report from Magrath says that most of the land is in summer fallow, ready for crop ping in the spring.

BALLOON TIRE TREAD

Another Reason why Firestone Tires are . . . . . Better

WHEN Firestone engineers were developing the Balloon Tire they found it necessary to design a tread altogether different from that which is required by High Pressure Tires.

The projections of the cross-and-square tread are small and the rider strips narrow to permit the tread to clung to the road, giving the greatest possible traction. This tough, pliable tread has the resilience and cushion that give thousands of extra miles of service.

This flexible tread must be placed on a flexible carcass. It provide for the extra flexing strains Firestone does the work of the carcass in a rubber solution. By this process, every fiber of every cord is saturated and insulated with rubber, minimizing friction and wear.

Royal Conquerors At Ottawa Show

Prince of Wales and Spanish Prince Are Sending Exhibits

Ottawa Heir to the throne of Great Britain and Spain will be with each other at the world's poultry congress being held here from July 27 to August 4 of this year, if the Prince of Wales presently announced his intention to exhibit his entire flock. Arrangements have been received that H.R.H. the Prince of the Spanish, as soon as the Spanish Ambassador to Canada, Don Jose Quinones de Leon, presented the Spanish exhibits.

The Canadian congress committee, received word from Prof. Sir Arthur Keith, president of the congress, that the Prince of Wales had accepted the invitation to exhibit at Ottawa. Major Keith is the well known anthropologist and author of many books on the subject. He is also president of the Royal Anthropological Institute of Great Britain and Ireland.

The Spanish government will be represented by Don Jose Quinones de Leon, Spanish Ambassador to Canada, who is also a keen poultry fancier. He has been a breeder of Spanish fowls for many years.

The Prince of Wales has been a breeder of Sussex fowls for many years. His flock at Sandringham is one of the finest in England. The Prince has been a regular exhibitor at the Royal Show, and has won many prizes with his birds.

The Spanish government will take charge of the exhibits from Spain. The at harvest time.

He paid high tribute to the men who first settled in this district and built the country into its new well cultivated state. He spoke very highly also of the work being done by the Canadian clubs throughout Canada in helping forward the development of a national consciousness among Canadians, and he congratulated the local club on its splendid showing so far.

The club has now a membership of seventy and all but a few members not times as much with the Canadian General and his party. An informal reception followed the lunch and many townspeople were introduced to their guests.

Lady Willingdon was due back in Edmonton at 5:30 p.m. and left at 9:30. Lord Willingdon left with Lord Rodney for an hour's visit at the latter's farm across the river before leaving for Edmonton, where he was due at 4:30.

On Arbor Day, 1926, forty Russian poplars were planted on Government Memorial avenue. This was also beautified. Friends and members donated twelve dollars and fifty cents, also two trees toward this avenue.

Tags for these have been purchased and placed at an expenditure of seven dollars and fifty cents.

Several members provided native bulbs and spruce for private planting for all the winter.

On Arbor Day, 1927, the association plans to plant Dennis avenue boulevards with Green Ash. The town has generously promised around $75.00 each year for the beautifying of these two avenues.

Talks of a very helpful nature on such subjects as lawns, house plants, gardens, etc., have been given by Mr. Peden and Mr. Rowland of the Provincial Government service.

The association is now starting on its second active year and cordially invites all citizens interested in town improvement to become members.

The thanks of the association are due Mrs. Russell for the hearty cooperation.

Via Canadian Pacific Railway recently there was forwarded to His Holiness the Pope an album of photographs of the Canadian Rockies offered by E. W. Beatty, Chairman and President of the system, following the engagement made by Mr. Beatty with His Holiness when he described the Canadian Rockies to His Holiness in an interview some time ago. A reply has been received by Mr. Peden and Mr. Rowland of the Provincial Government service.

Their Excellencies Make Friends in Banff

On their recent first official tour of the Dominion across to the Pacific Coast, not the least attractive place visited by Viscount Willingdon, Governor-General of Canada, and Lady Willingdon, was Banff, Alberta, in the Canadian Rockies, famous for the beauty of its scenery and the hospitality afforded by the Banff Springs Hotel, one of the most interesting and beautiful buildings of its kind on the North American Continent which is shown lower left.

As a record of their visit the accompanying unusual photographs, were taken by kind permission of Their Excellencies. They show Lord and Lady Willingdon each in a canoe during a tempest; members of Buffalo Ball who spends a day in the Buffalo Park at Banff, another of the great attractions of the town. Forced to his knees, the monster animal, like a survival from some pre-historic period, gnarly and calmly takes his meals from the hands of his distinguished hosts. Another photograph shows Her Excellency feeding a baby buffalo by hand, while yet another gives us Their Excellencies at a point of vantage on the top of one of the corrals at the Banff Park. Lady Willingdon is seated at her ease, but His Lordship has climbed to the very top of the corral and both are enjoying the view from this unusual position. It is safe to assume that Their Excellencies will treasure these photographs as a record of a visit which, although part of an official tour, was not in this case altogether as austere as such tours are apt to be.

Monsters of a Million Years Ago

The majority of tourists who travel across the open plains of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba on the Canadian National Railways, are content to look from the car window and see what they can see, but there are others who are not satisfied with anything so indolent when there is so much to be seen and learned from the rocks and fossils that are to be found in the valleys where the Red Deer and other rivers flow. One of these is Dr. Barnum Brown of the American Museum of Natural History, New York. This is a valley which has been visited by many scientists, and from which many specimens of the dinosaur, the huge, fierce, flesh-eating monster that lived in the days when the Rocky Mountains were being formed, have been taken. Dr. Brown, a herbivorous dinosaur whose remains he discovered in Montana, Pittsburgh, monster eighty-seven feet in length and a carnivorous dinosaur found later and known as Gorgosaurus measuring twenty-seven feet.

The remains of these two groups were not the first to be found in the valley, for the bones of the Trachodon, a duck-billed dinosaur, had been found there by Lawrence M. Lambe, of the Geological Survey of Canada, and in the United States Professor Marsh, of Yale University, had found the remains of the Triceratops, a dinosaur which belonged to the modern crocodile or lizard and for which Professor Marsh created the Triceratops family. The Triceratops was a huge animal, twenty-five feet long, and it is standing guard over the bones of the Trachodon in the picture. It was found later and known as Gorgosaurus measuring twenty-seven feet.

"Don't spend your wits in idle thinking," she challenged him. "What is it?"

He ignored her challenge for a moment while he thrust a cigarette and offering her his platinum case. When he had returned the light to his cigarette he went to the fireplace and dropped the burnt match into it. For another moment he puffed calmly. Then turned to face the girl, who seated back against the table in the center of the room.

"Would you mind telling me what it is, deliberately, "a thing we want to part's general impression of me?" Not an insult, as to my character, please, but an expression of its quality as you regard her as."

"You replied without hesitation. I have always championed you. But I have never been cruelly cruel that I have lied. It hadn't occurred to me. I'd have taken you. As it is, I am afraid I despise you at times, because I know you are dishonest, dishonest with me and with anyone who loves you. If that's the answer you want."

"Not exactly, but it will serve. Suppose I should ask you to become my wife—"

You used to tell me that you might do that some day. I've always had an answer ready. I'd never marry you because I could never love you. I could love you if I wouldn't marry you because, by all the laws of decency you belong to Yvonne whom you allowed to love you before you decided to laugh at her for her pretension that she would be worthy of you."

He examined his cigarette and then drew in its smoke.

"That establishes our position in ward each other," he observed, and was about for another interval "But the situation is that you are going to marry me, or else he's because you will have to."

She waved Her shoulder white hand seen to her throat. She knew he was not talking idly. She had gone through one sort of battle with Kendrick, and, she perhaps, she was at the beginning of another, and, in some unexpected way, a more desperate one. She waited for him to go on.

He threw the cigarette into the fireplace and for the second time he paced the floor. He stopped by Judge and the fire and asked what I am about to say. I'm frightened. I don't want to say it. I wondered why it was given to you I am about to order for you at least a few days more advantage.

I control the quiet of my nerves. I guard its secret and its reason and its purpose. I am the one to know and late made sure concerning the something you haven't known you were making. In every white, in every glance of fire pulse you have refused to follow.

Then my control has been full sense. It is scuffed up by me I despise you at times, because I know you are dishonest, dishonest with me and with anyone who loves you. If that's the answer you want."

The Most Liquid Investment

A SAVINGS Bank Account is not merely an investment. But it is the only investment, yielding a fair rate of interest, that is available for your use at a moment's notice. Sharpsighted men do investments and put the bank account that has been successfully developed. Your investment as cash, yields regular returns in interest. Your investment as a bank account yields convenience, freedom and peace of mind in the fact that is to always ready for other investments the trouble of converting it into cash.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT TO L. B. AUGUSTINE AT ELEVATOR

The community was shocked to hear of the dreadful accident which befell L. B. Augustine on Tuesday afternoon. It is presumed Mr. Augustine was standing or walking upon a board above a grain bin at the United Grain Growers' elevator, of which he is manager, and the board broke, precipitating him into the bin. He fell a distance of thirty-five feet and is thought to have struck at least one corner brace in his fall. He was found by Frank Etherton and conveyed to the Royal Alexandra hospital where he was discovered to have suffered concussion of the brain, badly smashed feet and other injuries. The latest report of his condition is, we are sorry to state, that he is still unconscious and his recovery doubtful.

STOP PRESS NEWS—Mr. Augustine passed away this (Wednesday) afternoon.

THE TRUTH OF TODAY

(Contributed)

FIFTY YEARS AGO beer was five cents a glass and the lunch was free. Eggs were three dozen for a quarter and milk five cents a quart. The butcher gave liver for the cat and steered the kids to Bellegarde. The hired girl was satisfied with $2.00 a week, and did the washing. Women did not powder, paint, smoke, play poker, or do the Charleston. The men wore boots and whiskers, shoved to-bacco, spat on the sidewalks, worked eleven hours a day, and never went on strike. A kerosene lamp and a stereoscope in the parlor were luxuries. No one was operated on for appendicitis; folks lived to a good old age just the same and walked miles. TODAY everybody rides in automobiles or airships; play poker, shoot craps, play the piano with their feet.

MEMORIAL SERVICE HELD ST. JULIEN ANNIVERSARY

Under the auspices of the local branch of the British Empire Service League a memorial service for those who fell in the battle of St. Julien was held Sunday afternoon.

A very fine address was given by Professor E. A. Corbett, and it was most appreciated by all his listeners.

The choir, under the leadership of Mr. Morris, rendered two anthems in splendid style and Mr. Morris contributed a solo, being accompanied on the pipe by Mrs. Morris.

Prayers were offered by Rev. R. B. Lockyer of the Anglican church.

A collection was taken in aid of the League's local relief fund.

Postponed from last week on account of the storm the sale of work, tea and dance arranged by the W. A. of St. George's church took place Monday. The afternoon's programme was very successful but the heavy rain during the early part of the evening very seriously affected the attendance at the dance. Those present had an enjoyable time, good music by the local orchestra, and plenty of good things to eat at the lunch.

On To The North!

The development of Canada is entering in fact has already entered upon a phase under which books, pamphlets or addresses commonly in the population, wealth, and economic strength of the Dominion in all the provinces, with the exception of the Maritimes, the attention of patriotic men and people are turned to the Northland.

The history of Canadian growth during the last half century or two of the twentieth records developments more vast and more lasting, from the economic point of view, than those which followed the opening of the Canadian West and the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway, then came the construction of the Canadian Northern, and finally the projection of the National Transcontinental and Grand Trunk Pacific across the continent. Practically all traffic passed east and west, and all the settlement naturally followed a long roundabout course, was frequently necessary in order to travel from one place to another only a comparatively short distance again on a north and south line.

As a result of this early and quite natural programme of development Canada became as a country, as far as settlement and trade was concerned, a narrow strip stretching all the way from the Atlantic to the Pacific, but consisting of fewer people than are to be found in European countries which in area are smaller than Canadian provinces. Canada had begun to build a continent, which would be for a while a national asset because of the great distances separating the people and leading to a certain diversity of interests, but not knowledge of the needs and problems of the different sections. Maritimes, Ontario and Quebec, the Prairie West, the Pacific slope, a remote interior rather than a national expanse. Unquestionably existed the possibility of this kind forced snapping at some point.

It is therefore a matter of national satisfaction that Canada is now on the threshold of its second great development period, a development which will give the Dominion what it has hitherto lacked, depth as well as length. From all quarters government, financial, manufacturing, railway and Canadian opinion has for some time been directed to the north. The completion of the railway systems, the transformation in the prospect, and hardly a week passes that some new enterprise involving northern development is not reported.

Its degree at most, financed by Canadian, British and United States capital and including an investment of three hundred millions dollars, are under way in Quebec which will result in the establishment of great industrial plants, the employment of tens of thousands, or even, the creation of new cities and towns, and an economic expansion in the north of the Dominion. These are practically all to the north or present settled areas.

In Ontario, the Provincial Government has decided to push some northern railway through to James Bay, while to complement both and now to assist some of Northern Ontario's unprecedented activity in prospecting and development is in progress.

Manitoba has awakened to the potentialities of its vast northern territory, and, as in Ontario and Quebec, the eyes and energies of the people are being focussed on mineral and water power development there, with all that this must mean in industrial expansion. The business men of Winnipeg realize they can no longer depend for future growth upon being simply a wholesale and distributing centre for the west.

The age-old demand as to Prairie Wheat for an outlet on Hudson Bay is at last being met by aggressive action and the last section to be built will before many months be completed. The latest discoveries in aviation and its application are being employed to expedite this work. Airplanes have for weeks been carrying men and supplies from the end of steel to Churchill, other airplanes will patrol the Hudson Straits, airplanes are being employed in survey work in northern Saskatchewan, as well as in northern Ontario. An important branch lines of railway are to be built in northern Saskatchewan to connect existing railways with the road to the Bay, while the Saskatchewan Government has appointed a commission to make expert inquiry into the whole subject of power development within the Province.

Alberta has push-d railways well into the north of that Province and it is now known there exists a wealth of oil, mineral and other resources in those northern stretches, as well as vast tracts of fertile land suitable for agriculture. Investigation is now to be made of the most suitable route for a railway from northern Alberta through British Columbia to the Pacific coast.

VERY HARD LARGE PIMPLES
Spread Over Face and Hands. Cuticura Heals.
"My trouble began with a few pimples on my face and hands and soon spread all over them. The pimples were very hard, large and red, and festered and scaled over. They itched and burned so that I scratched them, which caused irregular sores. The sores discharged a watery fluid and my hands so badly scaled and scabbed in my work. I suffered much misery.
"A friend advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment as I purchased them, and in about two months I was entirely healed." (Signed) Miss Jessie Dunbarton, 141 Simcoe St., Sherwood, Ont.

Claims Television Has Seemed Ocean

Now York-London Demotration Promised by Inventor

John L. Baird, young Britain in ventor, claims to have established television between London and New York. He proposes to give a wireless telephone television demonstration between London and a New York city on the Atlantic liner Majestic since shortly. A television set, he has been built for the purpose.

Mr. Baird said that for several weeks he carried on experimental between his station at London and a station twenty-five miles smaller New York. A motor antenna is being installed in America by means of which Mr. Baird says it will be possible to demonstrate the portability of his invention. If these tests are successful, Television, Limited, the company of which he is technical director, will place a Television receiving set on the market at a cost of $150.

Widespread interest was aroused in London by the successful television experiments between New York and Washington. Although many experiments in television have been made in Britain, engineers at the General Post Office are not cooperating with the scientists on both sides of the Atlantic who are trying to bring this new development within reach of the public. A post office official, questioned on the subject, replied, "There is much to be done before the post office takes on a job of the service of "television."

The Changing West

Buchanan, publisher of the Lethbridge Herald, addressed the Canada Young Men's Board of Trade recently on "The Changing West," pointing out the transformation in progress from straight grain growing to mixed farming, with industrial centres developing, all tending to broaden the economic and labor basis of the West.

The development of radio in five days now covers the entire country. More than 200,000 receiving sets are in use.

IS NOT POSSIBLE NOW TO EQUALIZE FREIGHT RATES

...ronto After sitting a whole week two long sessions and occupying one day in special freight matters it is quite to the Board as Railway Commissioners is drawing to a close in the matter is expected to be completed this week

Isaac Pitblado, K.C. the last counsel left to board for the purposes of argument, has a long one to conclude his address and W. N. Tilley, K.C. Toronto, at once opposed the idea the railways have completed all the charges which had occurred since the first important argument on freight rates was before the board in 1911. Important changes had occurred in transportation conditions in those days, there was not many motor vehicles and railways practically a creation of the past. Mr. Tilley argued, so that all aspects of the matter might be considered and reasons to refuse than any person interested can be heard and the argument of the board, which it is thought would be of the greatest importance to all concerned in the all ways, the provinces and the municipalities as a whole.

Mr Pitblado dealt at some length with the matter of equalization. He declared it was impossible to make an impossible task. Any attempt to adjust the present rates situation would be to create a new set of rates equal rate for equal mileage in every part of the country would mean chaos and disaster to the commerce of the country.

It was for many years past he declared, to meet local competition which would not otherwise exist in all sections of the country, the rail companies, possibly, had, to a certain extent, been forced to make rates for the point of destination on certain commodities which were not justified by the distance.

Two days after the raid the Soviet delegation was presented with a note demanding its recall and in a memorandum delivered to the Chinese charge d'affaires the Soviet made a number of demands. The memorandum issued to the public by the police, set out that the Soviet delegation had arrested in the raid, and the return of all documents seized, together with all money, personal property, home-held goods and bonds taken by the police.

Russian Trade

Improvement in Agriculture and Industries is Reported

Montreal —A big British concern engaged in shipbuilding has approached the chief executive of the Province of Quebec, Premier Taschereau, with a proposition for a subsidy of $1,000,000 for the construction of a shipbuilding plant in the province, according to reliable information received here. The plant would employ 2,000 men, it is said, and would be established at Sorel.

Premier Taschereau, when approached by The Gazette, declined to make any statement on the matter.

"During the four months of the present fiscal year, beginning October, 1926, export trade of the U.S.S.R. reached $125,541,000, leaving a favorable trade balance of nearly $15,000,000. Trading was carried on principally with eastern countries. The Soviet representative declared the population of Russia was now 114,485,000 and statistics showed a general improvement in agriculture and industries since the 1921 period of depression.

GARDEN TIME

Poets an philosophers tell of the satisfaction obtained from cultivation of flower and vegetable gardens, but the practice is not as general as could be wished. In many places there is much less gardening than there was some years ago. People are busy with many things they want to do with their spare time.

In many cities and towns, however, the garden movement has been pushed on a community program. People have been urged, in a systematic way, to decorate their grounds with handsome shrubbery and flowers, and some of these campaigns have developed an amazing amount of this beautification.

Bush towns become noted, and every autumn of time put in on these flower beds is no doubt paid for in the higher value of real estate that is established in such a town.

But the pride in the matter that can best be called upon to promote gardening interest. People will usually do what their neighbors do. If you surrounds one or two industrious families on a street to spend a little more time and money, the majority of their neighbors would, within a year or two, fall into line and do the same thing.

As to insect vegetables, the advantage of the backyard garden is also apparent. Many people who have to buy their vegetables pay high prices. The children of the family do not have enough space in the home lands, and it is often too much to have some regular labor in a garden and they could well do a good deal of its work. But the old fable about the value of such labor unless they value are willing to do some stunts with spade and hoe.

ANNUAL MEETING OF UNION TENNIS CLUB

A general meeting of the Union tennis club was held in the town hall last Thursday. Although all members had been personally notified the attendance was small. The minutes of the last meeting and the financial statement for the season of 1926 were read and approved. In view of the somewhat unsatisfactory financial condition of the club and after a thorough review of the whole situation, it was decided to curtail expenses to the absolute minimum for the present, to rent only the Anglican tennis court and to pay off all the debts carried over from last season as soon as funds are available. The membership fees remain the same as last year, namely, $5.00 for gentlemen and $3.00 for ladies. The juniors will organize their own club so that the membership of this club will be available for members only. The old system of booking was re-introduced and the members present pledged themselves to do a great deal of the preliminary work of preparing

CITIZENS PAY RESPECTS TO LATE L. B. AUGUSTINE

The funeral of the late Mr. L. B. Augustine was held from First United church, Fort Saskatchewan, on Monday, May 2, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The service was conducted by the Rev. C. E. A. Pocock, who was assisted by the Rev. E. J. Hodgins and the Rev. M. S. Kerr, of Vermilion. The congregation, led by the choir, sang some selections which were favorites of the deceased, including the 23rd Psalm and "Onward the Hills Around do I lift up my longing eyes."

The church could not accommodate the people who gathered, notwithstanding the fact that the country roads were almost impassable. One was made to feel that all were sharing a common and very real sorrow. Mr. Augustine's business integrity and conscientious conduct had made for him a wide circle of friends who were greatly shocked by his tragic death. Their sympathetic interest expressed itself in many ways, but especially in the wealth of beautiful flowers which banked the whole front of the church. He loved flowers, and

One of Canada's Assets

Ever since it was founded the railways have been interested in all things pertaining to the development and prosperity of Canada, whether the whole is from a financial, commercial or the more sentimental one to have its attractions and beauties and dollars be known and appreciated by the people of the Dominion and the world.

It is especially essential that it be to the interests of a country to see that its export of its natural products is increased, that trade extended to foreign and distant parts of the world, and that the people of that country should know and appreciate those products. Canada, better than any other country, stands to profit by exports, while on the other hand, it has to import but few articles. It is to the interest of Canada, therefore, that its products be placed in the markets of the world, and that the people of Canada should know and appreciate those products.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company has always been interested in the development of Canada, and has done much to encourage immigration to the country, and to make known its resources and possibilities. It has published many booklets and pamphlets descriptive of the country, and has distributed them broadcast throughout the world. It has also established agencies in the principal cities of the world, and has employed agents to travel in all parts of the world, and to distribute literature and to answer inquiries.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company has also established a system of colonization, and has settled many thousands of people on its lands in the Canadian West. It has also established a system of irrigation, and has reclaimed many thousands of acres of land which were formerly arid and worthless. It has also established a system of forestry, and has planted many millions of trees. It has also established a system of game preservation, and has protected the wild animals and birds of the country. It has also established a system of fish culture, and has stocked the lakes and streams with fish. It has also established a system of mining, and has developed the mineral resources of the country. It has also established a system of manufacturing, and has built many factories and mills. It has also established a system of banking, and has established many banks and trust companies. It has also established a system of insurance, and has established many insurance companies. It has also established a system of transportation, and has established many steamship lines and railways. It has also established a system of communication, and has established many telegraph and telephone lines. It has also established a system of publicity, and has published many books and pamphlets and periodicals. It has also established a system of education, and has established many schools and colleges. It has also established a system of religion, and has established many churches and missions. It has also established a system of charity, and has established many hospitals and asylums. It has also established a system of justice, and has established many courts and prisons. It has also established a system of government, and has established many municipalities and provinces. It has also established a system of defence, and has established many forts and garrisons. It has also established a system of peace, and has established many treaties and alliances. It has also established a system of prosperity, and has established many industries and enterprises. It has also established a system of happiness, and has established many homes and families. It has also established a system of everything that is good and desirable, and has established many things that are not.

Craftsmen Fete Machinery Will Run Hand Cutting Trade

Influential labour pressure is said to be certain against over the adoption of machine methods to replace the process of cutting by hand which has been the source of livelihood of thousands of families.

Feeling amongst members of the hand-cutting trade against machine competition is said to be almost unanimous. Many attempts have been made to introduce machine methods, but the public has refused to buy them. The machine-cut glass is not as good as the hand-cut glass, and the public knows it. Canadian Farmer Tells His Experience

"Lee" Bench, widely known Ontario farmer, and a sick man for 20 years, suffered daily, only half alive. Now strong, robust, vigorous, credits new found health to Tanlac

Though reputed almost a confirmed invalid, Mr. Bench, a well known farmer living in the Township of Bexley, near Lindsay, Ont., has now regained his health to such an extent that he is able to do his own farm work, and is looking forward to many years of good health. Mr. Bench, in relating his experience recently, said:

"For twenty years I suffered from indigestion, and the last few years it became so bad I was almost a confirmed invalid. I could eat only certain foods, and even these caused me much distress. Sour risings, belching of gas, and a feeling of fullness after meals were my constant companions. I suffered from dizzy spells, and frequently had to go to bed. I was so weak and nervous that I could not do my farm work, and I was a burden to myself and to my family. I had no appetite, and what I did eat did me no good. I was all run down in health, and had become discouraged. I had spent much money for medicines, but they did me no good. I was about ready to give up in despair when I decided to try Tanlac. I had heard so much about it that I thought I would give it a trial. I am glad I did so, for it has done me more good than all the other medicines I have ever taken. I am now feeling fine, and I enjoy my meals. I can eat anything I want, and it does me good. I sleep well, and feel strong and vigorous. I have gained in weight, and am now a well man. I am glad to recommend Tanlac to my friends, for I know it will do them good."

Tanlac is a good tonic for nothing else but to feed up and build new blood and new flesh cells. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy you or money refunded. Tanlac is sold in Fort Saskatchewan by Hamilton's Drug Store.

MAKE CARE OF BABIES EASIER

Research in diseases and especial nutrition are responsible for much of the prevalence of babies and young children. Where the baby formerly was irritable the mother started out to learn the cause and the infant to correct the trouble, for in the majority of cases these irritations sought during the child into an upset digestion. It was found by specific laxative that will awaken the stomach and regulate the bowels. Such a remedy is found in Baby-Tone Tablets. They are easy to take and entirely free from opiates and narcotics. Mrs. Jos. Tanneghaust, Rio, Sophie, Que., writes—"I would like all mothers to know that I feel there is no other medicine to equal Baby-Tone Tablets. I always keep a box in the house and my little ones are never ill—I restore no little ones to health." New Carillon Of Bells At Ottawa Said To Be Largest Of Its Kind In The World

The carillon of 53 bells built in the bell foundry in Croydon for the Canadian Houses of Parliament at Ottawa, is the largest of its kind in the world. It is practically a silent carillon to the fine bells installed by the same firm, Gillett and Johnston, in the Park Avenue Baptist church, New York, but whereas the New York Bourdon bell weighs 3½ tons, the Ottawa Bourdon weighs ten tons. The 53 bells extend through four and a half chromatic octaves from the Bourdon, low "B" to the 14-pound top treble, high "A."

Every bell is in tune with itself—that is, it has been tuned accurately on the five basic harmonic principles. The whole carillon has also been carefully tuned to the scale of equal temperament, so that the performer can modulate from any key to any other without offending the ear. Before Bach invented the "scale of equal temperament" over 200 years ago, it was impossible to attain this result in ordinary music, and until the last few years this refinement was unknown to the bell world.

The carillon also has been tuned absolutely to international pitch, which is in general use for ordinary musical instruments and modern concert practice in both hemispheres.

The total weight of the bells is 65 tons and the weight of the steel framework and fitting is about 22 tons.

The inscription on the Bourdon bell is in English on one side and in French on the other; and round the top of the bell a continuous design of maple leaves has been moulded. At the special request of the Canadian Government, the wording of this inscription has not yet been divulged.

The world's record was achieved in the time taken to construct the carillon from the date when all the details were settled all 53 bells with the necessary machinery have been finished in 18 months.

The 10-ton Bourdon bell will be the second largest individual bell in Canada and the third largest on the American continent.

As elaborate "practice clavier" is being supplied with tuned bars and resonators and having a keyboard exactly similar to that of the carillon clavier (or console) so that the carillonneur can learn fresh pieces without annoying the neighbors. A more important use of the "practice clavier" is that it is capable of giving the rudiments of playing and acquire a certain amount of proficiency — particularly in pedal work — before playing on the lower instrument is permitted.

The clock mechanism is divided into three separate units, the "going" train driving the hands of the four 15 ft. 9 in. diameter clock faces, while the "striking train" and "quarter train" are placed 50 feet below, under the bells. The old-fashioned clock weights are dispensed with and in their place powerful electric motors lift and release the enormous clock hammers. The carillon will be shipped to Canada shortly, so as to be inaugurated on Dominion Day, July 1st. The Victory Tower is possibly the finest piece in existence for the purpose of carillon music.

Sodium Sulphate

In Canada sodium sulphate, in the form of salt cake, finds its largest use in the pulp and paper industry, and is also employed in the metallurgical, glass, dye, textile, and other industries. Eighty-three occurrences of natural deposits of sodium sulphate have been located in Western Canada and an investigation of 21 of them by the Dominion Department of Mines shows the presence of over 115,000,000 tons of hydrous salts, mainly sodium sulphate.

Many Uses of Wood

Demand for Wood Now Greater Than Any Period in World's History

In spite of the increasing use of substitutes for wood the people of the world now use more than a cubic foot of that material every week as at the present time. The modern steel ocean passenger ship has much more wood in its decks and fittings than would be a built an entire wooden ship of sixty years ago. And it was in all seriousness and without any idea of a pun on words that a noted Canadian conservationist pointed out recently that in spite of all modern inventions man is still surrounded by wood in every stage of his progress from the cradle to the grave.

Demand for Poultry

During one week in April, orders for over 75,000 white Leghorn pullets, from six to ten old up, had to be refused by hatcheries in Southern British Columbia on account of shortage of supply. Hatchings this season were larger than ever. Some breeders have given notice that orders for chicks for next season must be placed at once to ensure delivery.

Canada's exports of paper stock, those of any other country in the world, and in the matter of newsprint paper her exports are probably greater than those of the rest of the world combined.

Fish to Value of $3,838,167 Caught in Lakes and Rivers of Western Canada in 1928

About 90 per cent. of the $3,838,16, worth of fish caught in 1928 in the fresh waters of the lakes of the Canadian Prairie Provinces — Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta — found a ready market in New York, Chicago, Buffalo, Detroit, and other American cities.

The market value of fish caught in the three Prairie Provinces shows an increase in value of $1,161,847 compared with the value in 1925 White fish, pickerel and pike were the principal kinds of fish exported to American markets, the first named being most in demand. Last year 13,000 pounds of royal sturgeon from which comes the delectable and expensive caviar (the market price of which is about $1 per pound), a favorite dish with many epicureans, were caught in Manitoba.

Western Canada is chiefly famous as a great wheat producing and mixed farming country, and yet the fisheries industry is known as one of the important industries of the province are the sources of supply. Alberta commercial fisheries are to be found mainly in the lakes north of Edmonton.

Ploughing Fete Under As a Green Manure

Results in a Lowered Yield of Wheat for Following Season

The ploughing under of peas as a green manure has resulted in a lowered yield of wheat than the following season as compared with the bare fallow, in experiments conducted at the Brandon, Manitoba, Experimental Farm. Although the ploughing under of the peas may increase the nitrogen content of the soil, this is more than counterbalanced by the loss of moisture involved. The latter the green peas are ploughed under the greater is the amount of water dissipated. The experiments were were made on a rich loamy clay soil.

Jasper National Park

Jasper national park in Alberta, is an area of 1,000 square miles. It is one of the largest "playgrounds" in the world. A part of the reserve to the north of the railway will be left unexplored, but the park is being rapidly opened up by the construction of trails and highways

Visiting Minister: Ah, my minor cannie friend, this world is full o' worries, sir; it's the verdicts

Just now a great deal is being heard about Canada's forest resources, their conservation and their destruction. "Save the Forest" campaigns are being held throughout Canada during the week April 24-30, and the Federal and Provincial governments, Organized Clubs, Pulp and Paper Associations, Schools, Churches, Radio Stations and Theatres are co-operating in emphasizing the necessity of preventing forest fires and conserving our Canadian forest resources.

The potential value of the forests as a very great asset is being emphatically stressed, but the value of the forest as a source of employment affords to all vitally and particularly, says the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, depending to the latest census of the province there are nearly 120,000 people employed in the wood and paper industries of Canada and 60,000 in the logging industry. In the construction industry wood plays such an important and essential part, another 150,000 are employed. Transportation services, which owe much to forests, are also extensive, which constitute one of their largest and most consistent sources of revenue afford employment to nearly one quarter million persons, and so on. In fact almost every industry, and excluding agriculture itself, directly or indirectly relies for necessary equipment and supplies on the forests.

In connection with trapping, hunting and fishing the value of the forest is of first importance, for if the forests were destroyed, the precious animals would rapidly become non existent. The beauty of the forests, lakes and mountains, the abundance of game and fish, attracts many visitors and provides health and pleasure, also a large annual revenue to Canadians.

Forests grow, mature, deteriorate and decay and there is a time element of maturity nothing is to be gained by postponing its cutting. When cutting the mature tree, however, the protection of the young trees and seedling for its existence must be observed. The small trees of today are our forests of the future.

One well known forest authority has suggested that in those districts where timber rights are granted, the average annual growth per acre be ascertained and only the larger trees, to an extent not exceeding the annual growth of timber as a whole per acre, be cut. The forests would be growing in value year by year if this plan were followed.

The planting of trees and shrubs along highways is also becoming data for windbreaks will, as the practice increases, become a means of increasing the wood supply materially and in the course of years, may build up a valuable source of timber supplies.

Date of Ploughing Summer-Fallow

Early Ploughing Appears to Give Better Results

In experiments conducted at the Experimental Stations, Experimental Farms, Dominion of Agriculture, summer fallow has varied inversely with the intensity of ploughing the fallow. Ploughing on May 15 gave better results than ploughing on June 15, and ploughing on July 15 decreased the yield still further. Besides, the July ploughing not controlled annual weeds. They grow unmolested until the time of ploughing and thus use up a great deal of valuable moisture.

Government Will Be Popular

The Government has ordered a national census on April 24, and has simultaneously published a decree providing imprisonment and fines for subjects giving false data. The only exception to the decree against falsifying is in the case of women who declare themselves younger than they actually are. No fine or imprisonment term will be levied upon them.

They have PRODUCED something, in contradistinction to the vast majority of those who, feature in the news who have only destroyed something, whether it be morals or lives. They are the champions of the various competitions encouraged by the Western Canada Livestock Union with the object of the improvement of live-stock and in which numerous Boys' and Girls' Pig Clubs have taken part. They have won handsome trophies for their feats, awarded by the Canadian Pacific Railway, and in addition were the guests of honor of the railway at the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto recently held. Bill would be content with one in contrast with a dozen and take no second for granted. Joanna was content with Bill ... Joanna was content and there was no more to it ... it was a good solid comfortable feeling.

I'm a plain sort of fellow, and I'm a plain sort of fellow called Bill. Bill hated the complex conversation he saw in Joanna's eyes and thought nothing of it. Misunderstanding of one another is such hard work and the result so half essential comes back to be half painful. Intense mental and physical concentration Brandon has shown proves his pain was. He talked the man to the couch.

"I'm not the environment in the little shack, in the mist but he'll be used between Bill labouring breathing. Every person has his rubber ... every rock vanishes I'm a rock ... son to believe. That will be none the better for Mrs. Sparkes ... I'm not known as it, it exists ... but they played their parts tonight in a great safe state."

Meanwhile Joanna, her wrap settled once again her slim hand gripped to the wheel of the car, sat beside her about the narrow road. When she reminded a time ... she thought of the village of La Turbie with its points of light shone up the Mediterranean over the sea, the lighthouse at the top of Cap Martin ... and she was away over at the night. The sea was falling below, the threat of down Beyond La Turbie the country, although chaotic was visible. The lamps along the road homeward were discernible.

The thought of Kenilworth, still cuddled with the other nurse in the hidden barn at the bandits, bothered her. Where she was absent no one ... and she was ... and she was ... and she was ballons oats, Liberty and Laurel.

As a farmers' standard feed oat nothing has been found better than Banner. The 1926 crop has pushed it to the top of the eight-year average colmun with 86 bushels 13 pounds per acre, closely followed by Victory with 86 bushels 18 pounds; Ligowo 79 bushels 21 pounds; Abundance 76 bushels 37 pounds; Daubeney 67 bush. 31 pounds; and Liberty 59 bushels 38 pounds, equivalent to 72 bushels 21 pounds of ordinary oats carrying thirty per cent hull.

Victory practically ties with Banner in yield and is a much superior exhibition oat, more attractive also in the elevator. It averages 2.6 days later in a seven-year comparison. It may be, if smutting, a little more inclined to lodge.

In 1926, Banner was the only one of eight medium-to-late oats to stand up well. Its advantage on this score was plain in both the ranges. Another point in favor is that it is a recommend of seed. It may be dwarfed by a seeding that would be favorable to Abundance. Two and a half or three bushels of good seed is plenty.

For general use one makes no mistake on either Banner or Victory.

The tennis court of the Fort Saskatchewan Union tennis club was officially opened on Monday afternoon. A series of matches between teams chosen by the president, Mrs. Harper, and the vice-president, Mrs. Collinson, were played off during the afternoon and evening resulting in an easy victory for the vice-president's ransome and gladiators.

BORN

LATIMER—To Mr. and Mrs. Norman Latimer, Fort Saskatchewan, at the local hospital on Tuesday, May 10, a son, James Thomas.

OBITUARY

An old timer of the Ross Creek district has passed away in the person of Mrs. J. Van Buskirk.

At the time of her death she was residing with her daughter-in-law in Seattle, Wash.

Mrs. Van Buskirk was born in New York State in 1854, moving to Eastern Nebraska in 1876. Mr. and Mrs. Van Buskirk and family moved to Ross Creek, Alberta, in 1892, Mr. Van Buskirk engaging in ranching and was also the first postmaster in the district.

Mrs. Van Buskirk was one of those kind pioneer mothers whose home was always open to the new settlers. There were no railroads in those days and many a weary freighter found a welcome in her home.

She was a true pioneer, passing through many hardships always encountered in a new country, notwithstanding which she lived to the good old age of 83 years. She leaves to mourn her loss six sons and two daughters, William Van Buskirk, well known in this province as a railroad contractor, Frank, now living in Wisconsin, U.S.A., Seymour, Byron and Mrs. J. H. Lane of Nebraska, Bob, Grover and Mrs. Conroy at Ross Creek, Alberta.

Funeral services were held at the home of Mrs. Conroy on Tuesday, May 3rd, when a large number of friends gathered to pay their last respects to a good mother of the early days. She was laid to rest beside her husband in the Ross Creek cemetery.

The death occurred at Good Hope on Saturday, May 7, of Mrs. Katherine Reid, aged 75 years, widow of the late Mr. Robert Reid.

The funeral took place at the Good Hope cemetery on Monday, May 9, Rev. Mr. Stark of Edmonton officiating.

Mrs. Reid leaves to mourn her loss four sons and four daughters: Will and Isaac, Edmonton, Ernest, Good Hope, Frank, of Freedom, Alberta; Mrs. R. Wark and Mrs. J. Sheddon, Edmonton, Mrs Murdock, of Stewart, B.C., and Mrs. H. Johnston, of Good Hope.

THE NECESSITY OF PROVIDING FRESH MIL FOR CHICKS

Poultry production in Canada has been in the past almost entirely a general farm proposition.

Under such conditions little attention was paid to the changing of the rearing ground for the chicks, as it was seldom that any ground was ever stocked.

Even under the old order of things, "poultry sick" land was occasionally referred to, and backyard poultrymen had at times to give up the keeping of chickens for a time, in order to clean up their yards by the growing of garden crops.

It was not however until specialized poultry farming became more general and the keeping of poultry by intensive methods became common that the necessity for the yearly changing of the rearing ground became generally recognized.

It has long been known that chicks placed on new land, that is, land over which poultry had not previously been running would out-grow those raised on previously used land.

But the wonderful development of the "day old" chick business and the shipping of stock from one part of the country to the other, to say nothing of the tremendous importations from the United States, has made the spread of diseases and internal parasites inevitable. To combat diseases and especially the spreading of internal parasites, a yearly changing of the rearing ground is essential.

The sooner farmers and especially those who are specializing in poultry farming realize the necessity for giving poultry a place in the regular crop rotation, the sooner will these troubles be under control.

Geo. Robertson,
Central Experimental Farm,
Ottawa, Ontario.

The C.G.I.T. girls will be in charge of the service in First United church on Sunday evening, May 15.

HORTICULTURAL ASSN. PLANTS MORE TREES

Members of the Horticultural association rivalled the beavers for industry on Monday when they planted some 50 more trees on the avenue and for a distance of four blocks. Of those planted last year some were destroyed or damaged during the winter and these were replaced, eighty-one trees in all being planted.

The town hall has also been improved in appearance by the transplanting of trees and it is once more requested that the citizens of the town, young or old, wise or otherwise, refrain from interfering with the growth of these trees. They have cost both money and labor; the work has been done by a few for the benefit of all.

The school children observed Arbor day by planting six trees, one for each room, in the school grounds. This was done under the direction of Dr. Turner, who made use of the opportunity to give the children an object lesson on the planting of trees.

Blue Sky Laws Badly Needed

With better times now prevailing, and business expanding in all directions work plentiful and wages good, high pressure salesmen of stock in all manner of companies are again ready to prey upon the unwary. Some of the promotions being before people who have a few dollars to invest are sound enough, others are speculative to a degree, while the probabilities that any money invested will be lost, or at least, will not be productive of dividends for a long time to come. The more glaring the prospectus the more likely are the unwary investors, the greater the possibility that this investment is a decidedly risky one in fact, not an investment at all.

Unfortunately it is an extremely difficult matter for anybody but an expert, or those who make it their business to keep fully informed, to distinguish between the good and the bad of the stock selling propositions presented to the general public. The only safe course to follow before making investments is not, such to be among a number of some reputable financial institution. It is better to be safe than sorry.

It is furthermore undoubtedly that the company laws of Canada do not provide adequate protection of the public against those professional promoters of questionable stocks and so-called securities. Canada has reasons to be proud of its general code of laws, but in this one respect the business of Parliament has been sadly neglectful. So they in that it has not provided safeguards against the people of Canada being victimized by persons and corporations offering questionable stock for sale to the unsuspecting public.

Some provincial governments have endeavored to protect their people only to have their best efforts largely defeated because of the refusal of the Dominion authorities to supplement these efforts. As a result thousands of Canadians every year are robbed of millions of hard earned savings.

For example, some years ago the Saskatchewan Legislature passed an act prohibiting the sale of stocks at any kind within the Province unless the company selling the same first submitted their proposals to the Local Government board and obtained the approval of that Board and its consent to the stock being offered for public subscription. Certain companies incorporated under Dominion charters claimed the right of the Province to so restrict their stock selling activities, and, upon an appeal to the courts, the Saskatchewan law was declared invalid in so far as companies incorporated at Ottawa are concerned. The situation, therefore, is that any company holding a provincial charter and whose stock the Saskatchewan Local Government Board will not permit being offered for sale, has only to obtain Dominion incorporation at Ottawa to defy the Saskatchewan Legislature and sell any kind of stock it likes, gang or bust.

It will be recalled that much the same situation existed when the Province first adopted prohibitory liquor laws. The Provinces could and did prohibit the retail sale of liquor, but they were powerless to stop its manufacture within their boundaries, and small provision to prevent it being brought into the province from other provinces or foreign countries, because this would be to interfere with trade and commerce which come solely within Federal jurisdiction. Public opinion in the Province was aroused that the Dominion authorities were forced to here before it, with the result that the law was amended to provide that where a Province adopted prohibition it became unlawful under Dominion law to ship liquor into that Province.

There is need for a similar enactment in relation to Company incorporation. All that is needed is a very simple amendment by the Parliament of Canada to the effect that, where any Province has adopted legislation for the sale of stock in any company unless the same has first been approved by Provincial authority, such law shall be applicable to a Company incorporated under Dominion charter in so far as that province is concerned.

To the average citizen there would appear to be no insurmountable difficulty in the passage of such a simple and reasonable amendment. In fact the average citizen would imagine that the Dominion Government would be just as anxious as Provincial Governments to prevent their people from being victimized by unscrupulous company promoters and stock salesmen. The amazing thing is that, notwithstanding pressure from Provincial Governments, representations from reputable business organizations, strong editorial appeals by financial and other papers, the Ottawa Government declines to do anything, has shown a degree of minister at Ottawa to stubbornly block all efforts made to provide ample safeguards to protect Canadian citizens.

Representations have for some months past been made to the Provincial Government respecting the operations of the Home Bank promoters' stock selling concerns, and prosecuting against what amounts to legalized robbery, but the Provincial authorities can do is to admit they are powerless, because the Company in question operates under a Dominion charter.

And within recent weeks this very Company has been shown up by reputable financial journals as having secured over $2,000,000 from Canadian citizens, of which it considerably more than $1,000,000 went into the pocket of a subsidiary company as "commission" for selling the stock. In fact, the parent manufacturing company has less than one dollar to show for every two dollars invested by the public. Not only so but the Company has never declared a dividend, and for every dollar's worth of goods it has manufactured and sold it has cost the Company five dollars to make the sale. Yet this Company is still being permitted to sell stock throughout Canada and is doing so in unsuspecting people on the strength of very promises of big dividends to come.

It is high time that a certain cabinet minister at Ottawa freed himself from the influence of a reactionary and aristocratic dopery hood and drafted legislation to be presented to Parliament at its next session upholding and supporting the Provinces in their efforts to put an end to this stock gambling and legalized robbery, which today is a blot on the fair name of Canada.

Hudson's Straits Air Survey To Undertake Hazardous Work In Northern Waters This Summer

The Hudson's Straits air survey expedition will set out from Halifax on board the Canadian government ship Stanley, early in July, according to information from Ottawa.

For the following fifteen months the Royal Canadian Air Force detachment will be engaged upon one of the most intensive and hazardous flying jobs ever undertaken in the North, it is stated. The flights across the Pole were brilliant feats, but they were in the nature of short dashes, involving some hours of endurance, but the Royal Canadian Air Force work will require fifteen months of day to day flying under all kinds of Arctic weather conditions for the purpose of observing fog and ice conditions.

During the early summer six Fox Moth machines will be put through severe tests and controlled for the work in the North. Nearly fifty oils cers and men under Flight Lieutenant Lawrence will be engaged on the work.

The planes, along with a vast amount of material including all food and clothing, fuel and building materials, will be packed on board the Stanley. The expedition will not be broken into three detachments upon the arrival at the straits. One depot, with twenty men in charge, and two planes will be established on Nottingham Island, which is in the centre of the western end of the straits. Another with a similar establishment will operate from Port Burwell, on the northern tip of Labrador, while the headquarters station will be at Lake Harbor, on Baffin Island, about halfway through the straits.

Powerful wireless equipment will be taken north and it is expected that the expedition will be in almost daily touch with the Air Force headquarters in Ottawa.

The navigation part of the survey will be under the direction of the Department of Marine and Fisheries and it is quite possible that Alex Johnston, deputy minister of the department, may go north on board the Stanley in July. The Stanley, which is now being reconditioned, will not stay in the straits throughout the winter, but will return south late in the autumn.

Parliament at the last session approved a vote of $500,000 for the survey, but sufficient estimates for the total cost at nearer a million dollars. It is pointed out, however, that at the conclusion of the work there will be valuable assets, including the air force will have the equipment and the Department of Marine will have the steamship Stanley, which has been out of use for some time past.

The Air Force report will be made to the Government and upon the results of its findings of ice and fog conditions in the straits depends much of the future possibilities of the Hudson's Bay Railway. At the other end of the Hudson's Bay route steamers will be kept busy during this summer. A private flying company has been taking in men and equipment during the present and will attempt to fly from Montreal to Port Nelson and Fort Churchill and before the end of the summer Lieut.-Col. Charles A. Lindbergh may look over the terminal possibilities himself by seaplane.

The Air Force expedition is quite separate from the annual trip of the Northwest Territories' officials. This voyage will be carried on as usual, taking medical police and scientists in and out of the Arctic.

Alfalfa Seed For Denmark

Two Carloads of Seed From Alberta Shipped to Danmark Growers

The sale of Grimm's alfalfa seed grown in the Brooks district, and shipped to Denmark is claimed as another "feather" in Alberta's cap. For some time past, experiments have been carried on in Denmark with this particular seed. So successful have been the tests that Danish growers purchased two carloads. The Danish growers would have taken twice the amount had it been available, but owing to United States growers placing large orders, the local demand was left with but a very few acres with the demand. Growers of Grimm alfalfa seed have been paid $40 an acre clear for their product.

B.C. Has Advantage in Dairying

Stock Can be Pastured Practically All of the Year

The prediction has been made by Dr. G. C. Creelman, former president of the Ontario Agricultural College, that British Columbia will become the greatest dairying district in Canada. This is the conclusion he has made from a study of conditions on the Pacific Coast. One great advantage is that dairy stock can be pastured practically the whole of the year, whereas in eastern they had to be fed six months in the year and 60 per cent of the produce of a 100-acre dairy farm will be consumed in feed of stock had to be used for food

Mrs. Melvin Southwick, of Hartman, N.Y., returned to New York, last 18th., aboard the Empress Canadian Pacific flagship Empress of Scotland, with her infant daughter (then 12 weeks old), who was born in Hankow, China, a few days before the inhabitants were ordered to evacuate. She went to Shanghai and thence to Kobe, Japan, where she embarked on the Empress of Scotland. Her husband is still in China, being employed as engineer by the Standard Oil Company there. She was met by her mother, Mrs. Freda Becker, when the Empress docked and Mrs. Southwick broke news of the worse for her adventure, but that may be due to the kindness of the passengers on the C.P.R. vessel's world trip, who couldn't do too much for her and for whom her dramatic escape and presence on the ship add ed a final thrill to the many they had experienced on their globe-circling journey. As for Miss Southwick, she has been entertained either in the Chinese or her numerous adventures.

Alberta Forage Crop Cars

Forage Crop and Poultry Cars Convey Information to Farmers

The forage crop and poultry cars which were operated in Alberta over the Canadian National Railways in conjunction with the Alberta department of agriculture have concluded their itinerary. Twenty places were visited and the movement was considered by those in charge to have been a big success. Lectures were delivered by James Murray on the following prices for the summer catch of 1926, on the basis of dressed fish at the point of shipment, — Jackfish, ten to fourteen cents per pound, and "whitefish weighing less than four pounds each, from six to ten cents per pound.

Commercial fishing is by far the most part carried on in the winter season, when the ribbon or frames fish may be shipped to distant points. This winter catch is marketed in the Canadian interior and adjoining American states. A large amount of fish has been created in Chicago and numerous other middle western cities, when the fishermen operate. Efforts are made to reach distant points as Montreal and New York. Some summer fishing also takes place, the catch being marketed in the nearby towns.

The value of the fisheries from the combined prairie provinces according to the report of the census for 1925, was approximately $2,000,000 annually although if the value of fish caught for domestic and local purposes by settlers is estimated, and added the total would doubtless be very much higher. The importations of fish, principally native life in isolated northern districts is indeed beyond monetary value.

Some of the largest lakes in the continent — Reindeer, Athabaska, Great Slave, Great Bear—and hundreds of other important but smaller bodies of water are still beyond reach of commercial exploitation through lack of transportation facilities.

During the past couple of years, according to information issued by the Marketing Service under the Marketing Service of the Department of the Interior, there has been introduced into this inland fishing industry a new branch of unusual economic importance, namely, the filleting of pike Hereinbefore this kind of fish had no market value, but it was found that fillets of pike, neatly packed in wooden boxes, and shipped fresh on ice or freshly frozen, found a ready disposal of new in the markets which handle the white fish.

Though the pike is a coarse fish and somewhat unattractive in appearance it has a good, wholesome food value, and when the edible portions are separated from the rib, bone and other waste, they can be shipped and sold to advantage. In this field is the most logical commercial manner of shipping many species of fish and the ready for cooking form in which the product is put up for display in retail shops appeals favorably to the ultimate consumer. Enterprising fish dealers in some east ern section are now advertising their products in this form almost exclusively

The introduction of this branch of the fishing industry in Western Canadian waters is proving of great value. It not only enlarges the market range of the fisherman, enabling him to dispose of a product formerly valueless, but it encourages the use of a destructive fish whose voracious habits make it a source of great havoc among the more highly prized white-fish, pickerel and other species. This filleting of pike is now being successfully prosecuted as far north as Lesser Slave lake where a plant is in operation.

A grateful user of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy finds it the only remedy that will give relief, though for thirteen years he had sought aid in help. Years of needless suffering may be prevented by using this wonderful remedy at the first warning of trouble. Its use is simple, its cost is slight, and it can be purchased almost anywhere.

DEBT PAYMENTS HEAVY DRAIN ON GREAT BRITAIN

London — Expressing great misgivings because of the divergence of opinion on the subject of capital and money flowing up in regard to the war debts, the British Government, in a note to the United States, challenged the accuracy of the statement of March 17 by Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the United States government, that the debt payments to the United States will be considered a claim on British resources and income.

Using what the British consider most regards as errors and inaccuracies in Mr. Mellon's statement, the note expresses regret that the United States Government will take steps to remove the unfair impression that has been created by the issuance of Mr. Mellon's statement.

The note which was delivered to Secretary of State Kellogg by Ambassador Houghton, is almost ready to begin, takes up the specific position of Great Britain on war debts as mentioned by Secretary Mellon in a letter to John H. Hibben, president of Princeton University, in reply to a statement by Dr. Hibben and Mellon's statement.

FREE DELIVERY ALL OVER TOWN

Within a short time the first day of July will be here and on that date will be celebrated in unique event in the history of Canada, the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation. The celebration will be held on three days of this year, Friday, Saturday and Sunday and will be observed in every city, town, village and hamlet in the Dominion. They will naturally be great doings in Edmonton and many will be tempted to neglect local efforts to take in the more spectacular sights in the city. This desire we are right in the beginning attempting to forestall, perhaps even before you have given a thought to the matter. Whatever programme is arranged by the mayor and council, and we have beaten to urge those officers to begin their planning at an early date, the citizens should be loyal to their own community and attend right here the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation Celebration.

The Record has two booklets containing suggestions for the guidance of committees in charge of local celebrations and if they can find one for them the town council may have one and the village of Brandenham the other.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor,
Fort Saskatchewan Record.

Much amusement was caused on the occasion of the recent visit of Viscount Willingdon by the remark of the common people. The question arises, "Who are the common people?" Generally speaking, the rich man of today is the poor man of tomorrow. Lloyd George is of the common people, Lord Oxford (Herbert Asquith) is of the common people, Ramsay McDonald is of the common people, and others. Let us hear what Stakesman thinks of the common people. Earl Shaftesbury, who fought for years in parliament against child labour in the mines, said that the common people are the backbone of England, also what did the Marquis of Salisbury, (Bob Cecil) who marched at a meeting in Queensland, think of the common people. Let me quote a few lines from the speech of the late Premier Seddon at the time of the Parnell incident with France, his sentiment run over a hundred years ago, Edmund Burke immediately turned around with the boy and took him to George his benefactor, who was attended to, but to show the greatness of the man, in the midst of being on the verge of war, he called at the hospital and sympathized and sat talking to the boy for an hour telling him stories. He could have gained a great deal of prominence and a servant to empire. On another occasion later when entering to his country seat twenty miles out from London, he was shot on him. A chandelier has no meaning and he was offered a ride, he got in, chatted with the coachman and when he arrived at Richard Park gate and wished them a good time to the servants of the estate, went down from the steps, who by courtesy go wild and do a great deal of damage.

LOCAL NEWS

Hastie's Rejuvo orchestra held a dance in the Memorial hall Tuesday night. If there had not been quite a crowd from Edmonton the attendance would have been slim. The music was wonderfully good and the orchestra deserved better patronage from the local dancers.

Preliminary work of preparing the golf course for play is going forward. A group—novices—of the members were out Tuesday evening slinging the whitlow off the face of the earth. Jack Wright was among them and he is bound to be out morning through shooting "fore" and other words peculiar to the golf vocabulary.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Katherine Reid wish to express their thanks to the members and friends for the kindness and sympathy during the illness of Mrs. Reid and at the time of death. Also for the beautiful flowers at the funeral.

ugo. His foster (superintendent) on one occasion remonstrated about the old oak trees being broken, some of them dating back to 1066 or 1066, his question to the foster was, "Is anybody hurt?" and on receiving the answer, "No," said "Oh well!" and went on his way. Yet that man without dilly-dallying gave Frenchmen twenty-four hours to get out of Fashoda. Such is some of the real British aristocracy They cannot go about shooting salvation, but being built that way are Christian gentlemen and stewards realising their true purpose in life.

Deeds and not words show what they think of the so called common people.

Yours truly,
JOSEPH DALGETTY.

To Members of the Wheat Pool

Once each year Wheat Pool members are called to choose the men they want to administer the affairs of the Pool for the coming year. To successfully direct a business of this magnitude requires that men of outstanding merit be selected. They must be chosen by the Pool members themselves. It is your job. It is both a privilege and a duty. Don't neglect it!

The system of electing Delegates was change at our last Annual Meeting. Instead of sending each member a ballot card we are now required to send him a Nominating Paper. You will find this on the back page of the membership list. Full instructions for using it will be found on the inside front cover and on the back page. Note that the nomination of any member must be signed by ten members and the Nominee must sign in the place provided on the Nominating Paper. All nominations must be returned to Head Office not later than Wednesday, June 15 next.

The first thing is to see that the member you want as your Delegate is duly nominated, then get your Nomination Paper into Head Office before June 15th, then watch for your ballot paper about the 1st of July. When it reaches you, use it promptly, being careful to follow the instructions which will accompany it.

CHAPTER XXXV

The Fete

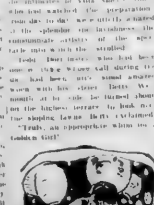
Pages and manuscript pair in conventional evening black that unfurrows eager and blase faces alike and the many-mirrored ballroom echoes to the pleasant rippling sound of the dancers' feet. Inside-the-chateau that heats the climate and the superb Phrygian and Ionic Tuileries vies nothing with the outside world to vouch that summer exists there—bold with sweet speculations of the sleeping lotus-lands in which every touch of the kitchen to the gates of Villa Smette

Beyond the gates the gardens are a square miniature Lahore and Ispahan streamers in delegate's pink silvers, were hoisted in a dull silver flood of artificial moonlight On the lakes tiny gondolas floated lazily through waters rippled by slowly lantooned lanterns that gamboled faint perfumes

Hidden somewhere in a bower or canopy lovers who have played love intonations and its re-agents of summer night parades Tall palms, feathers topped black and fantastic, made here a sound heedless and to-less. Great stretches of the lawn had been carpeted with rich blue and purple velvets, candelabra, hassocks and cleanets. Now and then from the branches of a pepper-or fig or palm tree some startled bird of semi-tropic plumage, too curious to rest, hi-ne-t, burst down upon the scene with gem-bright to-bolishes eyes.

During the day the gates had been closed to all idlers. Only the hotels, newspapers, shopkeepers and the sightseeing, queer mannered men who herded troops of diners past new monuments or discoveries had been allowed to enter the grounds There had been frantic efforts in many quarters to break through the barrier so firmly guarded by watchmen but none had been successful. Even the telephone, except that line which reached the offices of the servants, had been shut off So it was that even the intimates of Villa Smette—those who had watched the preparations from day to day—were utterly stunned at the splendor and loveliness of the spectacle that confronted them. Even Betty Wayne, who had startling to say, had been struck dumb when she first saw the fairy scene Betty Wayne usually had startling to say.

Ted Lee, who had sensed a matter of the higher interests in both men and women, was also impressed. "Trails, an appropriate name for a Gobi-n Girl"



John took her somberly in his arms and did not realize how limp and to him limply

"Partner, brilliant, extravagant!" Lord Teddy murmured "Just past the end of thing we might expect from you! It's not Barbaric. There is nothing flaunting It is a splash of cumulus tones and magnificence has a mellow splash Nebuchadnezzar I see Cosmo"

"You just know, Teddy, I think you're right. There's something in this scene tonight, this fete, that isn't mere extravagance. It's queer to say, I know, but I believe there's soul in it, some place"

Betty looked at her brother quickly, and understandingly

Soon her second words to be him that the girl whose spirits were being given expression tonight was be round his pompous want of her "Come!" Betty said, "this is no time to be sentimentous. There is Reddy Kenilworth, looking mean the worse for that thrilling adventure he's rumored to have experienced last night with Joanna. Perhaps he'll tell us something. Nobody seems to know the straight of it!"

Kenilworth, who frankly admitted that he was provoked by Joanna's refusal to hear from him during the day, treated the inquiries by Lord Teddy and Betty wholesomely. "Whatever you've heard isn't true," he said. "And what's true isn't interesting. Just a comic opera hold up—that's all. Some of the men got together and decided to have a little fun with Joanna and Jack Dalton. Dalton's a good sport, but Joanna doesn't like it. Now that the joke's over I'm ready to forget it."

"Talk about wear off a duck's back! Just look at our shoes, even after fifteen minutes in this downpour! There's certainly nothing quite like "Nugget"."

CARRIED WIFE TO BED

Suffered So She Could Not Walk. Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Minesing, Ontario.—"I am a practical nurse and I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to suffering women. For three months I was almost helpless and could not sit at the table long enough to drink a cup of tea. Many a time my husband carried me to bed, I would be so weak. Then he read in the paper about a woman suffering as I did who got better after taking the Vegetable Compound, so he went and got me some. When I had taken three bottles I was just like a new woman and have had splendid health ever since. When I feel any bearing down pains I always take it; sometimes a half bottle or whatever I need. It is my only medicine and I have told many a one about it. Any one wanting to know more about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I will gladly write to her. I do all I can to recommend it for I feel I owe my life and strength to it." Mrs. Neal Bourque, R.R. 1, Minesing, Ontario.

Do you feel broken-down, nervous, and weak sometimes? Do you have this horrid feeling of fear which nervous women so often have? Why not try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in accordance to these directions? It always helps, and if taken regularly and persistently will relieve this condition.

WHEAT POOL NEWS NOTES

The oldest member of the Alberta Wheat Pool, so far as can be ascertained, is W. E. Whitton, of Lundon. He is eighty-one years old and is starting out to sign more than one hundred acres this spring.

The second series of Wheat Pool contracts have been issued. The first man to sign one of these new contracts was J. E. Gaston, who farms 1600 acres in the Calgary district. Mr. Gaston also signed the first contract ever issued by the Alberta pool and is thus the first man in Canada to sign a Wheat Pool contract.

W. J. Jackman, Wheat Pool director for the Edmonton district, will address a series of meetings along the Canadian National railway in British Columbia. Many wheat farmers there are anxious to join the Pool. The new contract provides for their admission.

In reply to a complaint from the Scottish Baking Society that the Canadian Wheat Pools are unduly holding up the price of wheat in the face of a world's surplus, Pool officials contend the cost to the grower to produce wheat should have some consideration. Also that there was only 60¢ a bushel on the Winnipeg option market in the first few months of 1926 without the wholesale price of bread in Winnipeg being affected whatsoever.

OATS AS AN ANNUAL HAY CROP

(Experimental Farms Note)

Three different experiments are under way at the Scott Experimental Station to determine the value of oats as an annual hay crop, which include seeding at different dates, best stage to cut oats for hay and a comparison of oats with other annual hay crops.

In the date of seeding experiment the first seeding is made about May 24 and continued for five successive seedings at ten-day intervals. So far results indicate that the first two seedings in June have given the best returns, while any seedings made after June 20 are generally frozen shortly after the boom stage, thus reducing the quality of the feed.

Nine varieties of oats are used in the test dealing with the best stage of development to cut oats for hay these varieties consist of early maturing, medium and late maturing oats. Each variety is cut in three different stages—bloom, late milk to early dough and ripe stage. Results favor the medium late maturing varieties over the earlier ones for hay production. This holds true in a three-year average for each of the different stages. The test further shows that the second stage, late milk to early dough, gives the greatest tonnage of hay, as well as the highest dry matter yield per acre.

In the experiment comparing the different kinds of annual hay crops, seven different crops were tested. Oats have outyielded all other crops tested with the exception of peas. When the cost of seed, and the difficulty of harvesting and curing in bad weather are considered it is doubtful whether peas can safely be recommended unless greater differences in yields are obtained.

Aside from the fact that oats produce higher yields than most other annual crops, it has many other advantages—Seed is cheap and easy to procure. No special machinery is needed to seed it. The crop is handy and may safely be seeded any time after seeding starts until about the middle of June. When the crop is needed on summerfallow or other well prepared land it is one of the most dependable annual crops and comparatively good yields may be expected. The Scott results indicate that cuts in late milk to early dough give the best returns. However, they may be used in all stages from the green cut oats that have scarcely reached the bloom stage to ripe sheaves. When a farmer has more acreage than he requires for hay, part of the crop may be left to ripen for seed. The fact that oats for hay can be cut with an ordinary binder makes this crop easy to handle both in the field and when fed to stock.

Western Canada Points the Way

[illegible] is the most notable milestone of the year and one in which all the people of Western Canada were particularly and directly interested was International co-operative wheat pool conference held at Kansas City at which representatives were present from the United States Australia and New Zealand as well as from the three great wheat pooling provinces of Canada.

Western Canada was easily the outstanding and dominant factor at the conference and rightly so because in three short years the farmers of the Prairie Provinces have organized and developed the greatest grain handling organization on this continent and one that is truly co-operative in every sense of the word. They have done it by keeping anything at a like character ever attempted in connection with any commodity. They can speak from actual experience in dealing collectively in wheat.

It is not surprising therefore, that at the Kansas City conference the experts presented on behalf of the Alberta Saskatchewan and Manitoba Pools and their common central selling agency were received with great attention and that the views expressed and suggestions advanced by the Canadians commanded respect and gave strength to the deliberations of the conference.

Many of our own people have not yet grasped the full significance of the operations of the wheat pool, nor realize what has been done or accomplished in the brief period of approximately 1 years since the first organization was effected. Today, as Mr. J. McFaull, president of the Saskatchewan pool and of the Central Selling Agency, there is a membership of 128,000 in the three provinces. In 1924-25 the Canadian pool handled 147,000,000 bushels of wheat belonging to its farmer members and 27,000,000 bushels of coarse grains. The pool has represented us in all wheat importing countries and ships direct to sixty European ports. It owns and controls approximately 350 country elevators in the three provinces, a combined storage capacity of approximately 22,000,000 bushels. At the head of the lakes the pool has six terminal elevators with a storage capacity around 18,000,000 bushels and also a 2,000,000 transfer house at Buffalo. The pool is also operating terminal elevators at Prince Rupert and Vancouver, while plans are under way for large extensions to the country elevator systems in all the provinces. Since the pool began to operate it has paid its farmer members around half a billion dollars.

These are truly remarkable achievements, but they do not tell the whole story. The pool has practically revolutionized the financing methods of the Western farmer limited of the farmer getting all his money in one bulk sum in the Fall, at which time every creditor made immediate demand upon him, with the result that he was practically forced to sell his wheat at the then prevailing price, and by all following the same course glutting the market to how level on a first payment and several successive payments and even the year. The result is not only orderly marketing of the wheat but orderly financing on the part of the farmer He is to an ever increasing extent conducting his business on cash rather than a credit basis. The system has been of wonderful assistance in the weaker less intelligent the farmers.

Equally important has been the effect the pool has had in restoring confidence to the farmer and to business interests generally throughout the West. It has put on the farmers a feeling of independence and security hitherto lacking. It has emphasized the value of co-operation, and the strength that is to be found in organized co-operative effort as contrasted with each man acting in such out his own selfishness and his own economic salvation.

The farmers of Western Canada have demonstrated the wisdom of having one great selling agency instead of one or two hundred thousand farmers each selling individually and in competition with each other. The object of the Kansas City conference was to try and devise ways and means whereby the great wheat producing countries of the world could co-operate instead of conquering against each other. The most cordial reception was accorded the idea, and efforts will be made to devise a workable plan.

Aerial Attack On Black Rust To Be Launched This Summer By The Dominion Government

An aerial attack on black rust, one of the most serious enemies of Canadian grain growing, will be launched this summer in an experiment by the Dominion Government.

Two airplanes, which were sent down to the cotton fields of the Mississippi, and there for a result studied the methods recently adopted for fighting the boll-worm, with, it is said, remarkable success, will give instruction for carrying on a similar campaign when the time arrives this summer, one in Eastern and one in Western Canada.

Wing Commander Anderson of Camp Borden said the aviators chosen were from that aviation body, that the aeroplanes would be taken from the camp, and returned there when the summer was over. The campaign, however, is being directed from Ottawa.

"In order to be effective," Wing Commander Anderson said, "the flying has to be done as close above the growing crops as is safe. The dust is contained in a special apparatus on the planes, and considerable practice is necessary to operate it efficiently. Wind conditions have to be taken into account, and the dusting is only done while flying in a certain direction, relative to the direction of the wind."

So serious had the losses from black rust in the cereal crops of Western Canada become that in September 1924, a conference was called at Winnipeg by the department of agriculture and the Research Council of Canada. As a result, a series of experimental projects, covering all phases of the subject, were mapped out to be carried on in Western Canada. The present aeroplane attack is a continuation of those experiments.

Sugar Beets

Proper Cultural Methods Will be Adopted in the Raymond

Best seeding began in the Raymond district the middle of April. J. W. Evans, of the agricultural staff of the Canadian Sugar Company, was on the district drilling in this district. As field supervisor he is urging best growers to adopt cultural methods in order to conserve moisture, so that a good germination of seed might be ensured. A good stand of beets, he said, is a vital factor and the first essential towards heavy tonnage at harvest time.

Winnipeg Stock Yards

Better Prices Being Greater Returns

Although Volume is Higher

Last year 493,129 head of cattle and 332,329 hogs were marketed through the Winnipeg Public Stock Yards, and realized $23,847,000. Though the number of animals marketed was less than the 1925 record, the monetary return was $1,000,000 greater, owing to the better prices that prevailed. Ontario feeders took 45,500 and 41,000 went to the United States feed lots, and 17,365 went to Manitoba farms. Sheep and lambs to the number of 53,550 were marketed, compared with 36,000 in 1925.

To Stamp Out Disease

Continuation of Educational Campaign Will Be Necessary

A survey of health conditions during February across the whole continent, including Canada, has just been conducted by Mr Frederick Life statistician. The continent health conditions which prevailed during January, continues.

Compared with February, 1926, there are pronounced declines in death rates from measles, whooping cough, influenza, heart disease and pneumonia. Rates for typhoid, scarlet fever, diphtheria, diabetes, respiratory diseases other than pneumonia, suicides and accidents were more or less higher.

So far, this year, there has been a alarming increase in the death rate from any disease but the small increases in diphtheria mortality constitute a challenge to health workers. Since 1922, due to intensified campaigns for immunizing children and educational work the disease has been registering a few less point each year The death rate dropped 50 per cent between 1921 and 1926 and this remarkable decrease represents the greatest single sanitary accomplishment of last year.

There has not yet been time to determine, definitely what is the exact cause of this increase but preliminary research points to indicate that the type of disease now prevalent is of above average virulent

At any rate, the situation calls for increased watchfulness, a continuance of educational campaigns and an intensified effort to stamp out the disease.

Brings In Good Revenue

Flour Milling Industry in Canada Shows Remarkable Growth

The Canadian flour milling industry is one of the main sources of Canada's industrial revenue, the manufacture rying with the pulp and paper industry for leadership among Dominion industrial activities based on the value of annual production. A recent government survey covering this industry shows the first Dominion census was taken in 1871, reveals the remarkable growth of flour manufacture in Canada, which has in the time placed its product on markets all over the world and made it no patent an advertisement of Canada's quality as the country's wheat. The development of the manufacture of flour in Canada has, in fact, very largely corresponded with the settlement and cultivation of the great wheat-growing territory of Western Canada, and it is reasonable to suppose that the future of Canadian flour production will be gauged to some extent by further settlement in the wheat growing areas, which have recently been considerably expanded.

The Art of Time Saving

Room for Many More Improvements Along That Line

In the old-fashioned kitchen our mothers walked many useless miles. The modern housekeeper, if aided by intelligence, puts sinks, kitchen tables and cupboards in right relationship and saves steps every day so long as the house stands. But there is room for many more of such improvements and ample rewards awaiting those who can think Time is worth more than it used to be. There are so many more things to do with it if it is saved. When our systems of education are broadened to meet the full requirements of modern life, doubtless they will give place to training in the simple yet mightily important art of time-saving.

Kansas City Women In Canberra Expert

Well Known to Officials All Over the World

Hanging out her business shingle twenty years ago before a Kansas City business office, Mrs. Jones has become one of the best known canteens experts in the world.

During the war vast shipments of raw materials and supplies were managed by Mrs. Jones at her desk in the inland port of Kansas City. While trade after trade passed through the Kansas City yards laden with orea from South America, Australia and the Orient bound for Oklahoma and Arkansas smelters, Mrs. Jones computed for the Government the duty on them and saw them properly invoiced and on their way.

Mrs. Jones had made an extensive study of customs law and treasury decisions before entering her profession. Champion Cow

Another champion cow has made its bid for fame, this time appearing on the eastern horizon. She hails from Cumberland County, Nova Scotia, being discovered at Tox River. "Rosemond" as this cow has been christened, is the property of Harry C. Kerr who claims she is going to outdo the record of Betsy Wbey the Nova Scotia world's champion milk and butter producer.

"Rosemond" is a Durham grade cow and she has produced 392 pounds of milk in one week, which churned 20½ pounds of butter after deducting approximately 13 ounces of salts and 1½ of cream for home consumption. This record is creating wide interest.

The Canadian farmer is being alerted next year like he is going to study for himself at close range. In the very heart of the world's great mart, just what happens to his produce when they reach the ultimate market, and he is going to learn a little more about how he can extend his business with this ultimate market.

A party of between 150 and 200 Canadian farmers and agriculturists will sail from Halifax, early next year, and under direction of Canadian National Railways officials, will visit all the important marketing centres of Great Britain, with visits to some of the famous Provincial breeding farms, and a side trip to Denmark, for a special study of co-operative marketing Dr. W. J. Black, director of agriculture, colonization and natural resources of the Canadian National Railways, has announced this plan, which is being arranged in Canada by C. G. Groff, former publicity commissioner for Alberta, and in England, by H. A. Weir, of the London offices of the Canadian National Railways.

A tentative outline of the program suggests visits to the wheat exchanges in Liverpool and London, some of the mills, the Metchinlead farms in Gloucestershire and Canadian cattle are handed and sold by auction for slaughter or for finishing on Old Country farms. On a side trip to some of these feed lots; the Smithfield market in London, and Covent Garden, the great fruit and produce market. Canadian butter, cheese, bacon and fruit, on British markets will also be seen.

The farms of some of the most famous breeders, particularly of Shorthorn cattle and Clydesdale horses, will be visited, as well as districts where other noted breeds of livestock have been developed

The Legislature in 1921, when the farmers' party was voted into power, he was appointed Speaker and continued in that office until he resigned a few months ago to accept the portfolio he now holds. Ten other members of the Alberta Legislature came from the United States, and all have made a success at farming in Western Canada. Saskatchewan Farmer Finds Sheep Raising a Profitable Venture

A Saskatchewan farmer relates his experience in sheep raising as follows. "We kept 40 ewes through the winter of 1925-6 and fed them on a mixture of oat sheaves, consisting of a mixture of wild upland hay, slough hay and sweet clover. The ewes in the spring brought 44 lambs, all of which we raised The wether lambs were sold for $9 each and the ewes were kept for breeding purposes. The wool clip averaged about 7 pounds per head and sold for 35 cents per pound. We find that we can keep the cultivated land free of weeds if they are allowed to pasture on it."

Cheap Electricity

Electricity is one item in the cost of living in Canada which is much cheaper now than in previous years. Canada has the world in which the per capita distribution of electric current and electric power is highest.

She Has the Greatest Faith In Them

Says Mrs. Elliott of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Alberta Lady Strongly Recommends the Use of Dodd's Kidney Pills to All Sufferers.

South Edmonton, Alberta (special).—"I have used your Dodd's Kidney Pills for a few years and for whiney and backache trouble they have worked wonders. I have great faith in them. I have heard great praise about them from a number of people in our district."

This statement comes from Mrs. Elliott, who resides at 8324 76th Ave. The belief that Mrs. Elliott found has come to thousands in other Canadian homes, through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

There are only a few people who appreciate the great importance of keeping the kidneys in good order at all times. The kidneys are the part born of your blood. If the kidneys become clogged with impurities they cannot perform their functions properly. The blood, instead of being purified, is poisoned, and in turn poisons the whole system, with the result that a condition may develop very serious.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MAY 22

PETER HEALS THE LAME MAN

Golden Text: In him ye have there salvation by neither is there any other name under heaven that is given among men whereby we must be saved.—Acts 4:12.

Lessons: Acts 3:1 to 21 inclusive; Devotional Reading: Psalm 23:1-6

Explanations and Comments

I. Peter Heals a Lame Man, Acts 3:1-10. Who is the successor and three in the temple were Peter, James, and John, the three apostles who were favored with the transfiguration scene on the mount of glory? Observe the Greek custom of praying at stated hours. Peter and John were on their way to the temple at the hour of the evening sacrifice, which was at three o'clock. Lame from birth. Lame people were not allowed to enter the temple. Alms. Lame people were compelled to beg. Every one is dependent upon others for something. Nothing is said about the lame man's faith. Peter and John gave him their undivided attention. By the gospel of Jesus Christ of Nazareth. Peter and John were not healers by their own power. Rise up and walk. Peter and John were not content to heal the lame man, but they wished to restore him to his place in society. Leaping. The lame man was not content with merely standing on his feet. He must walk, leap, and praise God. Praising God. The lame man was not speaking alms from men, but was praising God for the blessing he had received.

II. Peter Preaches Repentance, Acts 3:11-26. Peter. Peter was the spokesman for the group of apostles. Why marvel ye at this? Peter asked this question because he knew that the people were astonished at the miracle. Glorified his Son Jesus. Peter was not seeking to glorify himself or John. Peter and John were simply the instruments through which God worked. Denied him. Peter was not afraid to charge the people with their sin. Murderer. Peter was not afraid to charge the people with their sin. Prince of life. Peter was not afraid to confess Jesus as the Prince of life. Witnesses of these things. Peter and John were witnesses of the resurrection of Jesus. Through faith in his name. Peter and John were not healers by their own power. Faith in the name of Jesus was the means by which the lame man was healed. Ignorance. Peter and John knew that the people were ignorant of the true character of Jesus. Repent. Peter and John were not content with merely preaching to the people. They urged them to repent and turn to God. Times of refreshing. Peter and John were not content with merely preaching to the people. They urged them to repent and turn to God. Times of refreshing. Peter and John were not content with merely preaching to the people. They urged them to repent and turn to God.

III. Peter and John Before the Council, Acts 4:1-12. Captain of the temple. The captain of the temple was the chief officer of the temple guard. Sadducees. The Sadducees were the rationalists of the day. They denied the resurrection. Laid hands on them. Peter and John were not content with merely preaching to the people. They urged them to repent and turn to God. Times of refreshing

ESSO. REBELLION VETERAN IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

He enlisted in the Royal North West Mounted Police at that city on September 22, 1880, and came west the same year to Fort Walsh. He was in Battleford May 1st, 1881, and arrived at Fort Saskatchewan July 14, 1881. He served all through the Riel rebellion as trumpeter on the staff of the late Sir Sam Steele.

He engaged in farming for a number of years and in 1905 became connected officially with the town, being appointed town constable and engineer for the fire department. This position he held intermittently until his last illness.

In February, 1916, he enlisted in the 151st Batt. and served in the Great War for two years and eight months, receiving his discharge October 9th, 1918. Thirteen months of this time he was in France with the 2nd Labor battalion.

"Old Jim," as he was familiarly called by his many friends, will be sorely missed around town, not only as a link between the present and the historical past, but also on account of his genial and kindly personality.

The Canadian Pacific's gross earnings for the first quarter of the year were the largest on record for that quarter, at $42,236,000, or an increase of $6,826,861 over the corresponding quarter of last year. Net, however, was a little lower than last year at $9,440,000, compared with $9,591,607.

Madame Anna Shea, chanteuse of European concert achievements, arrived in Canada about the middle of May on the Canadian Pacific liner "Montrose" from Antwerp. She will take part in various swimming marathons in Montreal and Toronto, and both Canadian and United States, belong-ing events at the Toronto Exhibition.

The total catch of codfish on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts during the month of March showed an increase of 1,000,000 pounds over the catch for the same month last year. The catch amounted to 11,000,000 pounds, valued at $1,250,796, according to a report of the Department of Marine and Fisheries. The increase was due to the increased catch of herring on the Pacific Coast.

Two thousand poultrymen from the United States will attend the forthcoming World's Poultry Congress, to be held at Ottawa July 27 to August 6. The delegates will be headed by the Hon. W. M. That the prospects for British settlers coming to New Brunswick were good, that, in fact, arrangements had been made for bringing a substantial number of new British families to this province, was asserted by J. A. Murray, provincial secretary-treasurer of Colonization and Industry, who has returned from England where he was acting in the interests of the province. He has received many enquiries as to the settlement prospects in New Brunswick.

That Calgary district has arrears taken its place in the front rank as a producer of honey in the Dominion was pointed out by C. H. Hutton, President of the Calgary Rotary Club, who declared that 1,000,000 pounds of honey had been shipped east from Calgary in three weeks, recently. Indicating the growth of the industry in the district he referred to the large number of entries received for the Rotary Horse Show, which is more than 300, as compared with 200 last year.

Evidence of the interest in the new departure among Canadian Pacific locomotive owners in the C-2-4 type of "Mountain" engine, the remarkable combination of greatly increased power and efficiency with very moderate increase in weight, is furnished by the fact that principals of twenty-five railroads entered in the annual Canadian Railway Fuel Contest, which opened on the first of May, have selected locomotives of this description with a view of bringing them to the contest for the fifteen days' duration of the contest.

Gene Tunney, world's heavyweight champion, arrived in Montreal at the Canadian Pacific Windsor Street Station, May 6, and proceeded to the Ritz-Carlton, the Laurentian Mountains. From here he proceeded by motor to Pine Point, Lake Manitou, summer camp of Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, where he will train for the coming fight with Wm. "Worth its weight in gold" Says Ottawa Matron

Mme. Beatrice Charlebois could not hold pen to write. Nerves completely shattered, health ruined. Now alert, vigorous and strong, she gives praise to Tanlac

The tribute which she penned the other day, and which is here reproduced in facsimile, was written by Mme. Beatrice Charlebois, of 22 Rose St., Ottawa.

What Mme. Charlebois had to say could not be called the usual "testimonial" by any means. It appears as a plain statement of fact, and is made the more powerful because of its unassuming spirit.

"My nerves were so completely shattered that I got to the point where I could not even raise the needle to my mouth. I had no appetite, could not sleep, and was in a general wreck. Night after night I suffered with pains in my stomach and back. I was a pitiful sight, and could not even walk across the room without help.

"I tried all kinds of remedies in my home to no avail. Then I took Tanlac, and from the first dose I felt relief. It built up my health and strength, and I am now well and strong again."

Tanlac is sold at all good druggists. Refuse substitutes. Insist on Tanlac. Adv.

SUITABLE HOG PASTURES FOR SPRING AND FALL

For the past four years a considerable amount of work has been carried on at the Indian Head Experimental farm in testing suitable pastures for hogs. Pastures provide an abundance of cheap feed and consequently reduce the cost of pork production. The choice of pastures however, depends largely on the soil and climatic conditions.

A variety of pastures is essential in order to provide an abundance of succulent feed throughout the season. For this purpose, fall rye sown in late August or early September will supply succulence for the early spring litters. Oats or oats and barley sown in combination, as early as conditions will permit, will provide mid-summer pasture. Rape has proved to be one of the best pastures under test, from the standpoint of economical gains. Rape may be used to follow the pastures previously mentioned and thus provide pasture for late summer and fall months. Rape sown in June will be ready in August and September and may be used to finish the early spring pigs or give the fall litters a fair start before the cold weather sets in.

A mixture of oats and fall rye sown in early June is to be recommended. This mixture provides succulent pasture throughout the entire season. When the oat pasture becomes exhausted, the fall rye will gradually take its place and remains green and succulent all fall. Fall rye sown alone in June also provides succulent pasture for fall litters.

Pastures are essential for the health and vigor of young, growing pigs and brood sows. Plan to supply your pigs with succulent pasture during the entire growing season.

W. H. Gibson, Superintendent, Dominion Experimental Farm, Indian Head, Sask.

SPORTS DAY UNDER AUSPICES LOCAL BRANCH CANADIAN LEGION

Favored with fairly good though somewhat threatening weather the annual sports day under the auspices of the local branch of the Canadian Legion was held on Tuesday, Victoria Day. The attendance was large, though not so large as last year, many farmers being too busy with the work delayed by a backward spring. The sports held at North Edmonton also affected the attendance here but for all that the day was one of enjoyment in the open air and the Legion is to be congratulated on providing the attractions.

The children had their inning in the afternoon when races of various kinds and for all ages were run off. The prizes were of generous proportions, some of the boys winning enough to put them in the professional ranks of sport.

Prizewinners were:

The popular games, baseball, held the interest of a large proportion of the crowd throughout the day. Teams in the local league scrapped and elimination games were held previously so that three games could be played on the 24th. One semi-final was played in the morning, when Namao decisively defeated Pleasant View. John Crozier helped considerably with a Babe Ruth equaled in the fourth inning.

Another semi-final was played in the afternoon when Clover Bar met and defeated Elmgrove 12—4. W. Lamoure lammed one for a home run in the sixth.

Shortly after six o'clock Namao and Clover Bar met in the final. Namao got away to a good start in the first and second innings and though Clover Bar played a determined game they could not overcome the lead obtained by their opponents and Namao won the tournament with an 11—9 victory.

The pipe band of the 49th battalion and a troupe of Highland dancers evoked much interest and admiration, the nimble-footed girls drawing a large crowd at each display. Other attractions were games of various kinds which belonged both old and young, and hooper and thirst were managed at the Red Cross lunch room, hot dog stands, ice cream and soft drink stands, etc.

A dance in the evening at the Memorial hall concluded the day's festivities. About two hundred couples attended, a great number of whom were from outside points. Al Ferrel's orchestra, Edmonton, enrolled themselves with a fine programme of music which was appreciated by the dancers.

ANNUAL AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS, 1927

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has made the customary arrangements for the collection and publication of the annual agricultural statistics of Canada for the year 1927. These statistics will be based upon returns to be collected in June from individual farmers upon carefully scheduled issued to them through the teachers and children of the rural schools. The schedule is a very simple one, calling only for the acres sown to field crops and the number of farm animals alive on the farm in mid-June. Upon the resulting estimates of total areas sown are based the preliminary, provisional and final estimates of yield, which are of supreme importance in connection with the movement, financing, distribution and sale of the principal cereals, especially of wheat, of which Canada is now the world's leading exporter.

The average handling of the Alberta Wheat Pool elevators to date is 124,789 bushels per elevator. Some of the elevators were not opened until late in the fall of 1926. On the whole the record of the Pool group of "houses" has been satisfactory.

The Spirit of Jubilee

It is now clearly manifest that the celebration of Canada's Diamond Jubilee will be general throughout the Dominion, and that the ceremonies marking this historic occasion will be colorful, entertaining and instructive in both the strictest anniversary of a nation's birth. The reuniting of every child and family circle, however small the latter may be, and the holding of public meetings, and the appointment of committees representative citizens to plan a fitting celebration on July 1st and the succeeding week days. It is quite evident that it will be a very impressive and your spirited commencement which will culminate the inaugural time of the Dominion.

The very general interest being displayed in a gratifying evidence of the pride which Canadians have come to have in their country. It is no evidence of a real national spirit (Quad) gratifying to the way in which local communities throughout the Dominion have accepted the lead in the Ottawa Committee and are planning to make Dominion Day celebrations truly commemorative of Confederation, rather than merely days of spending events (generally speaking), the ceremonies on July 1st, 1867 will be patriotic and thoughtful in character, while on July 2nd also a national holiday in this Jubilee year sports and other programmes will be carried out.

Time, energy and money spent in organizing truly worth-while commemorative ceremonies will be well expended only if the true, underlying spirit at the Jubilee is never lost sight of, but on the contrary, is strongly emphasized. It is urged that every celebration on July 1st should have "a clear, strong, dominant note of patriotism, directing the hearts and minds of all to Canada." Particularly is it desired that in all Dominion Day exercises, the most prominent place be given to the children of Canada.

The Jubilee ceremonies should very properly recall the condition of Canada prior to 1867, the lack of unity then existing, the suspicions created, the doubts and fears, for the future which prevailed. It should be remembered that Confederation was devised to overcome these conditions, to find a solution for the existing problems and difficulties. We should as a people revive in our memories the patriotism, the vision, the self sacrifice and the Fathers of Confederation who forgot all differences of party, of creed and descent, all in order to render service to Canada and the Empire. The spirit of the Fathers should be the spirit of this Diamond Jubilee.

Confederation brought union and strength out of disunion and weakness. It has replaced doubts and fears with confidence; jealousies and suspicions given place to courage and a justifiable pride. The achievements of the Canadian people in the succeeding sixty years are without a parallel in the history of the world. They have spanned and re-spanned a continent with bands of steel, they have created a sturdy and united nation out of isolated colonies, they have placed their flag on the seven seas, and carried their commerce to the uttermost parts of the globe; even in the fiery ordeal of the world's greatest war they took second place to no other people but by their self-sacrifice and unremitting labor won the admiration of all men and won for Canada a place of equality with the world's greatest and proudest nations.

But Confederation made more than all this possible. It has resulted in revealing the people of Canada to themselves. In working together in the solution of great national problems, in carrying through gigantic enterprises to success, and in devoting their energies to the development of some of the greatest natural resources possessed by any land, they have learned each others good qualities. They have given to the world a great object lesson in how two races, differing in language and in religion can exercise tolerance and forbearance, and, appreciating the contribution which each has to make for the common good, unite to lay the foundations of a united state progressive, prosperous and happy.

Recalling the difficulties and achievements of the past, glorying in the present, the real celebration of the Jubilee will be found in a re-affirmation of loyalty and a re-dedication of service to Canada on the part of individual as loyalty and a re-dedication of service to Canada on the part of individual Canadian citizens. This is the true underlying spirit of Canada's Diamond Jubilee.

Canadian Art in Paris

Exhibition of Canadian Paintings Praised by French Critics

Paris (Cable).—A writer in Paris correspondent of the New York World, comes this comment on the most recent collection of Canada's art in Paris the says:

The exhibition of Canadian paintings now open in the Paris market the emporer at the Place St. Germain, most of Canada came into the gilded galleries of the Tuileries under the Louvre-long Museum like a fresh breeze of wind from the sea, spaces of the great Northland. And it is time that these works of art have been acclaimed by the French critics. There is much excellence in individual efforts and the show as a whole is of a high order of merit. The greater proportion of the 200 canvases exhibited consists of down quiet landscapes, among which "A March Afternoon" and three other paintings by Maurice Cullen are conspicuous by their stillness as are the vividly colored snow scenes by Clarence A. Gagnon. The origin of the exhibition here dates back only to the critics enthusiasm through the eyes of the artist does not give a to support to the generosity of the Canadian painter."

Electric Walk Rules Bank Impregnable

Kinbrooke Alarm System Installed in Scottish Bank of England

Defences against burglary as other places in England are included in the rebuilding of the Bank of England. It will be possible, in case of invasion or other emergency, to lock the vaults from three points — one in the Bank, one elsewhere in London, and one in the suburbs out of London. The walls are constructed of reinforced concrete blocks, six feet long by two feet wide by two feet thick. The reinforcement is made from old steel wire ships' cables, which are separated into single strands. These steel wires are interlaced into panels six feet by two feet, and placed in the mould, one on top of the other, until the mould is full of steel wire mat-ting. Liquid concrete is then poured in the mould, and the whole is allowed to work the concrete has every crack and corner. All these concrete blocks have "keys" at each end to interlock them when in position. There are also semi-circular grooves at the ends of the blocks. Two blocks together form a circular groove at top and down which pass electric wires. An attempt to displace a block breaks these wires and an alarm is immediately sounded.

His Wheat for Prince

Plowed and Sowed Field and Grain is Going Well

Undaunted by the ravages and worries of seven subjectors' jobs which he now holds, Mussolini has set himself to gain fame as a raiser of prize-winning wheat. It was learned that he has entered a small farm on royal Persi in the Rieti valley, competitions promoted by the Minister of National Economy.

The wheat on which the Premier hopes his hopes of victory was plant-ed by him personally during one of his periodical visits on his own town he planned his work before leaving an old fashioned plow drawn by two beage snow white oxen. On the back of one of them his young son Bruno sat perched, while the chief-tain of the numerous cameras which dog the Duce's every step circled busily. After sowing the wheat Mussolini returned to Rome, leaving the care of his farm to one of his peasants. The wife driven by Mussolini has done so well that it is now considered the best of the whole region.

The Ministry of National Economy distributes each year small prizes to farmers whose average yield of wheat per acre shows the greatest percentage of increase over the average yield of the preceding district. The prizes have hitherto been handed to their winner in Rome by Mussolini himself with much pomp and ceremony.

Poultry for Profit

Manitoba Farm Boy Has the Right Idea

Jackie Rose, a farm lad of the Oak field district, north of Winnipeg, has found that raising poultry can be made to pay. A year ago he decided that his flock of hens required building up. He had heard of the returns obtained from Manitoba approved flocks, and wrote to J. McCulloch, Dominion poultry promoter, for help in getting a more profitable poultry flock. His first step was to buy a hatching eggs from a Manitoba approved flock, and a new record of performance chicks. Though his flock did not reach over 100 birds at the height of the season, he now reports an income of $450 from his enthusiasm. Fifty eggs a month hens made a record of 30 eggs during March and the balance 21. One lucky hen laid on every day.

Escaped Polar Bears Reach Radio

Believed It Responsible for Rains Which Affected Their Cages

Polish farmers near Vilno have attributed the disorder of wind weather because they believed his radio responsible for the drenching rains that have ruined their prospects for a bumper crop.

Only the devil's voice could be made audible by such an infernal machine, they said when the teacher established his newly acquired apparatus. The music which emanated from the devil-devised instrument was not what they were accustomed to hear in singing school and church, and the weird syncopation was probably perceived by the rulers of Purgatory to torment lost souls they avowed.

After hearing the lecturer they smashed his radio out to bits. The discouraged prolongate predicts that the heavy rains will develop to the point of having a court action over the Darwinian theory in about the year 2127.

Preserving Fruits and Vegetables

Instructions for the Proper Storage of Fruit and Vegetables

The storage place for home preserved fruits and vegetables should be cool, dark and dry. Heat favors the growth of bacteria, light causes fading, while dampness furthers the growth of moulds and ferments. Heat rots on the metal facetings of the glass jars. These and other pointers for the housekeeper are given in a new bulletin of the Dominion Department of Agriculture on Preserving Fruits and Vegetables in the Home. When dark storage is not available the jars should be wrapped in paper or screened the light. When canned vegetable products are removed from the jar after storage it is wise precaution to boil them a few minutes. When they are to be used cold, as for salads, they may be set aside after boiling and chilled before use.

Tractors Vie With Horses

Old dobbin is going to have a much easier time of it this year on a good many Saskatchewan farms when the solid train-load of tractors seen in the above photograph is distributed in that province.

Tractors hitherto have been shipped in considerable numbers to western farmers, but seldom if ever before has such a large single shipment gone forward. This train-load was handled recently by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Whether or not tractors will come to replace the horse altogether in the world is doubtful, but many reports have been heard to the effect that a farmer using these machines to charge a jump or two ahead of his neighbor.

Interesting Statement Made That At Last "Mummy Wheat" Has Been Made To Germinate

Wheat is of very ancient origin, having, indeed, been cultivated by prehistoric peoples such as the Lake-Dwellers of Switzerland. It is mentioned in the earliest Writings and examples, substantially similar to modern varieties, have frequently been found in a fair state of preservation in Egyptian and other tombs dating from a remote period. The Egyptian variety especially, known as "mummy wheat," has been the subject of much speculation and experiment, but hitherto all efforts to promote its germination have been baffled. Hence the great interest aroused by the recent announcement that "mummy wheat" has at last been grown in the state of New South Wales, Australia, and the intimation that the report will be made the subject of expert investigation. If correct, the result will evidently upset the theory of many scientists that wheat grains could not remain their potential fertility for so long a space of time as three or four thousand years.

Doubtless wheat keeps far from indefinitely in the ordinary sense and is easily recognizable, as wit-ness the grain attributed to the Stone Age in Egypt, some 6,000 years older than the mummy wheat said to have been grown in Australia. But the many skeptical peoples have always been inclined to look and the search are the long-enduring elements and that the tiny grain, the repository of what search ly loses its vitality. Doubtless wheat keeps far from indefinitely in the ordinary sense and is easily recognizable, as wit-ness the grain attributed to the Stone Age in Egypt, some 6,000 years older than the mummy wheat said to have been grown in Australia. But the many skeptical peoples have always been inclined to look and the search are the long-enduring elements and that the tiny grain, the repository of what search ly loses its vitality. Even when kept under the most favorable conditions of dry and cold, as for example in the cellars of the Dominion Experimental Farms, where hundreds of varieties of grains only fifteen years, the majority become-ing infertile within five years.

All the weight of authority is, therefore, on the side of the state ment that in no single one of the numerous experiments has mummy wheat germinated. The very oldest seed now that has an oily and starchy hardened kernel appears to have germinated is only a hundred years old, and has just celebrated its centenary November 8, 1927, is argued on theoretical grounds that if air were totally excluded, no reason ex-ists why the germ should die any earlier than Sehon, which seems to have an infinite capacity for living in suspended animation, or the very long-lived charlock and poppy seeds. So far as wheat in England is concerned, it is said that any form of damp kept dry will grain within a year or two. It is reck-oned, according to actual experiment, that, if not germinated, wheat would totally vanish at a British plant within four years.

Among many interesting discoveries made recently as to the nature of the early wheats, we are told that the most important was the finding of a true wild wheat in Pal-estine by a member of Lord Allen-by's expeditionary force. The home of this plant, that has led and cre-ated civilization for perhaps 10,000 years, has been traced to Western Asia with a reasonable degree of certainty.

It has recently been alleged, says an article on the "mummy wheat" reported to have been grown in Australia, that a native live plant has been found in Australia; and the inference has been drawn that if the natives had been botanists the population of Australia would now be reckoned in tens of mil-lions.

If after expert inquiries it ceases to be shown that the bread can pre-serve its life after thousands of years, independently of its agricul-tural interest, there will be a field for hot interesting speculation as to the existence of the germ of life.

THE BEST MEDICINE SHE EVER USED

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Highly Praised by a Quebec Lady

Mrs. David Logan, 3 Bel'ard Mines Wharf, Que., gives unsolicited praise to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the good they have done in her family. Mrs. Logan says: "I have been a user of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for many years, as occasion required, and have always found them a most reliable medicine. My husband, who was recovering from an attack of typhoid fever, and was in a very weak condition, took the pills, and through them gained health and strength. My daughter was in a run-down condition, and was forced to discontinue work. Again Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were resorted to and she was soon restored to excellent health. Then my eldest boy had an operation performed for adenoids, and left him in a weak and run-down condition. Once more Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were tried, and he was soon in excellent health. So I can truly say that more than once Pink Pills have abundantly by the use of this medicine. The pills have done more good in my home than hundreds of dollars worth of more expensive medicines."

Prohibition In U.S.

Ramsay MacDonald Believes it is a Great and Praiseworthy Effor.

Ramsay Macdonald, former British Prime Minister, after completing a month's visit to the United States believes prohibition is a great praiseworthy effort to keep people decent and does not merit the abuse of visitors who find it a subject for amusement.

"So many of our smart people have been over here and sneered at the lot but when I go back I am going to take the other side," he said.

"Two things have touched me very much. First the very cordial greeting I have received and then the good of all sections and parties in the United States and second the great personal care I had during the three weeks of my illness."

"I am by no means impressed with the level of America and moral life in undeveloped areas, but I do not want slanders. I don't want agreements. I don't want reasonable stuff—just plain blunt, but I do want understanding.

"It is essential that the best type of American should come over here. The American should come together. I hope to see much more Americans and less big, commercial types. Any one can book tickets and bring tickets to Europe, but it is not so easy to get the right type."

Diamond Jubilee Celebration

Some Suggestions for Guidance of Committees

The matter of the Jubilee celebrating to "Canada" is still under consideration. The municipal committees of the various boroughs, representatives of churches, societies and other organizations are being asked to help in the matter. It will be to arrange programmes for the celebration, and to appoint chairmen whose duty it will be to see that the programmes do not overlap.

Bonfires, decorations, sports, parades, etc. Public buildings and streets should be decorated with flags and bunting, and citizens generally should decorate their houses.

A good way to get people together is to have a procession. Each district, local band and have the children join in the parade in which all societies and organizations should have a part. In the parade, floats portraying the history of any county should be included. If there is a pageant, the young people might arrange historical tableaux, with suitable music to illustrate them. Prizes should be offered for the best floats.

There might be a picnic or other entertainment for the old people and children. In the evening there could be a concert with fireworks and a community bonfire or other illumination.

Another Valuable Discovery

Scientists Devise System to Measure Speed of Blood in Body

The speed with which the blood runs through the body can now be measured by an instrument devised by Dr Herman Blumgart and Dr Soma Weiss, of the Thorndike Memorial Laboratory of the Boston City Hospital.

Physicians say the method will be of great value in diagnosing and treating diseases of the heart and circulation system. Treating pneumonia can now be done by scientists just how much of the vault the heart is doing in a stressful today. Nurture Blumgart and Weiss describe their system as follows:

"A colonic amount of a radio active substance is injected into the veins of one arm and by means of an electrical detecting device the time of arrival of the substance in the body is noted. The speed with which this radio-active substance is transmitted by the blood gives a measure of the speed of the blood stream."

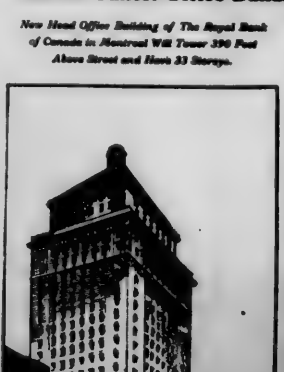
Will Be Tallest Office Building in Canada

New Head Office Building of The Royal Bank of Canada in Montreal Will Tower 390 Feet Above Street and Have 33 Storeys.



The Royal Bank of Canada is erecting a new head office building on the corner of St. James and St. Peter streets, Montreal, which will be the tallest office building in Canada. The building will be 390 feet in height above the street, and will have 33 storeys. The massive concrete foundations and steel framework are now complete, and the work is rapidly being made on the superstructure. The building will be of the classic type, as shown in the accompanying illustration.

The building will have a frontage on the sidewalk, and will have 21 storeys above this surrounding line. The remaining storeys will be set back from the street line, but will not start the rise of the tower, owing to the restrictions of space imposed by the narrowness of the street, until the twenty-first storey. The purpose of this change is to prevent undue shadow on the street, and to allow more light and better ventilation generally. The tower will be surmounted by a dome, which will be a prominent feature in the sky line of the city. The dome will be of copper, and will be covered with a green patina. The tower will be occupied by the executive offices of the bank, and the dome will be occupied by the President, Vice-President and General Manager. The Board of Directors will occupy the room immediately under the dome. The Council Chamber will be on the twenty-first floor, and will be reached by a private elevator. The Directors' Room will be on the twenty-second floor, and will be reached by the President's elevator. The Executive Offices of the Bank of Canada, as well as the Executive Offices of the Royal Bank of Canada, will be accommodated on the twenty-third floor. SICK ABED EIGHT MONTHS
After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Could Be All Her Work and Gained in Weight

Melfort, Saskatchewan.—"I had terrible trouble, headaches and severe pains in my back and could not sleep. I was sick generally and thought I could not live. I was in bed most of the time for eight months. An aunt came to visit and finally me as I was unable to attend to my work and could not do my housework. She told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after taking the bottles I could get up and dress myself. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, When I first took the medicine I only weighed seventy-eight pounds. Now I weigh twelve pounds. If I get out of sorts or weary and can't sleep I always take some bottle of the Vegetable Compound. I find it wonderfully good for female troubles, and have recommended it to my neighbors. I will be only too glad to answer any letters that I may receive about it."—Mrs. Wallace Ayres, Box 634, Melfort, Saskatchewan.

The letters died away. He aroused with arms and danced before the girl against the pillar. The glimmer from her lantern bathed the white-face in scarlet, and the light was gleaming in the sky. [illegible]

The guests in Joanna stirred in their seats and settled again into tense breathless silence. The third witch danced and held aloft her cup. The figure in the darker place took on a hue of green. Now better could "KNEW."

Joanna also had stirred incensed at the unfolding of the tableau, and deeply was conscious of a benefit on her bare shoulder. She looked around and peered into the front row of Brandon. Around his forehead a bandage shone white. He stood beside the servant girl who which he had intended to drop quietly unnoticed his lips and saw them frame the whispered words: "Joanna, I'm sorry I'm sorry I'm sorry!" Remembered as Joanna's plaint in Eagle-ton, long ago, in the number library of the house on the Avenue when she told the banker of the three things that had haunted her in her coming with the problems of the girl, found in "Mid-summer-night's Dream" and Dicy."

Brandon was so tightly wrapping in the spell of his portrayal and that amazing outsider staged by Joanna with her troop of actors and actresses, especially brought from Paris, that Yvonne reached back and touched him to bring him to a realization of his surroundings. He brushed his hand across his eyes and dropped into the vacant chair.

"I am just in time," he remarked. "In whose imitation who is a real act secretly I fancy it will be most interesting."

Yvonne nodded him a moment and then turned back to the scene on the stage.

The three witches danced out to the front center of the stage before the open space. Dramatic shapes, with capes flowing behind them, they made a circle, and in the center of it, shaking the grave gave the impression of a small stage it seemed as if there was room for only three. The population of the city then sprang from Brandon started as violently that Yvonne and Swallowtail shot a glance at him. When they looked back upon the stage they saw why. I succession after he was among those grotesque figures, for one of them walked with exaggerated grace and his head was bandaged.

And just then, as if a ridiculous realization had swept over the men and women the puppets and mannequins, the persons and clothes alike in the audience there was a distinct sound of pent-up breath escaping hundreds of lips. Almost every one of these who had come to the revel of the golden girl recognized, in one of those weird, white-faced figures on the stage himself or her self.

Betty Weymouth saw that Joanna had enchantment her. Prince Michael saw himself, so surely as Brandon had recognized the graceful form in the bandage. Linda was aloof at the back of the pavilion saw a mannequin of himself. Everyone else saw something in his or her representation in the city's inhabitants. As they trooped down into the market place around the almost nude girl who danced against the column in the center

The girl raised her head and shook the long strands of golden hair from her yellow hair. When she saw that the witches had faded away from her, and which she was among the people of the city the people of the world in which she found herself, her body straight and The orchestra burst into a joyous rhythm. The girl leaped into the throng of masques and danced among them danced gaily, her limp draperies flowing in utter abandon.

"Watch the witches" Brandon murmured. He spoke to himself, but Yvonne and Swallowtail nodded in acknowledgment that the thought had come to them, too.

A little company, to the masques of morose solemnity, assembled at one side of the stage. Up to them and around them the girl danced ecstatically. They swayed back and forth in time with the young feet that seemed to dance as if supported with quick silver. A host of mountainous crept into the scene. The girl danced slowly, more beautiful. The witch with the yellow lantern "Misunderstanding" fell help step behind her. The girl shrank, relentlessly the evil which pressed upon her. An eerie lamentation arched from voices and reeds, slowly, mercilessly. "Misunderstanding" drove the lovely girl back to the pillar.

Again the dancer escaped her basilisk guardians and moved merrily, hopefully, carelessly. She was driven back from the group that gathered around her, by "Envy." A third time she tried to spread her rhythmic doctrine of courtesy youth and grace and vividness, and again—!

In the audience a woman uttered a half scream, half moan. Another woman rose to reach over to her. A man stood. In an instant the puppets and mannequins, the phrenzie and Col-

WHY TORTURE THE LITTLE ONES

Mothers do not think it fair to torture your little ones by forcing them to take disgusting nasty liver medicine or a nauseating "physic" that is all but like a child's dread of those medicines often do more harm than good.

Baby's Own Tablets are the modern substitute for these nauseous doses. They are the very medicine the child requires and are so pleasant to take that they are as easy to administer as a glass of water. They are the perfect remedy for all the minor ailments of little ones, being absolutely guaranteed from injurious drugs.

Baby's Own Tablets accomplish all that castor oil and other bad tasting remedies can do, but they accomplish it in a manner that is pleasant to the child, and without a struggle against taking medicine. They relieve teething pains, banish indigestion and constipation break up colds and simple fevers and promote healthful refreshing sleep. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Wil liams Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

PIG PASTURES

(Experimental Farms Note)

Over a period of nine years various pastures for pigs have been tried out at the Dominion Experimental station at Scotsburn, both in comparison with one another and with no pasture. In dry years, such as 1924, there was no little growth that no efforts could be seen from the use of pastures but in seasons where there is fair growth there are both greater gains when pigs are on pasture with meal than when on meal alone. Corn pasture is less valuable than oats or barley, and rape gives best results in amount of gains and economy of gains. Rape has much advantage. Pigs fed in dry lot or on grain pastures or corn pasture showed greater gains when fed a supplementary mineral mixture but there was little difference between those fed mineral and those without mineral on rape pasture.

W. A. Munro, Superintendent, Dominion Experimental Station, Scotsburn, Sask.

WHO PAYS?

The store that doesn't advertise pays the advertising bill for the one that does.

Every merchant in business pays for advertising, whether he uses it or not. If a competitor's advertising takes any business away from him the profit he would have made on the lost sale is what his competitor's advertising cost him.

You have perhaps wondered how some stores can afford to spend such enormous sums for advertising. That is easy to explain. The competitor, who doesn't advertise and whose business they take pays for their advertising.

Say the Brown family is a customer of your store. They have $60.00 which they intend to spend with you. The store makes 20 per cent, or $12.00 on the sale. They deduct, we will say, $1.50 for advertising cost and have $11.50 profit left. The advertising has cost them nothing, they get back its cost and had $11.00 profit they would not have had only for their advertising.

Who pays for their advertising?

Did the advertiser pay? He—He got the cost back and had a profit besides.

Did the purchaser pay? No—He paid only the regular price.

Then who did pay?

The store that did not advertise paid for the competitor's advertising. He not only paid for the other fellow's advertising but he paid out of his cash drawer the profit his competitor made on the sale. The store that doesn't advertise pays the advertising bill for the one that does. He pays in loss of sales, profits, and increased costs.

The store that loses business through not advertising has such high overhead and unit sale cost that it cannot possibly sell goods so cheaply as the store that increases its sales and reduces its cost with advertising.

The Other Fellow's Viewpoint

In this year of Canada's Diamond Jubilee when the thoughts of its people are being turned backward sixty years and they contemplate the truly marvellous change that has taken place—one great lesson is noted in the achievement of Confederation, stands out pre-eminent. A review of the years clearly demonstrates that Canada's material growth and development have been made possible because, to an ever increasing extent as the years have passed, the people of the Dominion have cultivated a spirit of good will toward each other.

Misunderstandings had many obstacles to traverse, many difficulties to overcome—physical, geographical, financial, but the one problem that had to be solved, and failing which all others could not be surmounted, was to achieve a union of the two races, French and English speaking, to create a feeling of respect and toleration for each other on the part of Roman Catholic and Protestant. To a large extent this has been accomplished and to it Canada owes its strength and prosperity.

The relationship of Canada can render no more fitting a tribute to their country, can make no greater Jubilee contribution to its welfare and progress, than to further develop this spirit of tolerance and good will. This by no doing can peace be maintained and strife eliminated from our midst, only on an effective cooperation be maintained in the maintenance and development of such relations alone can be formed the essentials of a true national spirit.

Studying conditions in other countries, one is happy to note in Canada today an absence of those suspicions, bitter feelings and lack of appreciation of the opinions of others, which appear rather general in other lands. This in not to say there is an entire absence of such attributes in Canada. They do prevail to some extent, but the better, nobler, better sense of manhood has the uppermost.

For example, if the Russian people desire a communist form of government most, that is their own business and Canada, and Britain for that matter, interferes. But Russia should display the same attitude towards other countries, and not try to subvert the rights of friendly countries from within by their respective governments. The disclosure that Russia is doing the diplomatic immunity accorded her representatives by other countries in an endeavor to overthrow their forms of government is result big to every sense of decency and fairness.

While deploring some of the methods adopted to promote national feeling in China, one cannot but sympathize with the aspirations of the Chinese people. Foreign rights must be respected in China as in other countries, but there should be no interference in China's right to itself determine its national life and forms of government. One can perhaps better appreciate and sympathize with the Chinese viewpoint if we could visualize Buddhist priest establishing missions throughout Western Canada and sending Canadian schools to teach our children the tenets of the Buddhist religion. Would the Christian churches of Canada acquiesce in this?

Or imagine whole portions of Vancouver, Victoria, and other cities set aside as Chinese or Japanese concessions wherein their laws governed and their trade was supreme. Would Canadians accept such a state of affairs? Rather, do we not even object to individual Chinese and Japanese competing on even terms with our own people?

Reference is made to these rather strong views, not to pass judgment in regard to them, but to point the moral of this article, viz, that what is needed in the world today is more sympathy and less bitterness; more tolerance and less prejudice, more respect for and less suspicion of each other; more co-operation and less striving at cross purposes.

And what the whole world needs, what Canada needs, in this Jubilee year, confronts itself to achieve to the fullest degree for our own people and Dominion. Respect for each other's opinions and convictions, recognition of each other's good qualities, a willingness to meet one another half way in the solution of community and national problems, a realization that we all are Canadians with a common interest in the Dominion and its welfare and a keenness and duty and responsibility in it to discharge.

Spanish Ninety-Eighth Birthday in Prison

"Mr. Who" Who Outwits Pardon Has Served Thirty-Seven Years

"Old Charlie" Lingwall, the oldest prisoner in Joliet Penitentiary and possibly the oldest in the country observed his ninety-eighth birthday. But as he had observed every rotogravure since 1900 and he probably will observe every anniversary until he receives the pardon of death.

Lingwall, sequestered in the penitentiary for life in 1900 for murder, which he always denied committing, refused pardon a few years ago, maintaining he was too old to lose the world. At the time he was recommended the Governor by him that his age alone had saved him from the gallows. Since then the Judge and most of the jurors have died, but "Old Charlie" hale, hearty and bowed with his years, has clung tenaciously to life.

He potters around the prison yard with no guard molesting him and no prisoner intruding upon his dreaming. He is the only prisoner for the twenty movie "Old Charlie" has a favored seat in the front row.

United and Intelligent Action Will Be Needed To Stem Westward Migration of Rat

The press reports recently that a number of rats had been killed by farmers in Saskatchewan, clearly drawn attention to two very important facts from an agricultural point of view, namely, that the Canadian west is one of the few agricultural areas in the world that is not overrun by these pests and secondly that no time should be lost for every farmer in the province, determined to take up this challenge by immediate and no uncertain promptitude action. The truth may as well be faced, says the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior, namely, that the brown rat, native of China and scourge of all Europe, is seeking to add new provinces of Canada to its list of habitat. Slow and sure his sentinels, his westward march and it will require the most united and intelligent warfare to stem his migration.

There are two aspects to the threatened rat plague. First, he is a carrier of pestilence, particularly of the bubonic plague or "Black Death" and history tells us that in the fourteenth century some twenty-five million people died in Europe of this dread disease. Nor will it be forgotten that in 1907 there was an epidemic of the plague in India and 1,000,000 deaths are stating to have occurred. Second, there is the economic aspect to the foregoing which is not less terrible. Leaving Moose Jaw at a stage in its passage to the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific Coast

The rat is not one dense to win out, even though older and more thickly populated countries, hampered by ancient sanitary systems and less modern living conditions have failed.

Regaining Place in World Wheat Market

Great Increase Shown in Russia's Production and Export

Within five or ten years Russia will be again a major factor in the world wheat market, if the rate of increase in production and export from the U.S.S.R. is maintained. Before the war, Russia was the second largest exporter of wheat. During the past dozen years, of course, comparatively little has been coming out of the country, but recently it has proceeded so far that this spring exports have run as high as 750,000 bushels a week. An Associated Press despatch from Geneva says and finance are reported to have carried out in Europe in 1927 and the average annual loss caused by such rats in Great Britain was placed at $1.00, in France $1, and in Denmark, $1.20. Little everything else there is little doubt that the high cost of rats has since gone up.

The genus Mus includes some 150 species of rats and mice but it is the common brown rat which has staged one of the greatest of all natural migrations, almost or human. Native country appears to have been in Western China and he has been caught in scores of countries, and is the worst enemy of the human race. Wherever he moves onward conquering new territory. And it is little wonder that he has won in his conscious conflicts when one considering his prolific habits of breeding. Brown rats begin to breed at three months of age and when they have from six to ten litters per year averaging ten each. A pair of rats breeding uninterruptedly for nine months, and sometimes longer, ing spells follow, often the point is reached and a girl is in the best mode in all run-down conditions there is no other tonic will build you up so quickly and so surely as Dr Williams Pink Pills. Try this and see if they do not. Miss Isabelle Franklin Rock land, N.S., will bring hope to other sick girls. Legume Bacteria

Why Legume Inoculation Sometimes Fails to Benefit Crops

Under ordinary field conditions, the presence of the proper strain of legume bacteria in the soil is necessary for the successful growing of alfalfa or other legumes. It is therefore always essential to inoculate when there is any reason to suspect a scarcity in the soil of the bacteria associating with the particular legume being grown. There are times, however, when inoculation fails to benefit a crop. Such failure may be ascribed to a number of different causes which are enumerated in a new Supplemental Flavors pamphlet which may be obtained from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

In a large number of cases the reason for lack of benefit from inoculation is that the soil has already been inoculated, and the additional bacteria consequently are superfluous. In other instances, where the crop growth is so poor with treated or untreated seed, addition inoculation and soil conditions may be responsible. The proper treatment of the soil in very important and is fully described in the pamphlet. Good drainage and liming are frequently necessary before a good legume stand can be established. Poor tillage of the crop, not only directly, but also indirectly by fostering the nitrogen gathering bacteria, often tend to a very frequent cause of failure. The use of hardy Canadian grown seed is essential in order to avoid what must be remembered that legume bacteria are living things and to do their work properly must be in a suitable environment.

Cattle Imports From Scotland Prohibited

Department of Agriculture Issues Embargo Under Certain Conditions

The attention in regard to foot and mouth disease in England has so greatly improved that the British Ministry has found it possible to remove its restrictions on the movements of cattle in that country. In view of this, and as Scotland has been absolutely free from the disease for six months, the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa now considers that it will be justified in permitting the importation of cattle, sheep, other ruminants and swine from Scotland under certain conditions.

An order has just been signed, says a statement issued by the department, permitting such importations from Scotland, provided that such animals remain in quarantine at the Scottish port, and, in addition to the usual health certificates, must be accompanied by an affidavit of the shipper that the animals so exported have been in Scotland for a period of sixty days immediately preceding the date of embarkation. The affidavit must also be shipped on a vessel proceeding direct from Scotland to Canada without touching at an English port, and they must be accompanied by an affidavit from the shipper to the effect that the vessel has not called for feeding those animals on route has been grown and stored in Scotland.

Such importation will be made under permit, issued by the veterinary director-general.

Extend Period Of Aviation Agency

U.S. and Canadian Areas Cross Border on Delayed Conditions

The existing agreement between the United States and Canada, by arrangement by which aviators of each country may fly into the territory of the other under certain defined conditions has been extended until October 31. The extension of the agreement was accomplished by an exchange of notes between the State Department and the Canadian Legation.

The agreement has been in effect since 1932. It provides that when an American aviator desires to fly into Canada he must obtain advance permission from the proper authorities, stating the date of the proposed flight, the owner's name and address, the pilot's name and qualifications, type of machine to be used, the route and direction of the flight and the purpose for which it is to be undertaken. The procedure is the same for Canadian pilots desiring to visit the United States by air.

Heart Palpitation Dizzy, Sinking Spells

Mrs. H. A. Gagnon, Desaulniers, Alta., writes: "Some time ago I was very nervous, could not sleep at night, often had dizzy, sinking spells and palpitation of the heart, and was so run down I could not do my housework, but just knew everything and sat down.

I spent a lot of money using medicine from the doctor, but it did not do me any good.

A friend told me to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and after using a couple of boxes I can say that I can feel the new vitality flowing to every part of my body. I feel so much better, and after a few more boxes I was in perfect health. I always recommend them to all my friends."

Records Romance of Lost War

Woman Despatch Rider Who Married Enemy Escort a Spy

By the death of Mrs. Catherine Vaughan, widow of Col. Charles Vaughan, of Bleas Penis, near Carmarthen, a remarkable romance of the Great War is recalled. Mrs. Vaughan who was a relative of President Kruger, was a skilled horsewoman, and acted as a despatch rider for the Boers. Col. Vaughan, then heading a British force on a cupola, was attacking a Boer post when the young Afrikander woman dashed out of a farmhouse to bring aid to the enemy. As she rushed to stop Capt. Vaughan shot her horse and captured the despatch rider, whom, to his surprise, he found to be a woman. Acquaintance thus made led later to marriage. Col. Vaughan, who was better known as "Owen Rhosemyl," was a noted Welsh historian and novelist, died eight years ago.

Not a "Vanishing Race"

Indian Population in Western Canada Is About 35,000

From Ottawa comes the statement that the Indians are increasing in population. They are no longer a "vanishing race," in western Canada the total population today is about 35,000.

It is otherwise now. We should wish the Indians well. These picturesque people form the only aboriginal native race of North America to be descendants of ancient hounds who most probably entered the Western Hemisphere from the Orient across the strip of land that has now practically been formed by the Bering Straits, the famous reaching deserts the kindly face which civilization has restored for them.

RUSSIAN TRADE AGREEMENT IS TO BE ABROGATED

Ottawa The Government has decided to terminate the Russian trade agreement with Russia, it was announced following a lengthy meeting of the cabinet council.

Premier King, in making the announcement, declared this action had been rendered necessary by the decision of the Russian government to renew its relations with the Soviet Government. The hands of the Canadian Government, he made it clear, did not bind certain sections of the agreement by which Canada and Russia had been violated by the Soviet Government. Premier King pointed out that the Canadian government was subject to termination unless certain conditions were fulfilled. He specifically quoted a section agreed to requiring "mutual forbearance from hostile action or undertakings against the other and from conducting any propaganda of an unfriendly character against the interests of the British Empire or the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics respectively."

Premier Baldwin's statement in the British House of Commons and criticism by the Canadian Government, had made it clear, the Premier said, that this agreement had been violated.

Premier King stated emphatically that termination of trade agreements would not mean discontinuation of trade between the two countries. It would mean that certain quasi-diplomatic privileges enjoyed by the Russian Government would be terminated, but every effort would be continued to further trade between Canada and Russia in the same manner in which Canadian trade relations with other nations were conducted.

The Premier said evidences in the hands of the Canadian Government does not disclose any espionage or anti-religious propaganda so far as the Montreal office of the Russian trade commission is concerned.

Investigating Plan to Use Sulphite Wastage

Scientists See Possibility of Making Substitute for Gasoline

Ottawa.—Canadian scientists are investigating the possibility of the manufacture of a substitute for gasoline out of the wastage in the numerous sulphite mills throughout the Dominion. It was revealed at a meeting of the associate committee of physics and engineering of the National Research Council of Canada here.

The sulphite mills, it was declared, in the manufacture of pulp for newsprint are wasting at the same time tremendous quantities of liquor which is a potential source of alcohol. Hitherto only destroyed motors have been found to operate efficiently on a mixture of alcohol and benzine.

The committee also recommended today that the national research council investigate steps to secure detailed information on the measurement of the ultra-violet rays given off by the sun. If it can be shown that great benefit is to be obtained from these rays then, it is recommended, that special glass should be used liberally used in Canadian home and other buildings. The health giving ultra-violet rays do not, to any great extent, pass through ordinary window glass.

This district is indeed fortunate in that the weather has not prevented the farmers from getting their seeding done, as in other parts of the province. Much of this work remains to be done in the rich territory south of Edmonton, and south of Calgary conditions are even worse, many districts being flooded with the heavy falls of rain and snow that have experienced this spring. The "dry belt" has gone to the other extreme and is for once afflicted with an overdose of humidity.

We have heard nothing to date of any arrangement being made to celebrate the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation. If there is not public spirit enough here for a celebration on that occasion we must look to every other town and village in the Dominion. In proof of this, as far as northern Alberta is concerned, the Edmonton Journal points out the absolute duty of the preparations being made by the different towns and villages, and our exchanges of weekly newspapers are publishing programmes and reports of progress of committees in charge of various events proposed. Vegreville has had to call off a projected entertainment because visiting teams could not attend, the players preferring to stay home and take in their own celebration.

As we remarked before, Edmonton is very close to us and the schemes these there will attract a large number of our residents, regardless of what is taking place here. We think, however, these events should be dis-

Canadian Wealth Goes Up in Smoke

The forest fire situation in Canada during 1926 again showed a very serious condition. Ignorance and carelessness are the chief causes of forest fires, and the damage done to Canada last year estimated at $7,668,945. Since the organization of Canadian forest fire protection it is estimated that there is five times the amount of timber annually used has been burned through forest fires. When it is realized that the forests are the greatest source of wealth, agriculture being first, the waste from forest fires each year can only be likened to the damage done if four-fifths of Canada's grain field crops were destroyed each year.

Forest fires have been reported this year in Canada from April 15 to 30, according to the season, when forest fires are most active. Perhaps the greatest danger to property and life from fires in the country during the summer and fall months are a great many of the fires which have been started by the Canadian railways.

"Fires! Fires! Yes Sir, Sir, that Your Fire Is Out." Warnings warning warnings to that effect have been issued by the Canadian Forestry Association, especially in Canada, and at the time of the year when the greatest danger is to be expected. Yet a fire protection system is in operation which is the envy of many countries who are not dependent upon the timber resources for their wealth as Canada is, and appreciation is expressed by the fire rangers merely to point out a good example.

Burning slash and cigarette stubs and, cheerful, the Hiker many fires that doesn't look as though it could do a lot of harm in the world, are the cause of great forest devastation. One northern youth that went to look at millions of acres in Canada.

It has been reported that many of the worst forest fires have been started by some apparently petty cause

She said newspapers ought to have her in them instead of dents. The banker chuckled, and the sternness in his eyes softened. Honoring the Spirit of the Pioneers

Sport, of Romance and Adventure Should Always Remain

One portion of Lord Willingdone's speech in reply to the civic address of welcome this met with a warm response in Calgary. Was his sincerity to the pioneers

"You speak of this city," he said "as having been in the past one of the frontier, of romance and action time, and you are that it has happened not yet lost its distinctive features I trust it never will for however conditions can change. It is always well that the younger and stronger of the past should remain with you and that you should always keep in mind those early pioneers who laid the foundations of your great and increasing development."

Calgary appreciates the sentiments uttered by His Excellency. Happily we have many of the pioneers of Alberta with us. Take care that they neglect them. It holds them in respect and affection. They still play their important part in the community that was contributed to the making of the welfare of the city. Indeed they look upon the city as their babe the right to a special child, and their fostering care and interest still surround it.

They have witnessed its growth from birth and through all the ambitions and setbacks of youth to its present maturity and a assured position. They can have a special pride in the city that they founded. But the younger citizens now more actively bearing the burden are not disposed to dispense with their advice and their co-operation. The World knows of no city in Canada where youth and age more unitedly or more enthusiastically work together for their home city, the latter for the city which they helping to create, the former for the city which they are striving to make the finest possible memorial to the brave spirit of the pioneers who founded and nourished it.—Calgary Herald.

The treacherous nature of gasoline and the extreme care which must be taken by those using it for any purpose was again illustrated last week when a tire broke out at Rabbit's Restaurant. Mr. Rabbit was badly working at the time and was surprised to find the engine, situated under the floor, on fire. In the beginning, of the Chevrolet show rooms, quickly put an end to the flames with a load fire extinguisher. Fortunately the engine and the floor of the room had not and started the conflagration.

A drainage system on a more extensive scale and more likely to be effective than the present one is being undertaken by the town at the present time, which has always proved to be a nuisance during heavy rains and spring thaws, that is, from Jones, Graham & O'Brien's furniture store on Dennis avenue to the Memorial hall corner. The drain pipes have been delivered and digging started on Government street for the laying of pipe for the outlet to the river. Catch basins will be placed at the Dominion store, Avery hall, Fort Cash store and the Memorial hall.

MANY DIAMOND JUBILEE CELEBRATIONS TO BE HELD

Special celebrations commemorating the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation will be held in many sixty communities, large and small, throughout the province on July 1, according to information secured so far by the central committee in Edmonton. Literature has been sent out by the committee to all mayors, reeves and school teachers in the province in order to have this occasion celebrated as widely as possible.

NATIVE ORNAMENTALS

(Experimental Farms Note)

Too little thought is given to the numerous varieties of shrubs growing on the neighboring vacant lot, or in the back pasture, which are of known hardiness and can be procured with little labor. Such shrubs will grow without any doubt as to whether they will stand the winter, or whether they will be dried out in transit.

For the purpose of classifying the ornamentals, they are divided into trees, shrubs and climbers.

In looking over the list of trees, there are native plums, pin cherry, Saskatoon, and chokecherry, which in the spring give a profusion of bloom, followed later in the season by the fruits, which are at once ornamental and which may be used when ripe to supplement the tarts with jam and jellies. There are also the hawthorn and the sanaybarry, which have characteristic bloom, the fruit of which is valuable but decorative.

The shrubs afford much pleasure and joy to the eye. Pembina, often given the unfortunate name of highbush cranberry, blooms very freely and the scarlet berries are decorative and useful for jam, preserves and jellies. Sand-cherries bloom profusely, while the fruit varies in quality, but makes good vinegar. Chapefoil and roses are very ornamental and bloom abundantly. Silver berry and sea-buck are more appreciated for their foliage. Silver berry makes a striking appearance on the lawn, with its shiny, silvery leaves, and fills the air with fragrance, when in bloom. The foliage of sea-buck assumes brilliant shades of red and scarlet, which makes it very attractive. Red color depraved is very ornamental, since it has clusters of white berries, but it makes the most pleasing effect in winter, when its bright red branches contrast with the white snow.

The climbers vary the effect and may be used to cover the arbor or back porch. The honeysuckle is the only one to produce showy flowers. The broad dat leaves of native grape and the clusters of fruit make the grape desirable as a climber. Climbing bittersweet is seen to advantage in the fall, when its orange-colored berries are the more visible after the leaves have dropped. Hops are useful for climbing over the trellis

JAMES GRAHAM ABOUT NEW FORD CAR

Hearing the current rumor of a new Ford car, we dropped into the local agency to see what information was to be had on the subject. We landed when we mentioned our object, but gave us the following:

"Yes, a new Ford is coming, but it will be entirely different and we will be able to display the new car," was his opening remark.

"It is characteristic of Ford policy not to hurry into the production of a car. Ford experimented for many years before he put his first car on the market, and he experimented for years more before the famous Model T was manufactured. The Model T could out-call all other cars for nine years years above that when he experimented he arrived at some real results. He has been experimenting for years to get something more advanced than the Model T. Now that he has it, he does have to be confident to produce it on a quantity-quality basis that will give the public the benefit of Ford economical manufacturing methods. Meanwhile we will take orders for the new car right around and deliveries will be made strictly in order of the time

Law and Order, or Chaos?

The action of the British and Canadian Governments in breaking off diplomatic and trade relations with the Russian Soviet Government is the culmination of a long series of non-diplomatic actions on the part of the Soviet authorities and openly expressed and active enmity to the British Empire and its interests in all parts of the world. Professing friendship and enjoying rights and privileges wherever the Union Jack flies, Soviet emissaries everywhere plotted and schemed to undermine British influence, destroy British interests, all with the avowed object of ultimately overthrowing the British form of government and brooking up the British Empire.

Wherever in any part of the world unrest was found, in other, wherever trouble loomed up, there the Soviet agents were busy carrying on their baneful propaganda, and always especially active if British interests were to be injured or threatened. The British Government continued to exercise patience and forbearance until these ceased to be a virtue. It sought, the Soviet regarded the policy of conciliation followed by Great Britain as a sign of weakness. They treated it with contempt while taking full advantage of it.

But it is not the British Empire alone that is involved in Soviet propaganda and activities. Every nation having a regard for the continuance of law, order and good government, and interested in the maintenance of sound economic principles in all international relationships and trade, must view with concern the attitude of the Russian Communistic Government. In a word, all nations must recognize the fact that there can be no peace while contending for supremacy in the world today are hopelessly antagonistic to each other that both cannot survive.

On the one hand, there is the communistic idea sponsored by the Soviet, a system which denies the moral code recognized in all civilized communities, ignores rights of property, flourishes on strife, discord and unrest, has no regard for obligations solemnly entered into by it, and ever seeks to promote its theories and activities through the medium of spies and openly lawless characters.

On the other hand there are those people who reverence God and religion, who uphold the moral code, who believe in the sanctity of human rights, recognize property rights, observance of law and respect for constituted authority and the honorable obligations of promises and treaties, who strive for peace and the orderly solution of social and economic problems, rather than resort to revolutionary methods, by force, bloodshed, threats, intimidation, even execution without trial.

One or the other of these codes for the government of mankind must prevail; there can be no compromise where principles of conduct are so absolutely opposed.

The nations of the world are coming to a realization of the situation and to an acceptance of the struggle involved. Unlike Great Britain and some other countries, the United States never recognized the Russian Soviet Government, and has consistently refused to have any dealings with it. The whole English speaking world now takes the same position. France, too, is alarmed, as is evidenced by the recent declarations made on behalf of the French Government. And U.S. Ambassador Herrick in Paris has declared that "the people of every country have put to choose between Order and anarchy, between honesty and thievery, between every day virtue and crime." "Either we believe in orderly society or we don't," he declared, "if we do, we ought to use all the power within us to defend and advance it."

Calling itself a Workers' Government, the Communists of Russia have sought to get control of organized labor throughout the world. In this they failed in Great Britain, in the United States, in Canada, where the hard common sense of the working men and the sanity and patriotism of their leaders have foiled those insidious attempts. "Reds" everywhere seek to create the impression that opposition to Bolshevism is opposition to organized labor, but nothing was further from the truth. Labor has everything to fear and lose from the spreading of the Russian doctrine and nothing to gain.

Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, and as there can be no true liberty under the Bolsheviki, as even many of those have boomed to their sorrow, the civilized nations must remain on guard lest they fall in the pit which has engulfed the people of Russia.

Hudson Bay Railway is Only Another Aid to Canada's Progress

Those who talk of the Hudson Bay Railway in similar strain today should be reminded that only comparatively a few years ago Edmonton was regarded as too far north to become the centre of developed territory. Marquis wheat pushed the limit of cultivation ever further north, or so never the Arctic circle and long before settlement has exhausted the lands thus made available means will be found to utilize those beyond them. Ascending with needle height regardless, they will rush up to more than 25,000 feet or approximately five miles. Their pilots will wear electrically warmed suits and be provided with oxygen breathing apparatus.

Honored Poor Inventor

Egyptian King Visited England to Pay Homage to Samuel Crompton

Nearly 126 years ago a poor inventor named Crompton wanted to help his mother, a king came to England all the way from the pinnacles of fame, with all his glittering retinue, to stand in silent homage at his simple gravestone.

What the boy did completely revolutionized the cotton spinning industry, made the British city of Lancashire one of the busiest and richest towns in the world, and made possible a vast development in the cotton growing industry of Egypt.

That's why King Fuad came from Cairo especially to take part in the centenary celebration of Crompton's death.

Last January when the International Cotton Congress was held in Cairo, the King was asked to come to the Crompton celebration at Bolton. He accepted.

As a boy, when Samuel Crompton toiled his nimble spin yarn at home for the industry was then carried on in the cottages, the difficulties he encountered suggested to him a cross between the Hargreaves and Ark wright contrivances.

The invention is generally known in the trade as a "mule." Its principal innovation was the introduction of a spindle carriage which took away the strain on the thread and enabled much finer yarn to be spun, thus making muslin possible.

FOUND A HEALTH BUILDING TONIC

A Nova Scotia Lady Was in an Anaemic Condition

Girls and women who do not sleep well and are not refreshed and strengthened by a night's rest are generally suffering from a watery blood. Its nerves fail to get the nourishment they require and build up, and a worn out feeling is the result. Building up the blood is the only sure way to feel well and strong. It and for this purpose nothing can be equal to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. From first dose to last they enrich and purify the blood and in this way promote better appetite, sound sleep, and restored strength.

Mrs. Mary E. Uhlman Williams, Lower Canard, N.S., has received so much benefit from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, that I would feel myself ungrateful if I did not let you know.

I was in a very poor state of health and reached the stage where I had to give up work. A doctor was called in and he told me I had no organic trouble but was simply run down in my system. I had been a girl with a family to support which I did by dressmaking. The doctor said my blood had almost turned to water, and advised a rest cure. I did not see how it was possible for me to take a very long rest, so I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Soon I found my strength returning and before they had I was able to do about my duties as usual again. This was a few years ago and my health remained good until about a year ago, when I broke out with boils all over the blood. Again I consulted the doctor, he told me I had become run down in this that it had really poisoned itself. I told him I had bought several boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and he told me to go on taking them as he knew they were just what I need ed. I took eight boxes and again was in good health. I can therefore recommend these pills to all in a weak, run down condition."

Dr Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or will be sent by mail, post paid, on receipt of price, 50 cents a box. Try them today.

Remarkable Development Of Canada's Greatest Industry. The Growing Of Wheat

Canada's greatest individual industry, wheat growing, has developed almost entirely since Confederation. The present generation of Canadians are accustomed to speak of their country as the granary of the world, a phrase which would have been meaningless sixty years ago when Confederation was brought about.

Canadians must look with pride upon the achievement in wheat production of the last sixty years. What it means to the general business and to the transportation of the Dominion, needs only be stated to be understood. Exports of wheat from Canada in the last two years, and these were only average crops, have brought in to the Dominion more than $175,000,000 annually. This money, coming into the possession of the farmers, has been spent on the hundred and one articles which they need, thus stimulating the industrial centres remote from the prairie fields and affecting, indirectly, every district of the Dominion.

The bulk of Canada's wheat crop is grown in the prairie provinces. Each harvest time the enormous task of transferring this crop from the fields to the railway cars is undertaken and accomplished. The farmer hands his wheat to the country elevators, the original gatherer of the crop. There are about 2,500 country elevators in the wheat producing area. The wheat is there cleaned, graded and is started eastward and westward, as the case may be, to seaboard. If it is westward there is the long haul over the Rockies to Vancouver or Prince Rupert, whence it is shipped to Europe through the Panama Canal or to the Far East. In 1924-25, the last crop year for which final figures are available, 33,000,000 bushels went through Pacific Ports. In subsequent years the movement has been greater.

The greater part of the crop comes eastward in box-cars to Fort William and Port Arthur, where large terminal elevators are located. In 1924-25, the figures are interesting because relatively they change very little from year to year. 150,000,000 bushels came east. All this wheat, whether unstowed or westbound, is inspected by the Dominion Government inspectors and is graded according to quality.

The grading of wheat in this quantity of itself is a monumental task, achieved first by this Dominion and followed by a few other wheat exporting countries. In Canada, wheat must be graded before it can be moved, and the grading of the Canadian wheat is the basis on which the wheat may be bought, the quality of wheat he desires by grade. The quality is guaranteed and in many years of experience foreign buyers have not yet complained.

Having reached Fort William and Port Arthur, the main movement of the crop is at end. From these ports it breaks into a score of channels all of them moving eastward towards the ocean. The grain fleets come to the hold of the lakes for their grocery. The wheat is loaded into these steamers and some of them sail in the Georgian Bay ports, others in Port Mcdonal, still others to Port Colborne, many to Buffalo, and a few go right through to Montreal.

British Colonial Empire

Colonies and Protectorates Have Population of Fifty Millions

That the extent of the British Colonial Empire is vaster than ever before, that its colonies and protectorates, exclusive of India, now contain 50 million people, that its population of 14,000,000, was the interesting statement in the report of the committee appointed by the present colonial conference to frame a scheme based on contributions to a common pool, for the creation of a scientific and research service. This service should be analagous to the whole Colonial Empire.

The committee, in view of the short time available, decided to restrict the inquiry to medicine, agriculture, veterinary science and forestry.

The conference of governors recently approved the scheme set out in the report and requested the Colonial Office to appoint a committee to work out a detailed scheme for submission to all the Governments concerned. The conference was of the opinion that the scheme would be commenced on an income of about $675,000 yearly, of which a considerable portion would be used in replacing existing expenditures on salaries of agricultural research officers.

Canada Prefers British Settlers

But Only Limited Number of Right Class Are Available

"The temperature of applying policies prevailing Canada with mass power, without introducing unemployment but rather increasing the demand for labor, must be emphasized, with the necessity of preventing the admission of undesirable emigrants," Hon. Robert Forke, Canadian Minister of immigration, declared in London while discussing Canada's immigration problems with newspapermen. "Canada's immigration activities are therefore both positive and negative," he added.

Shortly after his arrival with W. J. Egan, Deputy Minister of Mr. Forke's department, the Minister received about 20 journalists at his hotel and, after reading a written statement he had prepared, answered their questions.

"Canada has selected the policy," he said, "of encouraging farm labor men and household workers, in response to the attitude of the strong British strain in the national fabric, special emphasis has been placed upon land settlement by British labor. Courageous steps have been taken to relieve the British soldiers of the burden of high colonization fees. The last that only a limited number from the classes mentioned are available from the British Isles immediately because the field to be cleaned by the United States and European countries from which suitable settlers may be secured."

Danish Government May Aid Immigration

Country is Fertile Field for Recruiting Now Considered

Considerable interest in Danish settlers, who reached Montreal on the White Star liner, Doric, to points in Eastern Canada, Lennarth W. Rasmussen, travelling representative for shipping companies in Denmark, declared that Denmark was a fertile field for recruiting Canadian immigrants.

Considerable unemployment prevails there. The chief drawback to a larger influx is lack of money. In this connection, however, said Mr. Rasmussen, the Danish government is considering ways and means of meeting this difficulty and is studying a plan practiced by the Norwegian government whereby prospective emigrants are furnished with sufficient funds and given easy terms in the matter of repayment.

In this year of Jubilee Canada is reaching out with an ambitious program of aerial navigation which the most imaginative of the Fathers of Confederation never entertained even in their wildest dreams

Flying in Canada was born of war, and in these later days of peace the conquest of the air goes on apace. During the war flying was a young man's game, and the youth of Canada won renown with machine-guns bristling from the cockpits, propellers roaring, and bombs swaying from the under-carriages. It was gun-boat sport but it proved the sporting blood of a young nation.

Peace, came and those young men who rode the whirlwind returned to Canada to earn their living as civilians. But the spirit of war adventure survived, and in a small but advanced organization called the Royal Canadian Air Force the traditions of aerial navigation were carried on. The young airmen, trained in war days looked to the civil departments of government for employment. They were needed and within two or three years of the close of the war many of them found a place in the Canadian Air Force, detecting forest fires, locating summerers on the boundaries, and mapping out by photography the vast areas of the hinterland.

Civil flying soon pushed its way to the front during the post-war years, and the government of Canada was quick to establish the necessary code of laws for aerial navigation. The administration of these regulations was given to a branch of the Royal Canadian Air Force, and today the Dominion is supported by a set of aerial regulations governing the licensing of all mechanics, pilots, air harbours, international flying signals, and the transport of air mail.

The most conspicuous work done during these recent crowded years of flying history in Canada has been the survey work in which the Dominion has led the world. Other countries have put on record examples of astonishing endurance, but Canada's contribution has been along sound commercial lines. In 1924, 16,000 square miles of Canadian territory were photographed and mapped with an accuracy which would have required years and millions of dollars if done by ground work.

The year 1927 has brought a practical acknowledgment by parliament of this valuable work. Since the war Canada has never spent more than $200,000 on aerial development. This year more than $2,000,000 was voted by parliament for the Royal Canadian Air Force to be divided between military and civil flying. Cities are being encouraged to set aside land for future air harbours, technical advisers from Great Britain are visiting the Dominion to make recommendations for the future linking of the Empire by airways, and the Post Office Department is taking the initial steps towards what will be an Atlantic to Pacific air mail route.

Canada's air future is to be assured. No certain is the Canadian Government of the development to some that at the Imperial Conference of 1926, Canada pledged herself to the erection of a great mooring mast to which will be one of the ports for the vast dirigibles being built in England to cruise the world through the Empire's skyways.

Wild Horses Are Worthless

Hundred Dollars Highest Bid Recently in B.C. for Eighteen Head

Hunters in the interior of British Columbia are engaged in rout in 1,000 sets of cars from wild horses they will have killed on the range this year. For these they will get a bounty of $1.50 per set from the provincial department of lands and forests. The horses are practically worthless, $100 being the highest bid received for a carload of 18 head rounded up recently at Springhouse, one of which was a pregnant stallion weighing only 900 pounds.
